Pearson Urges New Peace Diplomacy

OSLO (CP)—Lester B. Pearson today pleaded for complete exchange of views between East and West, especially between Moscow and Washington.

The former Canadian external affairs minister, who Tuesday received the Nobel Peace Prize here, said:

"Our policy and diplomacy—as the two sides in the cold war face each other—are becoming as rigid and defensive as the trench warfare of 40 years ago, when two sides dug in, dug deeper, and lived in their ditches. . . .

"It is essential that we avoid this kind of dangerous stalemate in international policy today. The main responsibility for this purpose rests with the two great world powers, the United States and the U.S.S.R.

"No progress will be made if one side merely shouts 'co-existence'—a sterile and negative concept—and 'parleys at the summit,' while the other replies 'no appeasement,' and 'no negotiations without proof of good faith' . . .

"We must keep on trying to solve problems, one by one, stage by stage, if not on the basis of confidence and co-operation, at least on that of mutual toleration and self-interest.

"What I plead for is no spectacular meeting of a Big Two or a Big Three or a Big Four summit, where the footing is precarious and the winds blow hard, but for frank, serious and complete exchanges of views—especially between Moscow and Washington—through diplomatic and political channels."

Essential to the success of any such exchanges was recognition by the West that there were certain issues, such as reunification of Germany and stabilization of the Middle East, which were not likely to be settled satisfactorily without Russian particpation.

It was also essential that Russia recognize the right of people to choose their own form of government without interference from outside forces or subversive domestic forces encouraged and assisted from outside.

Mr. Pearson said he well knows such a diplomatic approach would involve "baffling complexities, difficulties and even risks."

But "the first failure would be to refuse to make the attempt." It would be folly to expect quick, easy or total solutions but it would be even greater folly to do nothing, "to sit back, answer missile with missile, insult with insult, ban with ban."

Mr. Pearson entitled his Nobel Peace Prize lecture "The Four Faces of Peace." The four aspects were "peace and trade"; "peace and power"; "peace and policy, or diplomacy"; and "peace and people."

The 60-year-old diplomat said a great gulf has been opened between man's material advance and his social and moral progress—"a gulf in which he may one day be lost if it is not closed or narrowed."

Peace, he said, "must surely be more than this trembling rejection of universal suicide."

He suggested freer communication between the

SHE PUSHED WRONG PEDAL

Heavy Seas Smash U.K. Ships, Homes

PRINCESS PROTECTION ROUSES IRE OF SCOTS

DUNDEE, Scotland (UP)—Angry Scots fired off protests today to Princess Margaret and the government because a station platform was cleared when the princess boarded a train for London.

The barrage of criticism was started by Dundee resident Mark Paterson who was not permitted to say goodbye to his sister and her baby when they left for Nairobi, Kenya.

It was the latest in a series of cases in which police action to keep crowds away from members of the Royal Family has been met by public criticism and newspaper condemnation.

Traffic Snarled By Heavy Snow

LONDON (Reuters)—Heavy seas driven by hurricane-force winds lashed England's south coast today.

Winds ranged up to 81 miles an hour. Seas tore ships from their moorings, smashed boats on beaches, piled sand and gravel on coast roads and damaged a main railroad line.

The seawall at Weymouth on the southwest coast collapsed under the battering and tons of sand blocked the adjoining highway.

At Plymouth, a 550-ton car ferry was blown ashore but refloated later while a passenger ferry in the same river was carried nearly half a mile upstream.

POWER LINES CUT

Seas damaged the main London-Plymouth railroad line, delaying trains up to three hours.

Though the storm was moderating today gale warnings were in force all around the coast and gales were still raging over the Irish Sea, parts of northern England and Scotland.

Many houses in England were damaged, trees blown down on roads and overhead telephone and power cables broken.

Heavy snow blanketed northern Scotland, delaying trains and blocking roads.

More than 200 vehicles, mostly long-distance trucks, were snowbound on Beattock Hill between Carlisle, Northern England, and Glasgow. The road over the steep hill was jammed for several miles.

STRANDED MAN SAVED

Dr. William Ruddock, marooned on Lundy Island in the storm-swept Bristol Channel since Friday, was brought to the mainland today by helicopter.

A lifeboat had taken him out to attend to an islander's sick child.

The British freighter Clan Ross (7,698 tons) broke from her moorings in Canada Dock, Liverpool, today and was in collision with another British ship, the Roonagh Head (6,153 tons), which was damaged.

John D. Rapped By Speaker

OTTAWA (CP) — Tempers bristled in the Commons again today, resulting in a sharp exchange between Prime Minister Diefenbaker and opposition spokesmen.

The incident ended with a minor rebuke for the prime minister from Speaker Roland Michener.

James Sinclair (L-Coast-Capilano) started things off when he asked whether the national film board had recorded an historic event—the start of construction of the South Saskatchewan River dam.

Mr. Sinclair said Mr. Diefenbaker had promised during the election campaign that construction would start in six months. Tuesday was exactly six months from the June 10 election.

Mr. Diefenbaker said such frivolous Commons questions had usde up 32 hours and 37 minutes of the present session.

Mr. Sinclair said such questions were not frivolous though it turned out that Mr. Diefenbaker's election promises had been.

Mr. Michener said the prime minister was entitled to comment on the amount of time spent on questions but not to raise the question of the propriety of questions raised previously in the session.

Reuther Scores '58 'Wage Freeze'

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—The AFL-CIO convention came out unanimously today against any 1958 wage freeze. Instead, the convention called for sizeable wage increases and a shorter work week.

Walter Reuther, head of the Auto Workers' Union, charted the federation's bargaining policies in a speech saying the way to counter economic decline and mounting unemployment is to boost wages and increase purchasing power.

The AFL-CIO called the wage increases and reduced straight-time hours before overtime as major 1958 objectives.

SOVEREIGNTY PLEDGE ASKED FROM MAC

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan refused today to promise he will not surrender any degree of Britain's national sovereignty at the NATO summit conference next week.

Labor party members in the House of Commons had demanded a government pledge that any such surrender of sovereignty must first gain the approval of Parliament.

The prime minister replied: "I would certainly not think it right to publish in advance any proposals."

Rioters Driven Off

Bulganin Letter Aimed At NATO, Charges U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States accused Russia today of trying to influence nations of the Atlantic pact summit meeting next week by means of Soviet Premier Bulganin's letters to President Eisenhower and other western leaders.

Bulganin in a 3,000-word message delivered Tuesday to Eisenhower called for an end to all atomic hydrogen tests and for an East-West conference to outlaw war.

The Russians called the missive "very important" but American officials put a propaganda label on it, coming only 6 days before the NATO parley.

The state department said today after State Secretary Dulles conferred at the White House with Eisenhower that the Bulganin letter was "under active study."

But press officer Lincoln White, in a statement read at a press conference, said in reference to the letter received by Eisenhower:

"I think it can be assumed that the timing of the delivery of this letter and the intention of the Soviet Union to publish it would indicate an intention to influence the proceedings at the NATO conferece.

"We may wish to consult with other governments concerning it."

It was learned these were the letter's main proposals:

1. A halt after Jan. 1 to all nuclear bomb testing. The Western allies already have rejected this, saying it fails to secure a ban on bomb production with safeguards to prevent cheating.

2. An East-West conference of leaders to outlaw war. This too, has been turned down. The West argues that the best way to prevent war is to ease tensions by settling differences one by one at lower-level talks.

3. A prohibition of nuclear weapons based in Communist Poland and East and West Germany.

4. Th eusual Soviet demand about making normal world relations and increasing East-West trade. Here again the Allies take the position that such generalizations are worthless unless the Russians are willing to deal with specifics.

LEADERS GET LETTER

Prime Minister Macmillan and the leaders of France, West Germany and India also received letters from Bulganin, either Tuesday or today. Macmillan's office declined comment on the note pending translation and study, but all the letters were believed similar to the one received by Eisenhower.

Bulganin's message to Nehru said Russia was ready to ban nuclear tests Jan. 1 if Britain and the United States would do likewise.

In the Nehru letter, Bulganin accused the allies of wrecking the disarmament negotiations this year at London.

Bulganin denounced the British-U.S. proposal for strengthening NATO. He said plans to be unveiled at the Paris meeting "perturb all peace-loving peoples" and are being drafted amid "warlike hysteria."

WIRE BRIEFS

Ike Ready for Paris

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower, pronounced in excellent condition after a new medical examination, rounded out plans today to fly to Paris Friday in an effort to shore up the Western Alliance he helped forge. But the president still has a faint speech impairment and he still is not discharged from medical care followin gthe mild stroke he suffered 16 days ago.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. army, successfully launched a modified Redstone missile test vehicle Tuesday night.

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will press for greater implementation of the North Atlantic Treaty provision calling for economic co-operation, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today in the Commons.

EDMONTON (CP) — Telephone communications between Alberta and British Columbia points disrupted by winds Sunday are rapidly returning to normal, an Alberta government telephones spokesman said today.

Toronto Newspapers To Increase Prices

TORONTO (BUP) — The Toronto Globe and Mail will boost its price by five cents to 10 cents a copy starting next Monday, it was learned today.

It also was learned that The Toronto Telegram will increase its price to 10 cents by the end of the year.

Proved Inefficient Reds Gibe at NATO

LONDON (Reuters) — Moscow radio said today "NATO's leaders must obviously take a back seat now in the face of Soviet achievements in military engineering."

In a broadcast beamed to North America and heard here, the radio said NATO had "proved its inefficiency in every respect." Instead of protecting European peace and security, it had only aggravated the tension there.

Russia Note Needs Careful Study--Smith

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Sidney Smith said today in the Commons that the latest Russian proposals on world problems deserve "careful study."

Every Soviet proposal should not be dismissed out of hand, he said in commenting on letters sent by Soviet Premier Bulganin.

Mr. Smith, replying to Paul Martin (L—Essex East) said the Canadian government has not received any communication from Russia. All that was known was what was gleaned from press reports.

He said the Canadian government would examine with "earnest care" any proposal in the official Russian text with the hope that essential measures for disarmament could be advanced.

Mr. Smith said he hopes Russia has offered the West something of value. Something "more solid" than an end to atomic tests was required, such as proposals for an inspection system to ensure that cessation of testing was carried out.

'T-BRICKS FOR KOREA'

Let's Play Santa To Sick War Babies

By DINAH KERR

Some people say there is no Santa Claus.

They say it's unfair to comfort little children, who have nothing, with the myth of a fat jolly man and a sackful of gifts.

But they're wrong.

Wherever there is joy in giving, there is a Santa Claus.

We can be Santa Claus and we have never had a better opportunity than this Christmas.

We can give life and hope to the children of Korea, who are hopeless now and near death.

They have tuberculosis. We have money. With that money we can build a children's TB pavilion in the sick heart of Seoul.

But we need $12,000 by Christmas. So far you have given $5,333.

How much is it worth to you to prove that Santa Claus will not forget the hopeless children of Korea?

Your donations to the Victoria Daily Times, Douglas Street, or The Times downtown office, Broad Street, will be gratefully received.

Will you help?

(See list of donors, Page 37.)

PRAYER FOR TODAY

O God, our heavenly Father, deliver Thy children from the curse of complacency. Inspire us with a holy resolve for a deeper spiritual life. Teach us to pray. Increase our faith. Deepen our dedication so that we may be used of Thee and find ourselves at home with Thee both in private prayer and in public duty; through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.

Airline Stewardesses Deliver Baby as Plane Circles Field

SHANNON, Ireland (UP)—An American airliner circled the Shannon airport early today while its two hostesses delivered a baby on radioed instructions from the ground.

The baby, a seven-pound boy, was born to Mrs. Elizabeth Raics, a Hungarian refugee who had not informed airline officials the birth was expected almost immediately.

The 22-year-old mother was one of 75 refugees on their way to New York from Yugoslavia.

Mrs. Raics began labor three hours out from Shannon. Pilot Tec Clarke brought the plane back to the airport but it was fogbound and closed to traffic.

Clarke circled the big skymaster over the airport for more than an hour while airport medical officer Dr. William Flynn radioed instructions.

Shortly after 1.15 a.m. Clarke spotted a break in the fog and landed.

"We just got down in time," Clark said. "As the last passenger left I heard the cry of a baby."

Dr. Flynn reported, "it's a fine boy. The mother is in excellent condition." It was Mrs. Raics' first child.

The plane took off again for North America at 4.20 a.m., with Mrs. Raics, the baby and her husband all aboard. Part of the crews quarters of the chartered U.S. overseas airlines plane was converted into a flying maternity ward.

Flynn said there was no danger to either mother or child.

poles of East and West and that the nations trade as freely as possible together.

"I believe myself that the Russian people wish for peace. I believe also that many of them think that Americans are threatening them with war; that they are in danger of attack. So might I, if I had as little chance to get objective and balanced information about what is going on in the United States.

"Similarly, our Western fears of the Soviet Union have been partly based on a lack of understanding or of information about the people of that country.

"Misunderstanding of this kind arising from ignorance breeds fear and fear remains the greatest enemy of peace."

On peace and trade, Mr. Pearson said: "Men may not now go to war for trade, but lack of trade may help to breed the conditions in which men do go to war . . ."

"The higher the common man sets his economic goals, in this age of mass democracy, the more essential it is to political stability and peace that we trade as freely as possible together. . . . We cannot have one world at peace without a general social and economic progress in the same direction.

"We must have rising living standards in which all nations are participating to such a degree that existing inequalities in the international division of wealth are, at least, not increased.

"For substantial progress on those lines we need the degree of efficiency that comes only with the freest possible movement of commerce through the world, binding people together, providing the basis of international investment and expansion, and thereby, I hope, making for peace."

Mr. Pearson renewed his plea for a permanent United Nations police force. The UN Emergency Force in Egypt was "at least a beginning."

"If, on that foundation, we do not build something more permanent and stronger, we will once again have ignored realities, rejected opportunities and betrayed our trust. We will never learn?

". . . The stark and inescapable fact is that today we cannot defend our society by war since total war is total destruction, and if war is used as an instrument of policy, eventually we will have total war.

"Therefore, the best defence of peace is not power, but the removal of the causes of war and international agreements which will put peace on a stronger foundation than the terror of destruction."

The statements were included in a text of the lecture issued to the press before delivery.

Frantic Commuters Battle Subway Tieup

NEW YORK (AP)—Bedraggled Manhattan workers who live outside the borough wearily climbed out of bed earlier than ever today in a grim effort to beat growing difficulties in the city's worst transit strike.

But during the morning rush hour the travel jams seemed as bad as Tuesday and the day before—if not worse.

Transit officials managed to keep perhaps one-third of the subway trains running, using non-strikers and supervisory personnel in place of members of the Motormen's Benevolent Association, who walked out at 5 a.m. Monday.

Both city and private bus lines, as well as commuter railroads, sought to help ease the maddening travel plight by marshalling all extra equipment possible.

But it was a terrific strain all around, because all such facilities ordinarily operate at just about capacity even with subways running normally.

It promised to be another hectic day of jammed highways, station platforms and frantic struggles of harried commuters seeking to force their way aboard anything moving in the direction of Manhattan.

Subway officials said that of 809 motormen scheduled to work the midnight to 7 a.m. shift on the city's three subway divisions only 299 appeared.

LEAD PIPE THROWN

The first violence was recorded early today when a lead pipe was tossed through a window of a subway train, apparently aimed at the non-striking motorman in the front of the first car.

The striking MBA men, who called their walkout in a jurisdictional dispute over union representation in the subway system, doggedly stuck to their refusal to work despite pleas from the governor and mayor, and threats of firing from the city's transit authority.

Backing the Transit Authority, Mayor Robert F. Wagner warned the strikers Tuesday that they are causing great economic hardships to the city as well as jeopardizing their own incomes and security. The subways handle more than 4,500,000 fares daily.

He said he feels few strikers realize they are breaking state law which imposes dismissal or severe penalties on civil service workers who strike against government agencies.

STORES HARD-HIT

Manhattan department store operators were moaning over Christmas shopping losses. Trade associations estimated sales were 20 to 40 per cent below the same period last year, and put the over-all drop in millions of dollars.

Canada-W. Germany Sign Atomic Pact

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada and West Germany today signed a 10-year agreement for co-operation in peaceful uses of atomic energy which will be used as a pattern for similar bilateral pacts with other countries.

Under the agreement, West Germany will sign a contract with Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited, crown agency which buys and sells Canadian uranium, for the purchase of 500 tons of the radioactive material.

External Affairs Minister Sidney Smith said the agreement, the first signed with a country other than the United States and Britain, will come into force later this month. Canada has other agreements with the U.S. and Britain covering co-operation in the atomic field.

Jordan Bars Procession

JERUSALEM (AP) — Jordan has informed Israel that it will again bar the consular Christmas procession from the traditional road from southern Jerusalem to Bethlehem, officials said here Tuesday night.

The five-mile road, passing the site of Rachel's Tomb, runs exactly as the old Roman road did when Mary and Joseph travelled it.

Under present conditions it cannot be used for any regular traffic between Jerusalem and Bethlehem, as it is cut by barbed wire marking the armistice border.

Pipeline Probe Jury 'Loaded' With Prejudice Says Coldwell

OTTAWA (CP) — CCF leader Coldwell Tuesday accused the Progressive Conservative government of abdicating its principles and responsibilities by "shelving" the trans-Canada pipeline with the Royal Commission on Energy.

He also charged that the government "stacked" the six-man commission with a chairman and a member whose associations are such that he could not see how they could possibly be impartial in any findings they decided upon.

"You cannot laugh this off," he said at one point as government members heckled him. "You have loaded this jury."

Mr. Coldwell said that if Prime Minister Diefenbaker "fails to do the things he should do" he will not only be making a caricature of Parliament and denying its supremacy:

"He will be undermining it in a manner in which no other prime minister or government has undermined this institution since Confederation."

The pipeline debate arose when Mr. Coldwell moved a motion of non-confidence in the government calling for public ownership of the Alberta-Montreal pipeline. He made the motion as an amendment to a government supply motion.

The House rejected the CCF amendment 172 to 22. Only the CCF voted in favor.

Opposition Leader St. Laurent had reiterated, before Mr. Coldwell took the floor, the Liberal commitment neither to move nor to support any non-confidence motion.

No Liberal or Social Credit members participated in debate of the CCF amendment.

GREEN REPLIES

Mr. Diefenbaker listened intently to most of Mr. Coldwell's lengthy speech. Then Works Minister Howard Green, government House leader, replied for the government.

"This amendment advocates outright Socialism," said Mr. Green. But the cold, hard fact was that "the Canadian people do not believe in Socialism."

Mr. Green said Mr. Coldwell's attack on the government and the commission was another example of the "smear campaign" used by the CCF time and again.

Claude Ellis (CCF, Regina) later asked whether Mr. Diefenbaker hadn't smeared President N. E. Tanner of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Limited, and Charles Coates, company general manager, by describing them as "buccaneers" in last year's bitter pipeline debate.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

The CCF leader's motion asked the government to take the necessary steps to bring the pipeline "under public ownership so as to preserve this important public utility for the benefit of the Canadian people and to make sure that the profits from this venture will accrue to the nation as a whole rather than to a few privileged individuals."

Mr. Coldwell referred to a six-man royal commission announced Oct. 15 by Mr. Diefenbaker to work out recommendations for a national energy policy.

The cabinet order-in-council establishing the commission asked that it consider whether "any special measures need be taken in relation to Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Limited in order to safeguard the interests of Canadian producers or consumers of gas."

FUNCTION OF PARLIAMENT

Mr. Coldwell said he had no doubt about the personal integrity of all the commission members.

"But I think I would fail in my duty if I did not point out that some of their associations would lead me to question their ability to achieve complete impartiality in this matter."

The commission chairman, Henry Borden, of Toronto, was chairman of Brazilian Traction, Light & Power Company—"one of the most powerful privately-owned public utilities in the world."

Mr. Borden had freely supported private enterprise generally and private ownership of public utilities. It would be "unreasonable" to expect a man with his background to be "entirely impartial" in his approach to the trans-Canada pipe line and other aspects of Canadian energy resources development.

FOREIGN CONTROL

The commission also was expected to study foreign control of Canadian-based companies. Mr. Coldwell said Mr. Borden could scarcely disapprove of foreign control in Canada "when the companies which it is his duty to safeguard are foreign companies operating in Brazil."

Mr. Coldwell added that commission member J. Louis Levesque of Montreal is president of the Quebec Natural Gas Company. He was informed that Mr. Levesque was a promoter of Trans-Canada stock in Quebec and was "closely associated" with that company on the deal.

Mr. Dienfebaker interrupted to ask whether Mr. Coldwell objected to any others on the commission. Were they unprejudiced according to his "fine standards?"

The other commission members are Dr. George E. Britnell, Saskatoon, head of the department of economics and political science at the University of Saskatchewan; Gordon C. Cushing, Ottawa, executive vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress; Dr. Robert D. Howland, Halifax, former deputy minister of trade and industry in Nova Scotia; and Leon J. Ladner, Vancouver lawyer.

Satisfactorily Few Hungarians Returning

Acting Immigration Minister Davie Fulton said Tuesday that only "a satisfactorily small percentage" of Hungarian refugees who came to Canada now want to return home.

He was commenting in the Commons on the hunger-strike by a small number of Hungarian refugees at the immigration department's hostel at St. Paul l'Hermite, Que., near Montreal, over arrangements made by the Canadian government for their return home.

H. W. Herridge (CCF, Kootenay West) had asked for a report of the situation, involving what he described as "so-called Freedom Fighters . . . in desperate haste to return to tyranny."

Some 35,000 Hungarians have been brought to Canada during the last year after fleeing Soviet oppression in their homeland.

Mr. Fulton said only a small number of the 163 refugees at the hostel are involved in the hunger strike. The conduct of the "malcontents" indicated the soundness of the Canadian government's decision to return them home.

As justice minister, Mr. Fulton said he expects to make specific recommendations to the cabinet shortly to ensure the humane slaughter of farm animals.

He said any delay in action cannot be blamed on the government.

Existing Death Penalties to Stand

The Justice Minister also said the Progressive Conservative government has no present intention of commuting existing death penalties.

He has relpying in the Commons to Harold Winch (CCF-Vancouver East), who asked whether the government had given thought to such a move pending Commons study of the Senate committee on capital punishment. The committee was set up in 1954 by the former Liberal government.

George Hahn (Social Credit member for New Westminster) said the former Liberal government built a $150,000 breakwater at White Rock, B.C., that is "a fine seagull's roost."

It was not long enough to give adequate protection to boats. Thus many Canadian yachtsmen anchored their craft at Blaine, Wash., the border point, where they spent a lot of vacation money that could be spent in White Rock.

Tom Irwin (SC-Burnaby-Richmond) raised a similar grievance concerning the breakwater at the fishing boat basin at Steveston, B.C.

It was not an oversight which excluded loggers and lumberjacks from the government's announced tax relief for away-from-home construction workers, Finance Minister Donald Fleming said.

He was replying to Douglas Fisher (CCF-Port Arthur).

Mr. Fleming announced Friday that, effective Jan. 1, 1958, construction workers who have to live away from home will not have to pay taxes on amounts paid them by their employers as living expenses.

Insurance or Charity?

IN ACTUARIAL THEORY—though of course not in financial fact — two great services of the Canadian state have broken down. The old-age pension system is no longer supporting itself by the revenues provided for it. Unemployment insurance is no longer insurance by any known definition.

Certainly the pensioner and the qualified person out of a job will get the money due to him. But the actuarial unsoundness of these public services is a serious thing just the same.

Old-age pensions are supposed to be paid out of a fund provided through certain specific taxes earmarked for that purpose. The fund has long been in arrears. Now that the cost of pensions has been greatly increased the arrears will reach a huge amount in the next year. To cover them the Government "loans" money to the fund without any hope of getting it back.

The official theory is that a worker, during his working life, makes specific contributions to a kind of savings fund as he would buy an annuity, for example, and then draws out his accumulated capital at a certain age. Actually this contributory principle has become a fiction. The old-age pension scheme does not stand securely on its own feet. It is dependent upon the general and fluctuating revenues of the state.

Recently the actuarial props were kicked from under the unemployment insurance scheme also. As The Financial Post reports, the Government has suddenly extended the benefits of the scheme "without so much as inquiring about the actuarial effect. The advisory committee on unemployment insurance, which includes management, labor and government representatives, was brusquely informed of the Government's intention and asked to approve quickly."

The cost of expanding the winter benefits of unemployment insurance cannot be foreseen since no one can foresee the extent of unemployment during the next few months. It is roughly reckoned at something between $13 and $18 millions. But no specific arrangement is made to provide this money for the unemployed.

Until 1954, says The Post, the unemployment insurance fund was accumulating rapidly, in times of minor unemployment, and had reached a total of $881 millions at March 31, 1954. During an economic lull in 1954-55 the fund fell by $40 million. In the present fiscal year the drain will probably be about $90 million.

Even in 1955 and 1956, years of high employment, the revenue from contributions to the fund by management and workers did not cover the payment of benefits. The fund was saved from depletion only by the interest on its investments, amounting to about $25 millions in each of those years.

Like the old-age pension scheme, unemployment insurance is insurance in name only. Benefits under either scheme can be extended at will by Parliament without any definite provision to meet the rising costs.

This is not to say, of course, that pensions and unemployment benefits should not be increased. There is good reason to increase them. But when they are increased the extra costs should be plainly revealed and openly collected from the potential beneficiaries unless the benefits are to be regarded as a form of state charity.

When such costs are merely smuggled away into the state budget, when the potential beneficiary is encouraged to believe that someone else will pay them, then the pressure to increase them for merely political reasons becomes almost irresistible.

As was said in the Senate the other day, admirable schemes of insurance, soundly financed, are turning into a kind of poker game with political parties outbidding one another in public benefactions, regardless of financial consequences.

At the Polls Tomorrow

VOTERS OF GREATER VICTORIA go to their respective polls tomorrow with one common issue before them—the attitudes of various candidates toward the study of amalgamation.

The city alone has called for a ballot on the question. It asks if the voter favors a royal commission investigation of the subject. Saanich council, on the other hand, has taken a stand approving such a commission.

If the question is posed on one ballot only, the issue is of general concern in the community. Candidates in a number of cases have expressed opinions on the subject. It is these expressions of opinion which should claim attention.

Before the citizens enter the polling booths, they should satisfy themselves on one point: Will they be represented best by the individual who favors study of a big subject of vital concern to every resident of Greater Victoria, or by the candidate who sedulously avoids such study? Do they vote for the man with his eyes and mind open or closed?

Whatever the wishes of the voter, he has one duty. That is to express his preference by voting.

Voice From the Past

AN OFFICIAL VOICE OF CRITICISM has been added to the many which have been finding fault with various facets of the U.S. administration. Dr. James R. Killian, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and newly-appointed scientific advisor to President Eisenhower, is the author of some searching comments on the Washington attitude toward scientific research for military purposes.

The military environment, says Dr. Killian, is not a favorable one for the scientist. There is too much restriction, too great a tendency to shun new departures. The scientist must be given free scope for his imagination and genius, and it is better to have one outstanding man at work achieving progress than 100 mediocre men fulfilling routine functions.

Dr. Killian advocates "free-wheeling methods" for scientists and engineers but sees a tendency to deny outstanding men the freedom that will ensure them the best conditions for success.

But quite apart from such technical matters, the M.I.T. president sees administrative blockages that seriously impede the nation's progress. Policy-making officials, he says, are sometimes left in ignorance by their staffs of late scientific advances which would affect their decisions. (Other authorities complain that the President himself, despite reams of reports, studies and documents, is often uninformed by his advisors of serious problems and their solutions which should receive his attention.)

"There must be a better understanding and rapport between the Government agencies involved and our civilian and scientific agencies involved in these fields," warns Dr. Killian.

The full significance of his remarks becomes evident when it is realized that these criticisms were voiced three and a half years ago, when Dr. Killian was in Washington in another advisory capacity. They still hold true today—for the advice was not acted upon.

With the recent evidence of Russia's advanced scientific and technological development these nearly four-year-old remarks have assumed even more critical importance. At the present rapid rate of change, it is not likely that they can be ignored for another similar period of time. They have taken on a now-or-never aspect of which the United States' allies, as well as the country itself, are becoming increasingly aware.

Balancing the Labor Picture

EASTERN UNITED STATES newspapers are reviewing Max D. Danish's new book "The World of David Dubinsky." The reviews are timely.

They come when the reading public has suffered a surfeit of accounts on the shoddy labor figures, the racketeers whose cruel and threadbare stories have been revealed by the U.S. Senate subcommittee.

From the inquiries into labor racketeering in the United States has arisen a miasma which blurs the outline of the legitimate union leader.

The personality, David Dubinsky, provides the picture of the honest man, sincere in his concern for the worker, gallant in his successful battle to improve the lot of the Ladies Garment Workers' Union—a man who escaped from the oppression of the Czarist police and imprisonment in Siberia to fight substandard labor conditions in New York.

Mr. Dubinsky is by no means the only figure of his kind in the movement. It is gratifying, however, to have his story told now to balance the distorted view of labor created by unsavory disclosures of activities in the Teamsters' Union.

The 1949 Model Is Out of Date

IT'S NEWS TO ME — By B. A. TOBIN

History is Always Happening

ONE of the most pleasurable features of the newspaper reporting business is talking about it. Wherever old-time newsmen gather together — whether around a desk after the last copy has been sent to the composing room, in the corner tavern, or at some social affair where the inherent competitiveness of the work is temporarily laid aside — you will find a tendency to reminisce and recall the classic tales of "scoops" — an outworn word — beats and victories, along with spectacular failures. And among the old-timers will be some new-timers who, it is to be hoped, will be absorbing the dramatic history of their craft as well as preparing to add to it in their time.

Tobin

In his new book "Deadline Every Minute," Joe Alex Morris has assembled a large collection of incredible but true stories that will appeal not only to newspapermen but to everyone who enjoys a well-told tale of quick wits, courage and sometimes just plain luck.

This is a history of the United Press (Doubleday & Co. Inc., Garden City, N.Y., 356 pp.), the great news-gathering and distributing organization that serves newspapers and radio and TV stations all over the world, including the Victoria Daily Times. As such it traces the birth and growth of the news agency from a small outfit serving a handful of newspapers 50 years ago with a couple of hundred words of telegraphic news a day to the present giant with reporters and clients all over the world and many thousands of miles of leased teleprinter circuits.

In the Making

But since current history is the stuff of which news is made, the book is also an abbreviated account of the highlights of the past half-century and the careers of the men who, hobnobbing with the great, the near-great and the nonentities, described these events for readers all over the world.

Joe Alex Morris, a veteran Unipresser himself, is better known by his cable name of Jalex. He knew at first hand many of the events of which he writes, and he brings a freshness and immediacy to his account which only a newsman of his competence could achieve.

I found the book of especial interest because I, like many hundreds of other people in news work, was at one time an insignificant link in the United Press chain. Some of the UP correspondents of whom Morris writes I had the opportunity of meeting personally, others I knew of through messages; and the names of all of them became familiar through seeing them daily in bylines on the teletype news report which all of us, in one way or another, served.

The United Press was conceived by Edward W. Scripps, an American newspaper owner, practically as a means of providing his Midwestern papers with national and foreign news coverage, and philosophically as a means of combating the tendency to news monopoly presented by the Associated Press of that time.

The AP—now also a world-wide giant—is a newsgathering organization composed of member papers who buy a franchise and receive the right to use of the joint news report. The UP, on the other hand, is a commercial firm which collects news and sells it to customers.

The history of the UP is the history of its battle — still continuing — against the large and well-established AP. It was a David-and-Goliath struggle in the early days; today it is on more even terms.

But that competition—to get the news first and put it on the desk of the client editors first—is the lifeblood of newspapering and the guarantee to the reader that he will get his information about his community, his nation and the world at the earliest possible moment and in the most accurate, unbiased form.

Continual Struggle

Much of Morris' book, therefore, is the story of how United Press staffers have coped with, and survived, the terrifically competitive, 24-hour-a-day struggle to "be fustest with the mostest."

Getting the news first—the official's announcement, the government's declaration, the death toll in the big fire—is one thing. Getting it to the nearest relay bureau and thence to the newspaper editors' desks is equally part of the job. Communications, in fact, are one of the major problems of the news agency man once he gets out of sight of his leased wire circuits.

How UP men, as well as AP, INS and individual newspaper representatives by the hundreds, accomplish this is a story that will keep you up to a late hour at night.

Morris tells of Unipresser Leo Disher floundering ashore in the Allied landing at Oran with a broken ankle and 26 bullet and shrapnel wounds.

He tells of Frank Bartholomew—now president of United Press—who was landed on an air strip in wartime New Guinea and set off to find the Australian headquarters. Walking down a jungle road he waved in friendly fashion to a couple of soldiers working nearby and continued on his way. Only later did he learn that he had been accidentally landed behind the enemy lines and that the "boys" he had waved to were Japanese troops.

How It Happened

He tells the inside story of the famous "false armistice" of 1918, when the UP "peace" despatch beat the world by three days (a U.S. admiral gave Roy Howard an erroneous announcement).

He tells of scores of men who, in peace and war, by the use of incredible ingenuity, enterprise and foresight, and often at the risk of capture, arrest or death, helped to keep the news rolling and the press of the world free.

If you want to make your daily newspaper become, instead of a sheet of woodpulp, a living, breathing message produced by sweating human beings, read this behind-the-scenes account of how the news gets to you.

Thoughts for Thursday

Seeking Ulterior Motive

Since there is so much talk at the present time of amalgamation I think there are some very good reasons why the people of Esquimalt would be very unwise to sign any petition put out by the Victoria Jaycees for a Royal Commission on amlagamation.

1. There must be some ulterior motive for circulating this petition, when one considers that the chairman, Eric Charman, has, according to the press, lived in Canada less than five years, and is employed by a Victoria firm of which a Victoria alderman and MLA is a member. Neither of these gentlemen live in Esquimalt, nor I doubt, does any member of this amalgamation committee.

2. Esquimalt at the present time receives approximately $90,000 annually from the federal government. The people of Esquimalt can be very sure that in the case of amalgamation very little of this money would be spent in Esquimalt even if the federal government would continue paying this amount to the whole amalgamated Greater Victoria area. We would be treated even worse than Victoria West which has no fire department in that area and very little police protection, etc.

The only Canadian and democratic way is for the people of the Esquimalt municipality to have a referendum as proposed by the candidate for reeve, Bert Thomas, and not a petition put out by the Jaycees, whose only interest is their own.

Two Lost Years

Allow me a small space in your valuable paper to speak to the ratepayers of Saanich.

I see our advisers have come to life. It is bad when we have to be told how to vote. The last two years have been the worst I have known in the forty years I have lived in Saanich.

Arguing and quarreling in 1956, we wasted a whole year. Reeve Ash blamed the "Old Guard" because they would not do as he said. Now it's amalgamation. It would appear to me that Reeve Ash had made a pact with the city of Victoria that if elected he would fight tooth and nail to put it over. But the majority of the council did not agree with him so they have been bickering ever since.

A year ago Reeve Ash advised us who to vote for. Now he comes again with "Group 12." What's the matter? Is he scared? Are they men of his own type or chosen by the Jaycees?

I would advise the ratepayers of Saanich to study each candidate on his own merits. Let us get away from this child's play and act like men of ability.

Do not be misled by these people who tell you who to vote for. Saanich municipality is second to none in British Columbia. Let us keep that. Let the city of Victoria run its own affairs.

For Library By-Law

Property owners of Victoria who appreciate the importance of library service in the community should welcome the chance of voting for the new library contract on Thursday.

This contract, carefully studied and now approved by the intermunicipal committee, will establish a more equitable basis of payment and give voting privileges to all members of the library board, including representatives from the other municipalities.

Support of the new agreement is called for. This we can give by voting for the library by-law on Thursday.

NELLIE F. TULLIS.
1014 Verrinder Ave.

Amalgamation

On Thursday, Saanich Council candidates will be elected or defeated, primarily on the basis of their individual stand on the subject of amalgamation of that municipality with the City of Victoria and/or other municipal areas.

Quite naturally thousands of conscientious taxpayers are concerned and are either in favor of amalgamation, against amalgamation, or in the middle, calling for further investigation.

On these lines, then, the electorate is divided and many thousands of man-hours are being spent arguing the pros and cons. Worse, thousands of Saanich residents are being set against one another at a time when they should be standing together in defence of the best interests of their community.

No one wil deny that past Saanich councils have been imperfect. Indeed, where in the world would we find a perfect council? However, this fact surely cannot be used as an argument that Saanich should become a part of Victoria.

In the opinion of this writer, it is most unfortunate that the one basic fact established by the 1956 report of the Citizens' Research Institute of Canada has not been publicly emphasized by Saanich taxpayers.

That fact is, and it has been confirmed by my own calculations, based on the 1956 financial statements of Victoria and Saanich, that amalgamation alone, even without any kind of an increase in general municipal spending, could increase the Saanich general tax burden by something between 80 and 100 per cent. Surely if this fact were known, no matter how much investigating is done or by whom, it would be clear to all that Saanich taxpayers would be paying a high price for the mere privilege of saying that they were property owners in the City of Victoria.

Can any benefit be imagined that could possibly compensate for such an increase? Let it be remembered too, that any future increase in services would only serve to increase the tax burden further.

It is sincerely and respectfully suggested that these facts be kept in mind by Saanich taxpayers when voting on December 12th.

GORDON H. CAMPBELL,
1515 Oakcrest Drive,
Saanich.

Housewife Candidate

I was much interested, and very pleased, to note that we have another lady entrant for the aldermanic stakes—a Mrs. Sally Rogers.

From what I have been able to gather, Mrs. Rogers is simply a housewife, a homeowner, and the successful raiser of a family. Here, then, we have a candidate thoroughly representative of that immensely influential body, the housewives of Victoria, familiar with all the problems, big and little, which continually confront them, interested in our educational facilities, alarmed probably over their steadily soaring costs, and anxious to see what can be done about them—an active, practising housekeeper, a patron of the corner grocery and fully alive to its value, in short, a candidate well able to express the views of that highly important person, the Average Ratepayer.

From the fact that she is sponsored by the Victoria Ratepayers Association, we may take it for granted that Mrs. Rogers is a sound, clear-thinking person and no extremist, not likely to voice any fantastic or ill-considered ideas. This would be a good point to remember on Dec. 12, and hers would be a good name to keep in mind—Mrs. Sally Rogers.

Attention, Mr. Diespecker

Councillor Diespecker, candidate for the the reeveship in Saanich, as reported, states, "merge and lose your assets."

I do not profess to be the smartest businessman in the world. However, ordinary common sense tells me that in any business including municipal affairs, we have liabilities and assets. In any business merger or municipal unification or amalgamation a plan must be worked out and the assets and liabilities are taken care of in the process. Any consideration of these would of course, be mutually satisfactory to both sides. It is just plain ordinary common sense. Anyone with common knowledge of business should know that.

If Councillor Diespecker cannot offer any better argument than he has, he would do well to study up on business methods before venturing "where angels fear to tread." It may be of course, that the candidate knows better and perhaps finds it good old election bait. You may be sure the voters will not swallow that statement.

Saanich and Victoria Taxes

I feel I must reply to statements that have been made to the effect that Saanich has had good Government in the past.

In 1927 I moved from Scott Street, Victoria to 986 Tattersall Drive at that time to get away from what appeared to be high taxes. My Tattersall taxes then were $20.80 and today they are $97. I have also recently had to pay $150 for sewer connection in cash. I have no sidewalks, curbs, or boulevards, I have poor roads and poor general street lighting.

On the comparitive four-room bungalow on Scott Street, Victoria, in 1927 taxes were $52 and today the total taxes are $74, twelve dollars of which pays for city upkeep of boulevard. The lady now in the Scott Street bungalow enjoys cement sidewalks, curbs, sewer and well-kept boulevard, also good roads and good general lighting.

This is a 30-year comparison, dear reader! Please think of what it will now cost Saanich to provide the improvements and services Victoria provides at Scott Street. Then decide whether or not Saanich has had good Government over the years.

'There Would Be Problems . . .'

The tight money policy as instituted by the late Liberal government has been a dismal failure. It has created a near depression throughout the country with unemployment soaring to new heights. The recent trend toward easing this policy does not indicate success but points to failure. Have living costs been reduced and have we reached stability? The answer of course is no.

Inflation is a greater threat to our security than enemies abroad. Satellites and missiles, so prominent in the news lately, are nothing in comparison to the threat of inflation. If action is not taken soon we will reach the point where our dollar will only buy a single loaf of bread.

Our country depends on exports for full employment. Importing countries, though requiring our goods, cannot buy because of the high price. So let us say we reduce our export prices by 10 per cent. All salaries and wages within the country are reduced a like amount and the same reduction would apply to all goods and services. The working man would not be hurt as his dollars would buy 10 per cent more. Store inventories would suffer a 10 per cent loss but replacement of merchandise and overhead would be reduced by 10 per cent. Pensioners would benefit as their dollars would buy more. Tourist travel would be encouraged and the export market would flourish, thus bringing a return to full employment.

There would naturally be problems particularly in the import field. It would likely encourage U.S. manufacturers to set up factories in Canada because goods and labor would be cheaper.

A strong government would be required to establish this plan and of course a return to wartime controls. But regardless of whether we like it or not some similar plan must be adopted sooner or later or we will be caught in the inflationary spiral and the last depression will appear as prosperity in comparison.

UN CORRESPONDENCE By CHARLES LYNCH

Canadians Throw Party

NEW YORK — The Canadian delegation threw a wing-ding of a party here and our mentioning it here instead of on the social page is that so many guests described it as the most historic event of the 12th General Assembly.

Lynch

Whether or not it deserves that billing, it certainly was the most Canadian event of this or any assembly, not excluding the United Nations Emergency Force. In fact, it was the most Canadian party we have ever attended outside the borders of our fair land, and just about the only Canadian official function we have ever witnessed that seemed to be given with fun in mind, rather than the discharging of social obligations.

The corridors of the UN buzzed with word of this party days before it was held, and there actually was a scrambling for invitations. Word had gone out that elk meat was to be served, and to this magnet was added a buzz that the pride of Canada, Miss Gisele Mackenzie, would be in attendance. Miss Mackenzie did not materialize, but the elk did, and, accompanied by lashings of Manitoba wild rice, it proved more than enough to fulfill the high expectations of the guests.

This was what is known in the back room parlance of diplomacy as a "pick and shovel" party—that is, one designed not so much for the heads of delegations as for the odds and ends, which takes in everybody below rank of ambassador. In other words, it was for the men and women who do the work, and whose good will can count for so much in the day-to-day business of trying to accomplish something at the UN.

JOBS REVERSED

By special arrangement with the authorities of the United States, three members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police were present in their full-dress uniforms. These same Mounties are the regular security officers of the delegation, and in that role it is their duty to blend in with the woodwork and be as inconspicuous as possible. For the party, their jobs were reversed, with spectacular success, and many a belle from many a land grew starry-eyed as these crimsoned stalwarts proved their mastery of the tango, the conga and the rhumba.

Russians forgot about Sputnik and did the hot-cha-cha with a will; one member of the UN secretariat who had not been seen to smile since this assembly session openly threw himself into a round of the "hokey-pokey," even including the verse where the derriere is featured.

Arabs joked with Jews, Turks with Syrians, and merriment reigned unconfined beneath a montage of huge photographs depicting the Peace Tower in Ottawa, fields of western wheat, and samples of Canadian life in the outdoors.

But the piece de resistance was the elk. Brought to New York at great hardship and considerable expense, he had been specially shot in northern Alberta, shipped from Edmonton in dry ice, and thence transported over the border by special arrangement with the U.S. customs.

ELK MISSING

Some thought had been given to the possibility of the elk being brought to New York by the minister for external affairs, Hon. Sidney E. Smith, who was flying here to make a speech. But saner heads prevailed, and the Minister came here unencumbered. The elk, making its own way by rail, missed connections somewhere and was reported missing, to the extreme consternation of the Canadian delegation. It was finally traced to Vermont, where it had been deposited on a siding by mistake. Re-routed, it arrived in New York and was duly dumped at the tradesmen's entrance of Rockfeller Centre, where the permanent offices of Canada's UN delegation are located.

Having spent the night somewhat ingloriously on the sidewalk, the elk duly found its way into the hands of its rightful owners, on the eve of the party at which it was to be the guest of honor.

All that remained was the problem of cooking the thing, and Mr. Wallace Nesbitt, MP for Oxford, acting leader of the delegation and master of the revel, came up with the recipe out of his head, with some help from a cook book provided by the resourceful wife of one of the delegation members. They marinated the thing in California wine and then stewed it until every last sinew was as tender as a scrambled egg. The assembled delegates gratefully gobbled every last scrap, and the Canadian delegation, having decided to shoot all of its entertainment allotment on one grand shindig, retired from the fray with the feeling of a job well done.

LONDON LETTER By WALLACE REYBURN

Tomorrow's Giant

LONDON—At random . . .

It's a tough autumn for the English. In the space of a month all the following have gone up in price: Postage, telephones, newspapers, buses, trams, taxis, cinema seats, beer, whisky, gin.

I may have overlooked a few items but that's enough to go on wtih. Too much to go on with, says the average wage earner. Though the increases in most cases are merely a matter of pennies, they all add up to a sizeable bite coming regularly out of his pay pocket because most of them are things he can't do without in his daily life.

Reyburn

Coming up with the prices—more demands for wage increases?

Strange aspect of the postage increase is that bringing the ordinary letter rate to the States in line with postage to foreign countries (the U.S. formerly came under Commonwealth rates) means now that it costs the same to write there by surface mail and by air letter—sixpence.

Seems peculiar that the post office would offer the choice of a letter taking a couple of weeks or a couple of days to get there—at the same price.

Worcestershire Sauce, the "Original and Genuine" version as made by Lea & Perrins, is as much a part of the English way of life as Yorkshire pudding and fish and chips. Also typical of the English for more than a hundred years—several hundred years?—has been the way of pouring your Lea & Perrins.

Remove glass stopper, place at top of bottle and pour sauce down stopper in quantity required. Now that familiar sight is gone. Lea & Perrins have now broken with tradition and replaced the glass stopper with a plastic dispenser.

Received from Longman's the publishers in Toronto—a copy of Bruce Hutchison's new book, "Canada, Tomorrow's Giant." a follow-up to his book of 15 years ago, "Canada, the Unknown Country," which was probably the best summing up of what makes Canada tick, this one is a new appraisal of the Dominion, made necessary by the fact that, as Hutchison says, "perhaps in this brief period no other nation has altered so much as Canada."

The book couldn't have reached me at a better time. Now for those people contemplating emigrating to Canada I need merely lend them this copy of "Canada, Tomorrow's Giant" to give them better than anything the real "feel" of the country.

Undoubtedly the most delightful news item of the week was that one about the cows in the farming area that had a breakdown of electricity. They refused to have anything to do with men brought in to milk them by hand! And so this modern age progresses.

I remember in my youth when milking machines first came into general use it was reputed that the cows used to turn to each other and say: "Oh, how I miss the old personal touch."

HOME GARDEN By HILDA BEASTALL

Many Winter Uses For Cold Frames

Cold frames are so important a part of a gardener's equipment in our Victoria climate that we sometimes fail to realize their use may not be completely familiar to gardeners from other parts of Canada.

One newcomer asked recently "Why do you recommend ventilation of cold frames during winter? What do you expect to have growing in them?"

Hilda

With the approach of fall, my cold frames soon begin to fill. Flats of young seedling perennials which have not been large enough to set out during September, remain under cold frame protection for winter.

Another section of the frame contains pots of rooted cuttings of trees and shrubs, not yet large enough to withstand the open garden.

KEEP SAFELY

Cuttings of many of the small shrubby plants such as sage, lavender, rosemary and thyme taken in September keep safely over winter in a cold frame.

A great convenience is to have a deep frame in which to bury pots of bulbs for their eight-week rooting period before flowering them indoors. We use either sawdust for covering the pots deeply, or compost. Judiciously removing and replacing the lights (glass covers) prevents too much moisture from rotting the bulbs before rooting, and also keeps the bulbs cool enough during the mild earlier weeks.

Chrysanthemum stools (roots, after the tops are cut down) are stored in another frame. Cuttings may thus be taken earlier in spring.

It will be noticed that all the plants mentioned are winter hardy enough in their own right, yet for specific purposes are given the shelter of a frame.

Excessive moisture is the enemy of all plants with inadequate root systems, such as newly rooted cuttings, and of course fall cuttings with little or no roots, while seedling trees, shrubs and perennials would be damaged by wind and hard frost. It is therefore necessary to provide protection only from the worst of the elements.

Ventilation by raising the lights on all sides to allow free air circulation while keeping off excessive rain is the ideal treatment. On mild, rainless days, remove the lights entirely. The plants will benefit from the increase of air.

These are only a few winter uses for cold frames in Victoria, if you'd like to have more, please write or phone in your request.

FISGARD RESTORATION MAKES PROGRESS

Old Light Gets New Life

Partial restoration of the living quarters adjoining Fisgard Lighthouse, at the entrance to Esquimalt Harbor, is nearing completion by Department of Transport workmen.

Interior of the red-brick building was burned out by a fire last August, and the roof almost completely destroyed.

The Department of Transport is putting on a new roof, with the possibility that the quarters will be completely restored if the federal government decides to preserve Fort Rodd as an historic site.

The Fisgard light is joined to Fort Rodd by a narrow causeway. The Fort Rodd restoration was one of the centennial projects considered, and dismissed, by the Greater Victoria Centennial Committee.

The DOT work is on a limited scale, being used as a "fill-in" job when regular workmen are not busy elsewhere.

In addition to a new wooden roof on the living quarters, plaster on the light tower, scorched by the fire, is being repaired.

The interior of the tower, and the light itself, escaped damage in the blaze, origin of which has not been determined.

When the light was established, in 1860, it was tended manually—hence the need for living quarters for the lightkeeper and his wife. But in modern times it became an untended light, and at one time it was planned to demolish the adjoining building.

Now it is hoped it will be restored completely.

LIGHT UP ISLAND ON NEW YEAR'S EVE

Chain of Bonfires Suggested As Fitting Centennial Welcome

A chain of bonfires on Vancouver Island on New Year's Eve has been suggested as a fitting welcome for British Columbia's 1958 centennial year.

R. Barclay Shaw, 411 Queen Anne Heights, proposes that big bonfires extending from Beacon Hill Park to Campbell River should be lit just before midnight on Dec. 31.

"Around each fire I would have bands and choirs, and I would invite the public to participate in rousing celebration to mark the beginning of our centennial year.

"If the weather is suitable, we could flash a Morse Code invitation to the people of the United States from Beacon Hill Park to Port Angeles."

Mr. Shaw, a veteran of the Royal Flying Corps in the First World War, has submitted his suggestion to the B.C. Centennial Committee.

He suggests the bonfires ceremonies should be held at Beacon Hill Park, Mount Douglas, Mount Tolmie, Sidney, Duncan, Ladysmith, Alberni, Comox and Campbell River.

"It would be a fairly inexpensive method of commemorating the start of an historic year, and I believe it would be very effective if properly organized," Mr. Shaw said.

MONTE ROBERTS

A very interesting question was posed at the Victoria City Council meeting Monday, and I can only hope there will be a very interesting answer to same.

The question was, "what qualifications are necessary as to what constitutes an adult cat?"

Now there, I submit, is a very interesting question fit to put all other very interesting questions to shame.

What, indeed, qualifies a cat to be an adult cat?

(In case you are wondering what in the world the august body known as the city council of the city of Victoria was doing, trying to define an adult cat, I also wondered along the same lines.

(But it turns out this is because of a new by-law, limiting each household within the hallowed precincts of the city of Victoria to not more than five ADULT cats. I trust you follow me?)

Which gives us a legitimate reason to figure out, when is an adult cat not an adult cat? And when is a non-adult cat an adult cat?

It is doubtful if the dictionary will help to any great degree, but there is no harm in trying:

"ADULT, adjective: having arrived at full size and strength; matured."

I haven't yet met a cat who has arrived at full size and strength. The longer you know a cat, the greater its size and the greater its strength. Cats continue to grow throughout nine lives, and after the nine lives are used up, they STILL continue to grow.

So let us go back to the dictionary, and see how MATURE might help us:

"MATURE: Brought by natural process to complement of growth and development; full-grown; ripe; completely worked out; fully prepared; perfected."

Ah hah! Now, perhaps, we have found out what constitutes an adult cat.

An adult cat, by the process of analyzing word meanings, turns out to be a PERFECTED cat.

Perfected, of course, is just another way of saying perfect.

So the proposed by-law, which limits each and every household to five ADULT cats, means it limits each household to five PERFECT cats.

All you need do, if you wish to have 489 cats living at your house, is to make sure only FIVE of them are PERFECT.

Remind me to discuss with you, sometime, the question of what constitutes an adult adult.

Jail Term Next Time, Driver Told

Albert Edward Carlow, 2607 Selwyn, Langford, driver of a car in fatal collision with pedestrian John Knowles, 73, 920 Dunsmuir, Dec. 3, was fined $50 or 10 days when he appeared in city court charged with driving while under suspension.

A coroner's jury found that Knowles died accidentally after being in collision with the car at Government and Yates. He was crossing Government, running and not in a pedestrian walk, witnesses said.

Magistrate H. C. Hall warned Carlow: "If you come in again on this charge it will be jail without the option."

He asked Carlow if he had driven on any prior occasion since his licence was suspended. Carlow said he had not.

The magistrate then asked why he had driven that day.

"I was just bringing my mom into town—shopping," Carlow mumbled.

His licence was suspended in October for an unsatisfactory driving record until proof of financial responsility was filed with the Motor Vehicles Branch.

Pedestrians Hit By Careening Car

An out of control convertible careened into a group of pedestrians, then caused an estimated $500 damage when it tore out street lights, fire alarm and traffic light standard at Fisgard and Douglas Tuesday at 4.35 p.m.

Pedestrians, including a three-months-old child in a buggy, escaped with bruises and shaking up.

The accident occurred when the driver hit the accelerator instead of the brake pedal.

BEING PARKED

The car, driven by Marjorie Fortye, 1045 Belmont, was being parked in the first meter space east of Douglas on the north side of Fisgard when it plunged over the sidewalk and headed for the corner where rush hour crowds usually are thick.

Examined and released at St. Joseph's Hospital were:

Mrs. Ruth Harkness, 21 of 558 Sumas, shock and bruises; Kerry Dale Harkness, three months, no injury; Harris Allman, 76, of 1264 Denman, right arm cut.

Mr. Allman was tending his Times street vending stand under the ornamental lamp standard when the car mounted the sidewalk.

SCATTERED

His stand was demolished and parts of it, newspapers and broken glass were scattered.

The car proceeded 95 feet out of control north of Fisgard on Douglas before coming to rest at a bus stop on the east side of Douglas.

The smashed lamp standard was draped over the hood and roof of the car, part of it projecting through the convertible roof into the back seat.

A bus stop sign near the standard was knocked off its base and a new mail box pushed over the curb.

Mrs. Fortye was alone in her car and escaped injury. She was in a state of shock after the accident.

Other children of Mrs. Harkness, Billy, one year, and Diane, two and a half, were uninjured and were taken home by a police matron.

'Pay-Back' Asked For City Garages Closed by Mistake

Operator Accuses Police Of 'Rank Discrimination'

Victoria's service station closing controversy flared again today with charges of police discrimination and demands for compensation for stations closed in error last Friday.

Operator of Oak Bay Junction BA station, Victor Williams, said he had laid charges 10 days ago against two garages which violated the new closure by-law.

The new by-law, effective Dec. 1, states stations may open 24 hours a day or else close at 6 p.m. (9 p.m. on Fridays), with no in-between service.

Mr. Williams said he had laid information with police against two of dealers who had supported the 6 p.m. closing law, stayed open until later in the evening.

NO ACTION

"As far as I know there has been no action by the police. But they were quick to act when operators of 24-hour service had complaints last Friday night."

Several stations were closed by police in error. It was not realized all stations could remain open until 9 p.m. on that one night of the week.

Mr. Williams said the police action on one hand, and inaction on his complaint is "rank discrimination."

He said he had offered to appear as a witness against the law-breaking stations.

Mr. Williams has called on the mayor, as chairman of the police commission, to arrange for compensation for the garages which lost Friday night business as a result of the police mistake.

REVISE BYLAW

He also called on city council today to revise the business tax by-law. He felt if stations are divided into two groups, one allowed to stay open more than twice as long as the other, the 24-hour stations should pay double the business tax charged normally.

He promised: "Next year I will definitely run for council." Mr. Williams was a CCF candidate in the last federal elections.

He began his battle with the new closing regulations recently when he announced he will stay open tonight and give gas away.

But he will charge for service such as wiping windshields and checking oil, water and air. There is nothing in the by-law to restrict anything other than gas and oil sales after 6 p.m.

He has planned his free-gas program to start at 6 p.m. tonight, "on the eve of election."

MAYOR COMMENTS

Mayor Percy Scurrah, who earlier called the police closure of several stations Friday, "an honest mistake," commented today on Mr. Williams statements:

"The business tax angle is something that will have to be considered. It requires careful thinking as there are a lot of angles. Restaurants, drug stores and newsstands also are open long hours. If Mr. Williams wants to stay open 24 hours, he can take advantage of the situation as it is right now."

The mayor added, on the question of compensation for stations closed in error last Friday, "I will have to have legal advice on that." Mr. Williams also suggested the dealers who laid the complaints, 24-hour station operators, should be required to pay if the city doesn't.)

GOOD REASON

The mayor said he felt there must be good reason for the police having taken no action on the complaints laid by Mr. Williams.

"It's the policy of the police to act on complaints. If there is some delay in acting, there certainly is some good reason for it."

There was no indication the city would challenge Mr. William's right to give gas freely tonight and compensate by charging for service.

UNHAPPY with city business taxation, service station operator Victor Williams, defeated CCF candidate in last federal election, said today he will fight for a seat on city council next year.

VICTORIA OPINION POLL

Traffic, Parking Top City Problem

By BEN W. CROW
Western Surveys-Research Ltd.

Successful candidates in this year's civic elections will have numerous problems to hold their attention during their terms of office.

Crow

But, to the people—the electorate — there are only about a dozen major problems facing the Greater Victoria area.

These dozen, however, are expressed in general terms, and are very big indeed.

In a poll of 100 representative Greater Victoria men and women "traffic and parking" was mentioned most frequently as a major problem. The Roundabout, traffic control and signalling systems were singled out by some respondents.

JOBLESS WORRY

Runner-up in the survey was "unemployment." According to one man: "If the city has plenty of employment to offer citizens, there are no troubles."

Here is the question, with replies classified:

"IN YOUR OPINION, WHAT ARE THE MOST IMPORTANT PROBLEMS FACING GREATER VICTORIA AT THIS TIME?"

	Respondents
1. Traffic and parking	30
2. Unemployment	21
3. Juvenile delinquency, youth training, youth recreational facilities	10
4. Public works projects	9
5. Education, schools and costs	5
6. Civic auditorium	4
7. Taxation	4
8. Civic administration	4
9. Developing industries	4
10. Miscellaneous	4
11. None, or "Don't Konw"	19
	114*

*More than 100, because some people mentioned more than one major problem.

The problem of juvenile delinquency and hoodlumism was mentioned as a top problem by every 10th citizen. This is a much lower frequency than most larger cities. In Vancouver, for example, more than half the residents emphatically named delinquency as their city's most pressing problem.

Public works, which are in most need of attention, according to replies, are streets and roads; others are sewage and garbage disposal, demolition of old residential areas, improved public buildings, and the Gorge Waterway.

POOR CALIBRE

Respondents who classed civic administration as top problem expressed themselves like this:

"To get good, honest administration."

"Our very poor calibre of council."

"Amalgamation—the city should expand."

"The division of opinion between aldermen. They cannot get together on anything."

The lack of industry in Victoria, and the need for attracting industrialists, is paramount in some persons' opinions."

Miscellaneous suggestions were:

"A mental home for elderly people."

"Spending the centennial money."

"Town planning."

"Inflation."

BCHIS Official Back from Course

By PETER MURRAY

Back at his job this week after a two-and-a-half-year leave of absence is Lloyd F. Detwiller, assistant commissioner of the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

Mr. Detwiller left Victoria with his family in September, 1955, to attend the graduate course in hospital administration at the University of Minnesota.

After spending nine months in Minneapolis, he moved to Los Angeles to serve his residency as assistant administrator of the new medical centre of the University of California.

Now he's glad to be back in smog-free Victoria. Mr. and Mrs. Detwiller and their two children are living again in the home he built at 3280 Beach Drive.

Mr. Detwiller is a graduate of economics from the University of B.C., joining the government in the department of finance in 1946 and helping to set up the collection system for the new sales tax.

He took over direction of hospital insurance in 1950. Four years later when premiums gave way to sales tax financing, Donald M. Cox, an expert in hospital administration, took over as commissioner.

Mr. Detwiller has returned from his studies in the U.S. convinced that B.C. has an excellent hospital care program.

"It makes you realize what wonderful protection it is not to worry about hospital bills," he says.

California has just taken its first cautious step toward government hospital insurance, but most states are far behind us.

TO SHOOT OR NOT TO SHOOT . . .

Controversial Issue Unites Island's Family of Hunters

By DOUG PEDEN

It usually takes trouble to unite a big family into a strong group.

The Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association, which often holds meetings before a skeleton turnout of members, had a standing-room crowd at a general meeting at Liberal Headquarters, Tuesday night, because a large portion of the hunting fraternity believes the Vancouver Island deer population is in danger.

Main topic of discussion was antlerless deer seasons, which are bitterly opposed by a large portion of Island hunters. Many of the sportsmen who attended the session were there to voice their protests against the policy of shooting does and fawns during the last two weeks of the regular deer season.

Others came to hear the pros and cons of the controversial policy. All were interested in the future of Island deer herds.

Central figure in the discussion was regional game biologist Don Robinson, of Nanaimo, who faced a barrage of questions for almost two hours.

NEVER WAVERED

Robinson never wavered in defence of the Game Branch policy of any-sex deer seasons and by the time the meeting was over, appeared to have convinced a few sportsmen that the system would give more consistent hunting over the years rather than the natural cycles of high and low deer populations.

But most of those opposing the policy are still unshaken in their belief that shooting does and fawns is a threat to continued good hunting.

Main speaker for the opposition was Fred Morris, president of the Salt Spring Island Rod and Gun Club, which has launched a formal protest with the Department of Recreation and Conservation.

"There was a terrific number of deer shot on Salt Spring Island this season," said Morris, "and 75% were does and fawns."

He said residents of the Island had found fawns wandering around helplessly after their mothers had been shot.

"There has always been good hunting on the Island," Morris said. "Very shortly there won't be any hunting because there won't be any deer."

"Unless the shooting of does is stopped, half the Island will be posted," he warned. "The shooting of does and leaving fawns is practically murder.

"What we want to know," he said, "is why is there a doe season? And we want it stopped."

In his reply, Robinson said, "The only difference between Fred and me is in interpretation.

"At this time of year, does and fawns should be in their best condition. But all except one of the fawns we checked at Salt Spring on the last weekend of the season showed signs of malnutrition. All were very small and bone growth had stopped at approximately 90 days.

"All were heavily loaded with lice, flies and internal parasites, a sign of unhealthy deer. Where nutrition is low, deer are susceptible to disease and parasites."

"I assure you the small size of fawns had nothing to do with losing their mothers a week or 10 days before."

Later, Robinson said that a greater percentage of does was counted in the Salt Spring kill this season than is normal for Vancouver Island, but added that harvesting of antlerless deer has never been shown to be a major factor in killing off herds and that over-population has often been a cause of depletion.

"Logging is the key factor in deer hunting," Robinson said.

New systems of logging has changed conditions in many areas, he pointed out. When huge valleys were cleared of timber, the new growth which followed helped build up large herds, which eventually declined as growing timber choked out much of the food plants and gave remaining deer excellent cover in which to hide.

Benefits of logging are not so apparent with the present system of patch logging, he said, but the results would be steadier hunting over the years.

Despite the protests Robinson said "I believe we are only taking about 10% of the does and 5% of the fawns."

The biologist also said that "despite what we do, I am afraid the deer population on Vancouver Island will go down."

Asked what he would do if all game clubs opposed antlerless seasons, Robinson replied, "I have a responsibility to the deer as well as hunters and I will make recommendations to my bosses, and they will decide on the seasons."

FLORIDA-BOUND SUSIE DOESN'T BLAME WEATHER

It's not that Susan Butt finds fault with Victoria's weather, but the 19-year-old tennis whiz is packing her bags, and racquets, for a jaunt to Florida.

Susan will leave in about two weeks to compete in the winter tennis circuit.

The B.C. Association, the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association and the Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club are co-operating in providing finances for the trip.

Miss Butt will open the tour at the Dixie championships in Tampa, Fla., Dec. 30 and will go from there to St. Petersburg, Hollywood Beach and Fort Lauderdale. She might also play in later tournaments in Puerto Rico, Jamaica, Bermuda and the Eastern United States.

SHRINERS CONTEMPLATE CHANGES — COULTER OFFERED CO-ORDINATOR'S JOB

Early-Season Outing for All-Stars?

MONTREAL (BUP) — Jinxed by bad weather and lack of sound organization for the past three years, Shrine officials hope to reschedule the east-west game for July or August and have offered Tex Coulter the job of permanent co-ordinator, it was learned today.

However, neither question will be settled for several weeks.

Shrine officials are convinced there is a definite place for the benefit game in the structure of football and that it needs a thorough appraisal. In addition to rescheduling the game to benefit from warmer weather and greater fan interest and the appointment of a permanent supervisor, the Shriners are also considering changing the format of the show.

Instead of selecting all-star teams from the east and west, the thought now is to pit an all-star Canadian team against an all-star U.S. import squad, thereby getting away from the east-west rivalry which is the big attraction of the Grey Cup national championship game.

After three straight years of miserable weather and disappointing crowds, the Shriners are finally agreed the timing must be changed.

Coulter, the former all-American tackle at West Point and a pro great with the New York Giants and Montreal Alouettes, confirmed that Shrine officials had approached him about the job of permanent co-ordinator.

"They talked to me about it after the game last Saturday," Coulter said. "But the discussions were strictly exploratory and nothing definite was decided."

The hulking Coulter, now retired from football in favor of a sportswriting and cartooning career, joined the Shrine committee this year to help promote the game and primarily "to resell the players" on the idea of the game. Last year there was a feeling of dissatisfaction among some players but this year Coulter is convinced "we have resold the players on the game."

Raised in a Masonic home in Fort Worth, Tex., Coulter said he hadn't made up his mind about becoming permanently attached to the Shrine game, although he agreed there is need of one.

"I'm sure the game could be built into something big," he said, "but it will definitely have to be played earlier. I'm in favor of playing the game at night just before training season starts. My idea would be to call the players in early, say about 10 days before they are due to start training.

"I don't think there is any need to worry about injuries. There might be one or two but if there were, the players have their entire training season to recover," he added.

Tex also thinks that in time, "when the game is really established," that the money paid to the players might also be increased, thereby providing further incentive to the players. Currently the players on the winning team get $350 and the losers $250. An additional $200 goes to the winner of the Gordon Sturtridge Memorial Trophy as the outstanding player in the game.

Regardless of how sincere the Shriners may be about re-timing the game, they will almost certainly run into obstacles from the individual clubs. Coaches, ever fearful of losing a top-notch star for the entire season, will be wary about agreeing to a post-season game and would definitely reject any idea of holding the game during the season.

At the same time, the club owners, with an eye toward pre-season ticket sales, wince at the thought of potential revenue being siphoned off by such expensive attractions ($10 top) as the all-star game.

Busy Grind Ahead For Cougar Squad

Regals Shove Stamps Deeper Into Basement

Victoria Cougars and Calgary Stampeders have one thing in common. They both occupy the basement suite in their respective divisions of the Western Hockey League.

But while the Stamps skidded a bit deeper into the prairie division cellar when they dropped a 3-2 verdict to Saskatoon-St. Paul Regals Tuesday night, the Cougars hope to take another step up the coast division ladder at New Westminster tonight.

Cougars will be putting a four-game win streak on the line when they tackle the Royals but are trailing third-place Seattle Americans by 11 points as they start a rough schedule of four games in five nights.

Royals, who have taken over first place since losing to Cougars last Wednesday, will be shooting for the two points that will boost their lead to three points.

CAN BE BETTER

Victoria coach Pat Egan thinks the Cats should "do all right" in the next four games. "The boys are going well," he said this morning. "Not as well as I would like, of course, but they have a four-game winning streak and I can't argue with that."

Egan indicated he would make no changes in the combinations that have produced the win skein.

Stampeders condemned themselves to last place for at least another week by losing at Saskatoon Tuesday night as they dropped five points behind the Regals, who moved within four points of pace-setting Edmonton with their fourth straight triumph.

Even though Saskatoon-St. Paul now goes on a 10-day rest—their next game is a week from Friday—Calgary would need at least three games to catch up, and even if the Cowboys win, they won't have played that many games until a week Thursday.

Les Colwill, Ray Ross and Bill Bucyk each scored a goal for the Regals. Enio Sclisizzi and Chuck Blair accounted for the Calgary goals.

All the winners' goals came in the first period. Calgary battled back with two in the second but could not extend the shooting game into the scoreless third.

Lucien Dechene played a strong game in the Regals' goal but at the other end of the ice Al Rollins also was spectacular on several stops.

Calgary pulled Rollins for the last six seconds of the scoreless third period for a face-off in the Regals' zone, but time ran out on the Stampeders.

Moaner Ridicules Pre-Game Pacts

TORONTO (CP) — Ted (The Moaner) Reeve, who has played, coached and written about football for more than 25 years, ridicules the idea of all-star team coaches making pre-game agreements on basic defences to be employed.

"If you prefer to confab beforehand and endeavor to put in some clever capers by agreement, let us know ahead of time so we can all stay home," the Toronto Telegram sports columnist wrote Tuesday.

Reeve's views were prompted by reports from Montreal last weekend that coaches of Saturday's east-west Shrine game had agreed not to "shoot" linebackers. During the game Wayne Robinson, assistant coach of the west, accused coach Jim Trimble of the eastern club of violating their pre-game agreement.

Reeve referred to news reports from Montreal that said cause of the bitterness was a prearranged agreement covering basic defence each team would use.

Saturday's controversy centred around "blitzing," one of numerous football terms for a defence that sends linebackers crashing through the attacking line to smother a play before it can get underway.

For three years of all-star competitions, coaches have agreed not to use this defence, in deference to the game's spectator appeal.

Reeve's column continued: "Next year at the Shrine game . . . or any Canadian football game for that matter . . . let's all get together and dream up some more dandy new rules. Like when one team punts the ball, no one on the kicker's side shall leave the line of scrimmage until the ball is caught, thereby giving the receiver a great big hippety-hop-to-the-barber-shop start for the runback so the spectators (especially the spectators who are rooting for the kicker's team) will enjoy the match to the full.

WAVE A DOILY

"When a forward passer, especially a peachy passer like Frankie Tripucka, inends to throw he will signify his intention to the opposition by waving a doily in the air so that all the kiddies on the defensive line or secondary shall play 'freeze' (no hitching now, Mabel, or we will ask you to turn in your middy), and thus the six eligible receivers can romp downfield . . ."

He suggested the fans have their ways of enjoying the strategy, the good defensive plays, the situations being built up and other little issues without needing any help from the hired coaches on what new rules to use "in deference to the game's spectator appeal."

Pasadena Bowl Interests Walt

LOS ANGELES (UP) — The Dodgers are "interested" in the Rose Bowl as a temporary site for 1958 baseball games, but president Walter O'Malley made it clear today that no definite decision has been reached on where the club will play next season.

O'Malley conferred Tuesday with Los Angeles Mayor Norris Poulson and other city officials on the steps necessary to convert the Memorial Coliseum to a baseball park for next year. Dodger officials have indicated they don't believe Wrigley Field here is big enough to accommodate anticipated large crowds.

The Dodger executive toured the Rose Bowl, in nearby Pasadena, with New York co-owner Del Webb on Saturday. The Bowl Field, like the Coliseum, is used primarily for football, but could be modified for baseball. Each stadium holds about 100,000 for the grid sport and conceivably could be adapted to seat at least half that number for baseball.

O'Malley confirmed that the National League club has not formally indicated its interest in the Rose Bowl to Pasadena officials.

He said "everyone ought to know we are interested, but when developments justify a formal contract with the city, we will announce that we have talked to them."

Lions Sign Wilson To New Contract

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Lions of the National Football League have signed George Wilson to a new one-year contract as head coach.

Wilson took over as head coach of the Lions two nights before their first exhibition game of the season.

The Lions are tied with San Francisco and Baltimore for the western division lead with a 7-4 record.

Totems Didn't Stand Around for This One

Victoria High School Totems Tuesday night flashed some of the ability that coach Porky Andrews hopes will carry them into the annual Vancouver Island basketball championship tournament later this season.

Totems hit their best form of the season at HMCS Naden as they racked up their fifth successive victory by whipping a Navy squad, 58-38.

Although giving away height to the Sailors, Totems grabbed the majority of rebounds and dropped baskets from all angles to hold a decided edge all the way.

They were in front by seven points at the half and then outscored Navy, 35-20, in the second session.

Daryl Lorimer dropped in 16 points for the Totems and Robin Barnes added nine. For the Sailors, it was Fred Matthews setting the pace with eight points and Bob Peden next in line with five.

Scorers:

LEADING FIGHTERS — HONORED BY WRITERS

Prize Plums Passed Out

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Dempsey and Carmen Basilio, two bright names in boxing, will receive the sport's top awards for 1957.

Dempsey was voted the James J. Walker Memorial Award for "long and meritorious service" by the Boxing Writers Association at its meeting Tuesday. Basilio was named winner of the Edward J. Neil Memorial Plaque as "Fighter of the Year."

The two will accept the honors Jan. 14 at the association's annual New York dinner.

Dempsey, now 62, held the heavyweight title from 1919 to 1926. Winner of the first Neil award in 1938, Dempsey has been active in the sport as a referee, promoter and sponsor of many heavyweights.

Basilio, who moved from welter crown to the middleweight title by winning a split decision over Sugar Ray Robinson last September, is one of the most popular fighters in the ring.

The 30-year-old New York state onion farmer is the first boxer to win the Neil trophy twice. He was first honored in 1955 after he won the welter crown from Tony DeMarco.

The Neil trophy, boxing's most prized award, is presented to the fighter of the year or the man who did the most to advance the sport during the year. It is named in memory of the former Associated Press boxing writer killed in 1938 while serving as a war correspondent in Spain.

The Walker award was won in 1956 by Frank Graham, veteran sports writer of the New York Journal American, and the Neil Plaque went to heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson.

OUTDOOR REPORT BY Doug Peden

Anyone who thought the men who run the department of recreation and conservation would be irked by the surge of protests over antlerless deer seasons doesn't know the department's deputy minister, Dr. Dave Turner.

Most of the sportsmen who attended the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association meeting at Liberal Hall last night arrived with the hope of seeing the start of a campaign that would eventually signal the end of the short any-sex deer seasons that have been allowed during the last four years.

Many were bitterly opposed to the deer-management policy of the department's game branch. Yet, Dr. Turner was eagerly looking forward to the discussions.

"We're very pleased about this," he said as he looked over the crowded hall. "It shows how much people are interested in the future of our game resources.

"We believe we are on the right track in our game-management program, but if anyone can show us where we are wrong, we are ready to make changes. And we'll investigate any trouble spots, just as we are doing now at Salt Spring Island.

"What some people don't seem to understand is that our biologists spend many years learning the profession of game management. If we are not going to accept the training and experience of professional men, how can we have confidence in teachers and doctors?"

All Biologists Have Local Experience

Dr. Turner chuckled at the mention of reports that his biologists were not acquainted with conditions of 10 years ago and that they didn't know anything about hunting.

"They were hunting and travelling the B.C. woods then," he said. "They have all had much local experience and all have attended the University of British Columbia, which is recognized as one of the best game schools on the continent.

"We are lucky to have the high grade of biologists that we have in this province. Many lures have been extended to try and take them away from us."

Don Robinson, the regional biologist who works on Vancouver Island, should certainly be acquainted with conditions over the past 15 years.

Born and raised in Nanaimo, he was an eager hunter before he started his six years' training at UBC and still hunts when he can get time away from his work during the shooting season.

"There was a time when I believed in bucks-only regulations, high cougar bounties and short seasons," Don says. "But I have learned, as I hope all hunters eventually will, that shooting isn't the biggest danger to our deer herds.

"Nutrition is the key. Give them the right kind of food and enough cover and we'll always have deer.

Job to Provide Best Hunting Available

"Some hunters seem to think that I am trying to have as many deer killed as possible. Actually, my job is to make sure the best hunting is available.

"The time may come when I'll recommend shorter seasons and smaller bag limits. But right now, we have the deer and should harvest a good portion of the crop. Shooting antlerless animals allows more hunters to take more deer and, under present conditions, isn't depleting our basic supply."

Charlie Guiquet, who does his biological work for the Provincial Museum, has hunted extensively since arriving in B.C. from Saskatchewan more than two decades ago, and doesn't think his failure to knock over a deer his last two times out was due to any-sex seasons.

"It doesn't take much hunting pressure before these blacktails get smart," he said. "They don't like to get shot at.

"When they've been chased a bit, they stay in the thickets. They become nocturnal and don't stand around in the open except in really rough weather.

"We still have lots of deer and shooting does and fawns late in November isn't going to make much difference. More deer can be expected to die this winter than were shot during the hunting season."

* * *

But the opponents to antlerless seasons also have some good arguments and certainly have the right to their beliefs.

The best place to get backing for ideas on game management is through organized game clubs. If enough sportsmen unite in protest against any-sex seasons, the department of recreation and conservation will have to listen.

As Dr. Turner says, "We recognize the training and ability of biologists, but we are always ready to meet the people of B.C. half way."

BUT AMATEURS OKAY

Pro Bigwigs Say Feeling is Mutual

MONTREAL (CP)—Moscow Selects have left for home with the impression that Canadian professional hockey is "ruthless" and Frank Selke Jr., publicity manager of the Montreal Forum, says he's glad they've gone.

The Selects completed an eight-game exhibition tour of Ontario and Quebec last week and watched several National Hockey League games during their Canadian visit.

Their views published Tuesday in the Soviet News Bulletin issued by the Russian Embassy in Ottawa are highly complimentary to Canadian amateur hockey but harsh toward professional play.

RUTHLESS CHARACTER

"Professional hockey," the report says, "ceases to be a means of strengthening a man's health and it's not accidental that the games of professional hockey players have a ruthless character. Very often the hockey players resort to means that inflict pain on their opponents."

Said Selke, Jr., son of the general manager of Montreal Canadiens: "I'm very glad they've gone back to Russia—I'd rather not say any more, really."

(The fact that the Russians beat Ottawa Canadiens, a junior team sponsored by Montreal, 7-2 and 10-1, may or may not have anything to do with Selke's statements.)

In Toronto, Stafford Smythe, chairman of the circle of seven who governs the affairs of the National Hockey League Maple Leafs, said:

"Pro hockey is to prove who are the best players in the world . . . this isn't a friendly game of golf."

"I can't find anything wrong with our rules. They make the game a fair judge of a man's ability. I think our rules, if properly administered, show both the good little man and the good big man can survive."

The Russians said they prefer amateur hockey to professional hockey although they were "envious" of the pros' skill. The Selects witnessed NHL action as spectators. In competition against Canadian amateur teams, the Russians won five games while losing two and tying one.

They didn't like the fighting that sometimes marks professional games.

Canadian coaches were praised for their ability "to bring up universal players, that is, players who are equally good at any position on the team."

The Russians even had a kind word for the referees. "The highly qualified and objective judgment of Canadian referees facilitated the success of these competitions in no small degree."

All Not Lost As Long As Underdogs Breathe

By The Canadian Press

The underdogs were the victors in three upsets in B.C. interior hockey action Tuesday night.

In the Okanagan Senior League, last-place Penticton V's came up with a surprise 7-4 win over the leading Kelowna Packers while third-place Vernon Canadians defeated Kamloops Chiefs, 6-2.

In the Western International League, Rossland Warriors showed they may still be a threat to the leaders with a 7-3 win over Nelson Maple Leafs. The victory put Rossland only two points behind Nelson, which occupies second place behind Spokane Flyers.

Vernon scored three unanswered goals in a 42-second burst in the second period to take a mortgage on the game against Kamloops. Frank King scored two for Vernon, with singles going to Sherman Blair, Jim Moro, Walt Trentini and Merv Bidowski. Bill Hryciuk and Bob Dawes got Kamloops' goals, both in the second period.

Penticton leftwinger Walt Peacosh scored three to lead his team to victory, while Eddie Diachuk, Jack Taggart, Bob Harper and Hal Tarala nabbed one each. Mike Durban, Brian Roche, Jim Middleton and Ray Powell scored for Kelowna.

Centreman Harold Jones paced Rossland with two goals and the line of Leo Luchini, Alex Birulow and Norm Lenardon, along with teammates Ray Demore and Bud Andrews, all added singles. Captain Don Appleton of the Maple Leafs got a pair of markers while his rightwinger Lionel Martini added the other.

Dodgers Reject Offer for Royals

MONTREAL (BUP) — President Emile (Butch) Bouchard of the Montreal Royals has announced that his bid to buy the International League baseball club has been turned down by the parent Los Angeles Dodgers.

Speaking on his return from the minor baseball leagues' meeting in Colorado Springs, Colo., the former Montreal Canadiens' defenceman said Dodger vice-president Buzzie Bavasi told him president Walter O'Malley wasn't interested in selling the Montreal franchise this year unless an offer so high he couldn't turn it down was made.

Bouchard, who heads a group that would like to buy the Royals, said he learned from an unofficial source that a Montreal brewery has the same hopes.

New Roughies Coach Won't Be Trafton

REGINA, Sask. (BUP)—Sam Taylor, vice-president of the Saskatchewan Roughriders says the team will name its new head coach before Christmas.

Taylor refuted rumors that Carl Voyles, former Hamilton head coach and George Trafton, one-time Winnipeg chief, were in line for the post.

Voyles has not applied, he said, and "We wouldn't want Trafton."

Taylor said the club executive had trimmed the list of eligible coaches down to four. A dozen applications were received for the position left vacant when Frank Filchock was fired Nov. 7.

ONE VOTE FOR SALLY ROGERS

Middle Road, Says Toe Best for Fast Travel

By Canadian Press

Montreal Canadiens find a middle road the fastest way to the top of the National Hockey League.

Montreal opened a seven-point gap over New York Rangers last week and appear well on the way to their second title in three years.

Reason for the success, coach Toe Blake insists, is Canadiens' strength down the centre.

Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard and Jean Beliveau, centres on the first two lines, are numbers one and two in individual scoring. Goalie Jacques Plante's 2.00 goals-against average leads the netminders.

It's this strength through the middle, Blake says, which will lead the club not only to the league title but to a third straight Stanley Cup.

BOOSTS TOTAL

Richard, 21, who in two previous seasons upped his NHL points total to 54 from 40, already has 33 points on a league-leading 14 goals and 19 assists.

Beliveau, who won the league scoring title two years ago, is one point behind with 12 goals and 20 assists, most in the league. Beliveau has come along quickly after a slow start. He was hampered by the loss of high-scoring linemate Bernie Geoffrion, ill and injured, and an even slower start by the line's third member, Bert Olmstead. Now all three are firing away at a fast rate.

The Pocket Rocket started out centring the league's hottest line, with brother Maurice and Dickie Moore firing goals at a near goal-a-game pace.

SUFFERED SLUMP

Maurice suffered a cut Achilles' tendon 11 games ago and is not expected back until the new year. The Pocket was out for a couple of games and Moore, switched to right wing, found things uncomfortable. The result was a slump.

But then Marcel Bonin, filling in at left wing, came up with some fine performances, Moore found himself, and the Pocket zipped off to another scoring spree. The support is wonderful, Blake says, but it's the centre strength that is the key.

League action resumes Thursday. New York is at Montreal and Boston plays Detroit Red Wings in Detroit. There were no games Tuesday night.

Horton Sets Pace As Tillicums Gain

With Neil Horton leading the way with a break of 42, the highest registered this season, Tillicums added to their Inter-Club Snooker League lead last week by defeating Pro Pats, 8-4.

Old Toy Repairmen Still Need More Raw Material for Yule Joy

Hundreds of repaired toys are ready for distribution, but the Cosmopolitan Club needs more to make sure that more than 500 families hear the squeals of delighted children at Christmas.

Person wishing to donate old toys should call Contract Van, 851 Balmoral, at 3-9031, or leave donations at the Oak Bay Lockers, 2055 Oak Bay Avenue.

Twenty club members already have fixed up about 80 large toys such as bikes, wagons, tricycles and doll carriages and scores of smaller toys, ready for turning over to the Christmas Bureau in Victoria.

Yuletide Demands Extra Fire Care

Seasonal crop of needless fires, injury and asphyxiation can be avoided by following simple steps in setting up Christmas decorations.

Fire departments and protection associations across the country join annually in warning the festive season is a time to be extra careful.

Many fires result from the extra hazards existing only during the holiday season and from carelessness not tolerated at any other time.

For example, a holocaust is caused when a smoker flicks the head of a match with his thumb and a nearby Christmas tree goes up in flames; an overheated electric train used in a decorative motif causes a hotel fire; a faulty electric cord touches off all combustible decorations around a Christmas tree.

Simple Rules to Follow

Tragedy and expense can be averted by following simple rules for a fire-safe Christmas:

1. Cut a growing tree or buy one that is fresh; store it in water or snow until just before Christmas, then remove it from the house immediately afterward.
2. Just before setting up the tree, cut the bottom of the trunk at an angle and set in stand with water level above the cut.
3. See that the tree is well-supported, free from danger of falling, open flame or heat, and in a place where it will not block traffic, upright or fallen.
4. Never use candles on the tree.
5. Use reliable electrical lighting with UL (Underwriters' Laboratories) label; check for frayed wires, loose connections and broken sockets.
6. Do not over-fuse wiring; 15 amp. maximum.
7. Never leave lighting on while house is unattended.
8. Let no Christmas wrappings accumulate indoors.
9. Use non-combustible decorations and flame proof otherwise combustible decorations.
10. Use caution with electrical and spirit-fuel toys.
11. No smoking near trees or piles of wrapping; have plenty of safe ashtrays on hand; likewise screen open fireplace well.
12. Keep all matches, candles, lighters and other troublemakers away from tiny hands; have workable extinguishers, buckets of water or even connected garden hose within easy reach of tree — and if fire breaks out, know what to do first, that is, get everyone out, call firemen, then try to fight it if possible.

NEED EXTRA CARE

Fire precautions for public places should be extra-stringent during the holiday season.

Smoking and flammable decorations are a bad combination: neither should be allowed.

Exits should be clearly marked and readily accessible, aisles clear, sprinkler equipment in order, fire alarms ready to operate.

Use of wax candles at church candlelight services should be discouraged — electric candles are as effective and much safer.

In Victoria the Fire Prevention By-law says: "In all places of public assembly, all combustible decorative materials shall be rendered flameproof."

Expansion Marks Further Growth Of Standard Furniture

Established in 1911 by the late Arthur S. Denny, the Standard Furniture Company has shown continued growth over the years. On Thursday the next extension will take place. At that time the Appliance Department which occupied the Lower Main Floor in the present building will be moved to a new and larger location approximately next door. At the same time the entire basement will be taken over by the Chesterfield and Upholstery Department, which will give two complete floors of upholstered goods. This, without question, will make the largest single display of upholstered goods on Vancouver Island and also provide street-level access for the Appliance Department together with a very large TV Salon being established in the Lower Main Floor of the new location.

Health Board Budget Shows $7,000 Boost

Victoria - Esquimalt Health Board estimates, totalling $119,-772 for 1958, were submitted Tuesday by medical health officer Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffy.

The budget is increased almost $7,000 over 1957 and it was indicated other expenditures may be added to the proposed list before the estimates are adopted in the spring.

Dr. Mahaffy said the increase was due to salary adjustments according to scales adopted in previous years.

A major addition might be the appointment of a full-time assistant medical health officer. At present Dr. Mahaffy is assisted in school health examinations by two practising physicians who each work about about six hours a week for the health board.

It was proposed by the board Monday that an assistant MHO be acquired who would also act as public health educator. This has also been a part time vocation in the recent past. The position has been vacant for some time.

Dr. Mahaffy reported it is difficult to obtain candidates for the position due to a low starting salary. The board recommended to the 1958 board that "a more realistic view" be taken in this regard.

Slide Costs $5.6 Million

VANCOUVER (CP) — A mountain rock slide which shut down production at the Aluminum Co. of Canada plant in Kitimat, B.C., will cause a loss in production amounting to about $5,600,000, a company spokesman estimated Tuesday.

Works manager G. H. Gwyn said workmen started Tuesday putting up temporary power lines and "we expect to have the first potline ready to take power by the weekend."

"Smelter operations could resume two weeks after power is fully restored."

Normal production was estimated at 500 tons a day, with the present Canadian market price at about $560 a ton. Including the time since the slide hit on Kildalla Pass last Saturday, the plant is expected to be producing no ingots for about 20 days.

Kildalla Pass is half way to the power source at Kemano, 50 miles east of Kitimat, which is 400 miles northwest of here.

Potlines which "froze up" after the power failure are not expected to be cleaned until the weekend. It will take up to two weeks to get the various production stages rolling again after that.

RCAF Control Units' Role Remains Same

Role of RCAF auxiliary aircraft control and warning squadrons remains unchanged in spite of federal re-appraisal of Canada's armed forces, Victoria 2455 AC and W Squadron was told Monday.

Commanding officer S/L R. D. Higgins spoke to 150 officers and men of the unit and said, "changes in government policy affecting other service reserves are not applicable to the RCAF auxiliary squadrons of our type.

"The squadron's role will remain unchanged. We will continue to train fighter controllers and fighter control operators and the trades that support them.

"However, training demands and requirements are going to be tightened even more.

"The squadron will keep only top grade personnel trained to their maximum efficiency," he said.

Those who fail to pass the required series of examinations will be released at once, as will those whose parade attendance is below requirements, members were told.

Child Dies

VANCOUVER — Catherine Lockett, 6, who darted from between two cars Tuesday into the path of another vehicle, became Vancouver's 31st traffic fatality. The child was playing with a friend when the accident happened. She died later in hospital.

Overhead Exhausts Ruled Out by Inspector

Exhaust gases from trucks, buses and private cars in Victoria need never be a source of worry, city smoke inspector Thomas Walker told Victoria-Esquimalt Union Board of Health, Tuesday.

The board had asked Mr. Walker to speak on the proposal that all heavy buses and trucks should be required to install overhead exhausts.

Mr. Walker said while there is little health hazard locally, there is no practical solution to offensive odors contained in exhausts.

Buses use a heavier fuel, which is not as well refined as car fuels, but the latter are more detrimental, he said. Bus carburetors are more closely adjusted and they are driven by more experienced people.

"If exhausts were carried overhead on buses and trucks it would be discriminating against them unless we did the same to automobiles. I take it the only solution is to do away with the internal combustion engine," said Ald. Austin Curtis.

"Bus exhausts may not be injurious but they are nauseating," said school trustee Richard Reeve.

The board proposed no action be taken on the matter at the present time.

No Basis for Fear Says Bank President

TORONTO (CP)—There is no basis for the fear of a major depression at this time, A. C. Ashforth, president of the Toronto-Dominion Bank, said today at the banks annual meeting.

"The evidence suggests that at the worst we are faced with a brief period of consolidation when some of the distortions, resulting from inflationary attitudes to costs and prices, will be eliminated," he said.

"Once we have achieved that, the economy should again expand on a sound and healthy basis, though perhaps not at the spectacular rate of the last few years."

Mr. Ashforth's comments were contained in a text made available to the press in advance of delivery.

The capital investment program in 1958 will be about the same as this year, Mr. Ashforth said. Many large projects such as the St. Lawrence Seaway and the Trans-Canada natural gas pipeline were still unfinished and subsidiary projects were likely to develop.

Some export industries have been adversely affected by declining prices and decrease in demand but the flow of capital into development of industrial raw materials now was paying dividends. In the current year there had been a sharp drop in wheat and flour exports and a significant reduction in some other items but these declines had been offset by increases in other exports.

Mr. Ashforth suggested serious study towards finding a solution for exporters' long-term credit problems. One solution might be to make rediscount facilities available to the chartered banks in respect to long-term export credits, or have the government or Bank of Canada do the necessary financing.

Canada could be adversely affected by any drop in business activity in the United States, but this did not appear to be in prospect.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Stocks Up and Down For Net Loss on Day

Market graphs showed a wavery line in Canada and on Wall Street today. At Toronto the day started in the doldrums but rallied briefly around noon.

Prices dropped again when trading was resumed in the afternoon, industrials being markedly lower.

Metals and western oils averaged three losses for every gain but in most cases the differences were fractional.

AT TORONTO after a brief rally at noon, prices again turned downward today in light mid-afternoon trading.

The market opened lower and gradually weakened for the rest of the morning but during the noon hour many stocks rallied from their lows. The upward swing, however, was short-lived and prices again sagged, especially among industrials.

Industrial losses outnumbered gains about three-to-two but utilities had a three-to-one edge on the downside. Most losses were fractional. Gains were scattered.

Base metals, uraniums, coppers and western oils had three declines for each advance but in most cases the losses were narrow. High-priced mines, however, had losses ranging to 2½ points.

AT MONTREAL prices were lower in light early afternoon trading today on the Montreal and Canadian exchanges.

Base metals showed the most movement.

In utilities, Union Gas was down 2 points at 69 and B.C. Power ¾ at 38.

In the producing metal mines on the Canadian exchange, Campbell Chib was off 10 cents at 5.10, Opemiska copper off 15 cents at 6.60 and Hollinger off ¼ at 22.

Industrial volume was 24,100 shares; mines and oils 213,000.

AT NEW YORK steels, some motors and rail shares continued to drift to 1957 lows today as the market declined again. Trading was fairly quiet.

Losses of key stocks were from fractions to a point with a few exceeding this range.

News of auto industry cutbacks, lower world copper prices and pessimistic published statements backgrounded the decline.

Losers of fractions to around a point included Gulf Oil.

Canadian gainers on the American Exchange included Jupiter Oils, up 1/16. Preston East Dome lost ⅛ and Shawinigan was down ⅜.

AT LONDON the market continued quiet today with the bank rate tribunal hearings and the British Petroleum issue still the major restrictive influences.

Gilt-edged securities were firmer. Among foreigners, Greek issues were firmer but other foreign bonds were dull. There was a general marking-down of dollar securities after the overnight decline in Wall Street but one or two Canadian issues were slightly above the lowest. Canadian Pacifics were slightly better.

Stores were firm on Christmas spending, steels were steadier but engineering shares were unsettled. Oils were higher on balance.

AT VANCOUVER prices dropped slightly on a quiet market during the forenoon. Peace River Pete sold 2,400 at 40. Vantor moved 1,700 at $1.25. Mid West Copper traded 6,500 at 10. Trojan moved 9,000 at 19.

Syndicate Bids $9,000,000 On School Bonds

A syndicate headed by A. E. Ames and Co. was the successful bidder Tuesday for $9,000,000 in government-guaranteed school bonds.

Premier and Finance Minister W. A. C. Bennett, acting as fiscal agent at the request of the various boards of school trustees throughout the province, said 31 investment and banking houses competed for the bonds.

The successful bidder comprises, besides A. E. Ames and Co., Dominion Securities Corporation Ltd., Wood Gundy and Company Ltd., the Canadian Bank of Commerce and the Royal Bank of Canada.

The bonds are 4½ per cent serial debentures maturing annually over a period of 20 years.

The Ames and Co. bid was 97.461 for each $100 par value.

Included in the bonds are $800,000 for school district 61, Greater Victoria, and $136,000 for district 63, Saanich. The money is for capital expenditures.

Burchell Lake Sales Halted At Toronto

TORONTO (BUP)—The Toronto Stock Exchange has suspended trading in the shares of Burchell Lake Mines Ltd.

The exchange gave the same reason it had given for three other suspensions during the last few months: The action was taken "in the interests of the public and for the protection of investors pending completion . . . of an investigation into the affairs of the company."

Burchell Lake stock sold at a high of 85 cents in heavy trading early this year and its low was 15 cents. It was quoted at 20 cents a share on Monday but after the suspension, the stock was said to be trading on the over-the-counter market at five cents.

A few weeks ago, a financial statement from the firm listed its current assets on May 31, 1957, as $528,019 and its current liabilities as $11,711.

The company was sold several weeks ago to a group of unidentified New York financiers.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP)—Moderately active trade appeared today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Flax held most of the interest.

Offerings in flax were liberal and in the form of hedges and commission house selling. Buying on recessions was credited to international accounts and other interests. Prices were irregular.

Oats and barley had domestic trade with some American buying in both. Prices moved narrowly. Rye prices were easier. American interest appeared but was light.

Trade reports indicated a cargo of barley and other small quantities were sold to Japan. The action was not reflected in trade. Three cargoes of wheat also were reported sold to Japan along with a moderate amount of wheat to Norway.

Overnight export loadings of Canadian wheat included: the United Kingdom 720,000 bushels, West Germany 610,000, The Netherlands 525,000, India 355,000, Japan 315,000, and Austria 380,000.

Lakehead prices for Class two, IWA and domestic wheat were all up one-half cent from Tuesday.

CHICAGO (AP)—Bread grains and soybeans dipped sharply in active trading on the Board of Trade today.

July and September wheat futures declined to lows for the season in a selloff that reflected general discouragement among the trade. Late in the session old crop wheat was off nearly three cents a bushel and the new crop months were down nearly two cents.

Rye followed the trend in wheat. Soybeans, the leader in Tuesday's liquidation, continued to decline, with prices at one time off more than a cent a bushel on all deliveries.

Wheat closed 1⅜ to 3⅛ lower, Dec. $2.18⅛, corn unchanged to ¾ higher, Dec. $1.16¾-⅞, oats ¼ to ⅜ lower, Dec. 65⅛, rye 1¾ to 3 lower, Dec. $1.33¼-½ and soybeans ½ to 2 lower, Jan. $2.27-26⅞.

British PM Hails Power from Sea

LONDON (UP)—A completely new source of power that can be taken from the sea was foreseen Tuesday night in a television address by Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

He said "controlled hydrogen experiments" indicate . . . a completely new source of power, the raw material of which will not have to be purchased at great expense from distant countries, but could be got out of the sea itself."

Macmillan predicted an industrial revolution that would create " a world as different from what we have now as even the nineteenth century was from the middle ages."

The prime minister did not elaborate on the scientific study on which he based his remarks on a new power source. He said "One of our experts had told him of experiments for the civilian use of the H-bomb."

AMPLE WARNING TO EMIGRANTS

LONDON (CP)—Canadian immigration authorities in London said today that Britons planning to emigrate are given "ample warning" of winter employment conditions in Canada.

They were commenting on a letter from a Vancouver woman to The Daily Telegraph saying it is "grossly misleading" for immigration authorities in Britain to continue giving the impression that immigrants will have no difficulty in finding work.

REES "GOLFER-OF-YEAR"

LONDON (UP)—Dai Rees, captain of the British Ryder Cup golf team which beat the United States for the first time since 1933 last October, has been voted "golfer of the year" by the British Association of Golf Writers.

Third Polio Shots Called Essential

Third doses of Salk anti-polio vaccine "are essential for protection," parents were warned today by Dr. A. N. Beattie, director of the Saanich and South Vancouver Island Health Unit.

He reported that "only half" of the children, between the ages of one and six, have been turning out for third shots scheduled for December.

WHERE TO GO

Clinics still to be held in the unit during December are: Dec. 12—Marigold, Langford; Dec. 16—Glasgow, Deep Cove; Dec. 18—Glanford, Gorge, Keating, Jordan River; Dec. 30—Sooke; and Dec. 31—Gordon Head, Songhees.

$1 Million Hotel

PRINCE GEORGE — A $1,000,000 hotel will be built here next year for a U.S. syndicate.

A spokesman for Robert Chuckrow Construction Company of New York said the U.S. group financing the project based its decision to build here on a survey of hotel needs made earlier this year by the CNR.

Ebenezer Elliott, English poet who died in 1849, was a successful iron merchant.

STUDENTS TO DESIGN HEALTH BOARD CREST

Students in Greater Victoria high and junior high schools will be asked to voluntarily submit designs for a Victoria-Esquimalt Union Board of Health crest.

It would be used on letterheads and other official documents.

Senior municipal inspector of schools told the board Tuesday, due to approaching exams, it is likely the project will not begin until the new year. The board adopted the idea of asking assistance of school children at a previous meeting. Designer of the chosen crest will be appropriately honored.

Hardships to Come Indonesians Warned

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—President Sukarno today warned the Indonesian people that they face many hardships as a result of the campaign to win west New Guinea by forcing Dutch citizens and business out of Indonesia.

In his first public appearance since the attempt Nov. 30 to assassinate him, Sukarno said, "We will face a shortage of food and clothing in the future, but we must continue our revolutionary spirit."

"Too many of our diplomats and officials are putting too much hope in the United Nations for solution of the West Irian (New Guinea) issue," the president told a throng officially estimated at 100,000 in Surabaya, East Java.

"The solution of this issue lies here in Indonesia, not with Washington, The Hague or the United Nations. It is our domestic problem. It is an internal issue. We have to decide it here."

BRITONS IN INDONESIA GET WARNING TO LEAVE

A spokesman described the move as a "routine consular precaution in the circumstances."

Wurtele Scores Thomas 'Gloom'

Reeve Has No Time for Pessimists; Ex-Reeve Hits Administration Costs

Reeveship candidate A. I. Thomas was called a "messenger of gloom" Tuesday night for expressing "deep concern" over administration of Esquimalt.

Seventy persons attended the municipality's one and only election meeting in Esquimalt High School where Mr. Thomas cited "certain controversies in municipal hall" that "haven't brought too much favor on Esquimalt."

He mentioned the "fiasco" of the street-sweeper episode which saw one councillor demand the resignation of public works committee Coun. George Argyle, and "dissatisfaction" over beaches in the Kinver and Forshaw Roads area.

Mr. Thomas also said he was "amazed" at the high cost of administering the municipality.

"With the terrific amount of money coming into Esquimalt as revenue, we should be getting more for our tax dollar," he said.

A former reeve of Esquimalt, Mr. Thomas hit at council for refusing to present a referendum on amalgamation at Thursday's elections.

"It is only right that the people should have a chance to say whether or not they want a royal commission to study amalgamation," he said. "The problem is theirs and a referendum would let them decide what they want council to do."

Mr. Thomas said he had "no convictions" on the issue.

He was called a "messenger of gloom" by Reeve A. C. Wurtele, who said:

"I don't think this is a time for gloom in Esquimalt."

'Wonderful P ogress'—Wurtele

"The municipality has made wonderful progress in the last six years and has a wonderful community spirit."

Councillors have had differences in the past, "but we have resolved them," he said. "The highlight of this year has been the harmonious working of council."

The municipality itself is in a "happy and healthy financial state," he said.

First-time candidate for council Donald L. Douglas said he would work for improvements to Bullen and Saxe Point Parks preservation of "green spaces" for the recreation of elderly residents, improvement of the Fraser Street Community Hall and construction of fishing docks at Kinver Beach.

He also advocated a five-year planning program in public works and a "square deal for all concerned" in the matter of local improvements.

Councillor for four years before his defeat last December, candidate G. K. Sammon urged a "thorough investigation of all aspects relating to the merging of certain services" in Greater Victoria.

"This does not necessarily mean amalgamation," he said.

He approved council's deferment of the proposed referendum.

"A continuing study must be made," he said. "We must not be pressured or bulldozed into hasty action."

Coun. Arthur Fields, running for his second term, promised to "work towards a careful, businesslike administration."

"I will continue to promote improvements," he said.

Coun. Walter Holder, seeking his fourth term, turned a tentative thumbs-down on amalgamation.

"I am not for it at present," he said, "although it may come some day."

Retiring councillor George Argyle and other council members gave committee reports at the meeting.

SHE LIKES JOKE

'Only 101, Why All The Fuss?'

By JOHN MIKA

Mrs. Sarah Walton was "amazed at all the fuss" over her birthday Tuesday.

After all, she was only 101.

"And I don't particularly care for being 101," she said from her chair in the Aged Women's Home. "I didn't like being 100 either.

"I have a hard time remembering things any more and I can't hear too well. I don't understand why everyone wants to be 100; they wouldn't like it."

WORDS BELIED

But her clear, twinkling eyes belied her words as she joked with family and friends on the big day, surrounded by flowers and two birthday cakes.

Visiting her were daughter Mrs. T. E. Sullivan, Port Townsend, Wash., and son, Leonard Walton, Shelton, Wash.; numerous friends, reporters and radio men.

Mrs. Walton has one other living son, Charles, of Seattle, Wash. She survived her husband and two sons, one killed at Vimy Ridge during the First World War.

What does she think of the modern-day world?

"I don't like the younger generation. They aren't as good as the kids in my day. I like the old-fashioned kind of children that are well-behaved."

And she should know—with 15 grandchildren, 23 great-grandchildren and nine great-great-grandchildren.

Volcano in Eruption Reported by Vessel

NEW YORK (AP)—A ship at sea today reported sighting a new volcano in full eruption off the Azores.

The liner Independence, en route to North Africa, cabled its home office here that the new volcano was about 400 feet high and joined to the west end of Fayal Island by fresh lava.

Nuclear Ship Contract Signed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The contract for the construction of the first United States nuclear-powered merchant ship, the Savannah, was signed Tuesday by the government and representatives of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation of Camden, N.J. Construction is to get under way next year and the ship is to be in operation in 1960.

Indian Chief, Companion Killed; Wives Injured in Car Plunge

From CP Dispatches

ABBOTSFORD — An Indian chief and another man were killed Tuesday and their wives were seriously injured when their car plunged into a 20-foot ravine near this Fraser Valley community.

Dead are Sam Paul, 55, chief of the Skookumchuck Indian reserve, north of Harrison Lake, and Dennis Hunter, 35, of the same reserve.

Mrs. Paul and Mrs. Hunter were brought to hospital here with multiple injuries and shock.

OPPOSES PROJECT

VANCOUVER—A city aldermanic candidate has appealed to Premier Bennett to "step in" and stop Vancouver's maritime museum centennial project.

C. B. Balfour Jr., a Civic Voters' Association candidate for city council, urged the premier to "withhold" a provincial grant of $217,000 for the project "until a centennial plan which will be supported and accepted by the citizens of Vancouver is forthcoming."

MISHAP A BOON

FORT ST. JOHN — Interruptions of transportation along the Alaska highway have benefited some sections of the north's economy and are expected to boost retail trade here.

The temporary bridge which helped substitute for the broken Peace River bridge at Taylor, is now out of use. The result has been that 1,000,000 more feet of lumber were sold here in the first 11 months of the year than last year—mostly because fir and cedar imports have been unable to get through.

Light Touch Boosts Value of Satellite

VANCOUVER (CP) — An earth satellite could be used to turn night into day over part of the earth, says Dr. J. A. Jacobs of the University of British Columbia's physics department.

He said in a speech Tuesday a satellite sent up 25,000 miles could travel at the same speed at the earth turns, which would keep it stationary in relation to a fixed point on the earth's surface.

Chemicals on the satellite could be used to create or reflect about the same amount of light as the earth gets on a cloudy day.

★ CLASSIFIED BUSINESS TAX
The potential earning power of our barber shops, beauty parlors and many smaller stores is not as great as the potential earning power of banks, department stores, real estate offices, etc., therefore should be classified and receive reduced tax rates.

★ HOLD-THE-LINE POLICY ON PROPERTY TAXES
In Victoria there are more home owners on pensions and fixed incomes per capita than any other city in Canada. Any attempt to increase our debt, which would mean increased taxes, to build buildings which are desirable but not essential, will be strongly resisted.

MacLean-McCollum Wedding Vows in St. John's Church

Yellow and pink gladioli decorated St. John's Anglican Church for the recent wedding of Doreen Jeannette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. McCollum, Ormond Street, and Arthur Ralph MacLean, RCN, son of A. MacLean, Victoria, and Mrs. A. Hudson, Kamloops.

Canon George Biddle performed the ceremony. Frederick Chubb played the organ while soloist Mrs. H. Clatworthy sang "O Perfect Love."

A hoop-skirted dress of white net in a ballerina-length was worn by the bride. The strapless bodice was topped with a tiny net jacket with long sleeves. A shoulder-length veil misted from her star-shaped coronet and she carried a white Bible topped with red rosebuds.

Sisters of the bride, Miss Eleanor McCollum, as maid of honor, and Miss Kathy McCollum, bridesmaid, were dressed in similar dresses of yellow and green net, respectively. The gowns were in ballerina-length with hoop skirts and net jackets were worn over strapless bodices. Maid of honor carried a bouquet of white and mauve carnations and the bridesmaid's bouquet was of yellow carnations. Flower girls, little Sharon Kenny, Vancouver, and Sheila Hunter, Nanaimo, wore pink nylon frocks. They carried baskets of mauve, yellow and white carnations repeated in tiny bandeaux in their hair.

Best man was S. Stephenson, RCN, and ushering were Larry Brooks and Leo Baker, RCN.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the curling rink. The bridal table was centred with a three-tiered cake flanked with red roses. The room was decorated with bronze chrysanthemums.

A. Pearce proposed a toast to the bride.

For her honeymoon to the mainland the bride donned a two-piece green taffeta dress trimmed with black velvet. Her accessories were in white and she wore a corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. MacLean will live at 1122 Ormond Street on their return.

Observation Ward Bazaar Makes $400

First Christmas bazaar, arranged by the staff of the Observation Ward at Royal Jubilee Hospital, realized a sum of approximately $400.

Proceeds will be used to assist in buying a record player for the main floor with a loudspeaker system to reach around the ward.

The bazaar, held Wednesday afternoon and evening in the recreation room and the occupational therapy rooms drew many interested buyers. Miss Margaret Robertz, head of the ward, acted as hostess. Mrs. Douglas Kendall was in charge of arrangements. Staff nurses in their attractive uniforms assisted.

Home cooking, handicrafts, Christmas decorations and superfluities were sold from stalls decorated in the Yuletide motif. Afternoon tea was served from a table centred with an arrangement of red candles and greenery.

The occupational therapist, Miss Winifred Reay, assisted with tea arrangements.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Men! Penny Knows What 'She' Wants for Christmas

By PENNY SAVER

Attention my male readers! I saw you in the shops today anxiously fingering women's lacy handkerchiefs and sniffing perfume! I'm not going to laugh at you . . . oh no! It's sympathy you need when it comes to Christmas shopping for your very special woman. So she's been hinting for months about the latest French cologne that's in town or the set of diamonds that she'd "love to have!"

Come down to earth with a thud, sir, and take a look at your wallet! It's not heavy enough to sink to the bottom of your pants pocket is it?

Who needs a diamond necklace when a collar of pearls costs only 98 cents! I found a little collar that is completely made of pearls to wear with basic dresses or sweaters. Such a pretty item for "her" at such a pretty price.

* * *

How is your "Fair Lady" with the needle? Most women love to know they had a hand in the construction of their own garments. The answer? A felt skirt length. Almost any color can be found in the collection I saw today. Choose one that you like best on her, from five different applique patterns. The belt is included with the skirt. All for $7.95 at a little shop I visited.

* * *

If your woman has made it clear that she would like an umbrella for Christmas, appeal to her gayer moods, and give her a cocktail umbrella. Ah, I see you are mystified! A cocktail 'brella is just a little lighter in weight than others and is extremely dainty. Jeweled handles, tassels and frills make these umbrellas the tops in femininity. The price starts at $7.98!

* * *

For the lady on your list who is the "hostess with the mostest" the newly imported Italian glassware is simply magnificent. Each glass is tinted a different color. (Makes it easy at a party when you lose your glass). These glasses, with their delicate stems are very crystal like. A set of six costs $5.95.

* * *

I'll continue tomorrow on my Christmas shopping with the menfolk.

Meanwhile phone me at 2-3131 if you've got a question about saving pennies.

On Etiquette

How can a guest entertain?

Suppose I am visiting friends for a week or ten days and friends of my hostess entertain for me. Is it correct or necessary that I reciprocate by entertaining these friends before I leave? During the visit, is it correct to offer to contribute something for a picnic supper, such as some fruit or a cake? My hostess says no, but I think it is correct.

Louise Davis answers:

It isn't necessary for you to give a party for your hostess' friends, for you are actually a guest at all times during that visit and you are subject to your hostess' social schedule. Louise Davis However, if you feel that you would like to entertain with a luncheon at a restaurant or hotel, you could mention your desire to your hostess and ask her permission. It may take a little pleading, depending on your hostess who might consent when she realizes that you are sincere in really wanting to do it. But you shouldn't feel obligated. It is permissible to offer to contribute something for a picnic supper, but, there again, you are someone's guest and if your hospitable hostess puts her foot down, then give in.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Find an Answer to Your Query on Superfluous Hair

Today I am bringing you answers you can depend on concerning superfluous hair. I went to a top authority in New York City, to get them for you.

1. Does shaving make the hair grow in thicker?

No. There is absolutely no scientific evidence to support this misconception. You may think this happens because the hair ends are stubby and blunt instead of tapered when they grow out after being cut. Also an increased growth of hair may occur coincidentally because of a change in the glandular setup, but shaving does not make the hair grow in thicker.

2. What can you do about facial hair?

Scattered, coarse hairs can be removed with tweezers or permanently by electrolysis. The disadvantages of tweezing are the fact that it is temporary (the hair grows back) and you may also distort the follicle, thus making permanent removal later on more difficult.

The mustache or hair over the lip can be removed permanently by electrolysis if it is not too thick and too fine. Sometimes the latter is true. If so, you can bleach the hairs with peroxide or use cosmetic wax or a depilatory.

Women should keep the very fine downy facial hair which usually increases from middle age on. This hair is called the lanugo and gives the face a soft look. Nevertheless, most women feel that this is unattractive when it becomes noticeable and will not settle for keeping it.

If you feel this way about it, then you will have to remove it with cosmetic wax. This makes the skin look shiny and for this reason it is more attractive to leave the hair.

It is probably better to use cosmetic wax than a depilatory because the wax removes the whole hair while the depilatory dissolves it just to the surface of the skin. Then when the hair grows in it is stubby.

Many women have their brows shaped permanently by electrolysis. This and tweezing are the two methods for removing the stray hairs which spoil their line.

You can also have your hairline changed by electrolysis. Often a woman's hair grows so low on her forehead that it is most unbecoming. They can lift the hairline permanently. Many women who like to wear their hair pulled back from the sides of their face have the resulting sideburns done away with.

Family Hears Wedding Vows

A family wedding service in St. Aidan's United Church joined Helen Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. McChesney and James Geoffrey Appleby, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Appleby, Saturday.

A becoming princess gown of off-white boucle wool with low, rounded neckline and three-quarter sleeves was worn by the bride.

An off-the-face Piko hat in powder blue with matching shoes and gloves, jewelry of rhinestones and a corsage of red roses completed her ensemble.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Mrs. Ben Elwell, who chose a powder blue wool dress and off-the-face hat of black velvet trimmed with seed pearls. She wore matching accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

Best man was Barry Sharp.

Rev. A. I. Avery conducted the service and wedding music was played by Miss Margery Vaughan.

Reception was held at Strathcona Hotel, where toast to the bride was proposed by Charles Martin.

The three-tier wedding cake was flanked by ivory candles, pastel chrysanthemums and topped by a nosegay of roses.

For "going away" the bride donned a muskrat fur over her wedding ensemble.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY Mrs Dan Gerber (MOTHER OF 5)

Even the best-behaved babies feel the need to assert themselves from time to time. And why not? A baby is a human being, entitled to a few human quirks. If, for example, your well-regulated baby occasionally becomes an upstart about schedules . . . try to relax and let him have his way once in a while. By not forcing, chances are baby will come back to schedule of his own sweet accord. And probably be glad to get back to the security of routine.

Has baby tried the new, good-tasting Gerber Protein Cereal Food? It has a delightful toasted, nut-like flavor and a 35% protein content to help promote growth and muscle development. The high protein content is derived from oats, wheat, soybeans and yeast . . . carefully blended and thoroughly cooked for easy digestibility. For added nutritional benefits, Gerber Protein Cereal Food is fortified with iron, calcium, and important B-vitamins. For a pleasant change of taste, try rotating it with the other 5 ready-to-serve Gerber Cereals.

"Thank-you" tip. This from a clever mother: "When baby Jean gets a gift from a fond friend or relative, I take a snapshot of her using or wearing the gift. The picture goes with the 'thank you' note for a nice personal touch."

* * *

Hand-y idea. Easy way to determine which hand your baby is going to be handiest with: offer objects at his middlemost point. Natural graspifg instinct will soon show which hand wants to take the lead.

Little teeth making their sparkling debut? Gerber Teething Biscuits are a big help when baby's suffering from the discomfort that often goes with teething. Smooth and extra-firm they are comforting to "gnaw" on . . . and provide baby with the biting exercise he wants and needs. Made of wholesome, pleasantly-flavored ingredients, they're baked in a tapered shape that's easy to grasp. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

At Christmas-time, you'll enjoy making and serving poinsettia cookies to go with fragrant, hot coffee. This a perfect combination to serve friends who drop in during the holidays.

Poinsettia Cookies Top Our List Of Fancy Treats for the Holiday

At Christmas time, cookies are more than cookies—they're the wonderful symbols of our very happiest holiday. Poinsettia cookies are new this Christmas and you should add them to your holiday baking list. They're lovely to look at and their almond flavor makes them the perfect accompaniment for hot coffee.

You don't need a cookie cutter to make poinsettia cookies. All you do is cut your cookie dough into two-inch squares. Then make a one-inch slash diagonally from each corner toward the centre of each cookie. Fold in every other point to the centre and place half a candied cherry in the centre. Voila! . . . there you have your poinsettias!

Of course, everyone will love your poinsettia cookies and they'll love you even more when you serve them with fresh, steaming coffee—another must for holiday festivities!

POINSETTIA COOKIES

One-half cup shortening, 1 teaspoon almond flavoring, ½ cup brown sugar, ½ cup sugar, 1 egg, 2 cups sifted enriched flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 2 tablespoons milk, 1½ cups rolled oats (quick or old fashioned, uncooked), candied cherries.

Beat together shortening, almond flavoring, sugars and egg until creamy. Sift together flour, salt and baking soda and add to first mixture, mixing thoroughly. Stir in milk and rolled oats, mixing until blended. (Dough will be quite stiff.)

Roll out dough to about ⅛-inch thickness on canvas or board sprinkled with confectioners' sugar. Cut into 2-inch squares.

To form poinsettias: make a one-inch slash diagonally from each corner toward centre of cookie. Fold in every other point to the centre; place half a candied cherry in centre of each cookie. Place on greased cookie sheets. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees 8 to 10 minutes. Remove from cookie sheets immediately. Makes about 5 dozen.

Keep "Mocha Raisin Drops" on hand in the cooky jar this holiday season. Your guests will welcome a treat of spicy, chocolate cookies studded with raisins.

MOCHA RAISIN DROPS

Three-quarter cup light or dark raisins; ½ cup shortening; 1 cup sugar; 1 egg; ¼ cup milk; ½ teaspoon vanilla; 1¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour; 2 tablespoons cocoa; 2 tablespoons baking powder; 1 teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon cinnamon; ¼ teaspoon nutmeg.

Rinse and drain raisins. Cream shortening and sugar together thoroughly. Add egg and beat thoroughly. Blend in milk and vanilla. Sift together flour, cocoa, baking powder, salt and spices. Stir into creamed mixture. Blend in raisins. Drop by teaspoonsful onto greased baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Remove to wire rack to cool. Makes about three dozen cookies.

Christmas cookies will keep beautifully in an air-tight container, especially if you are foresighted enough to make them with honey. Honey has the magic property of sealing moisture in, keeping food fresh.

SPICED HONEY NUTS

Three cups sifted confectioners sugar; 3 teaspoons ground cinnamon; 1½ teaspoons ground nutmeg; 1½ teaspoons ground allspice; 1 egg white, unbeaten; spoon salt; ¾ pound almond, pecan or walnut meats.

2 tablespoons honey; ⅛ tea-

Sift sugar and spices together 3 times. Spread ½ of mixture, ¼ inch thick, on baking sheet or shallow pan. Place egg white, honey and salt in bowl, and beat until mixed but not foamy. Add nuts and stir until coated. Place nuts on sugar, one at a time, top side up, ¼ inch apart. Cover evenly with remaining sugar mixture. Set pan inside another baking sheet, or pan, and bake in very slow oven (250° F.), 1½ hours. Remove nuts immediately and brush off excess sugar. Cool. Store in airtight glass jar. Approximate yield: 1 pound.

A very slow oven is necessary to make nuts crisp and to prevent them from becoming too brown.

Chocolate Candy Treats Ideal for Christmas Gifts

We never get so modern that the urge to make Christmas candy gifts leaves us. But, of course, we do prefer modern shortcuts to old-fashioned candy treats.

Here are two really delightful candies. Only three ingredients needed — semi-sweet chocolate morsels, corn syrup and water. Packaged attractively and festively wrapped, they are an ideal "me to you" gift.

CHOCOLATE TINY TREATS

(Yield: 100 candies)

One 6-ounce package (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate morsels, 3 tablespoons light corn syrup, 1 tablespoon water, 1 cup finely chopped nuts, ½ cup tinted butter frosting.

Put semi-sweet chocolate morsels in top of double boiler with light corn syrup and water. Place over hot, not boiling, water, stirring occasionally, until chocolate is melted. Remove from water; stir in chopped nuts. Drop semi-sweet mixture by scant half-teaspoonfuls on waxed paper lined cookie sheet. Chill until firm. Spread tops of about ⅔ of the miniatures with small amount butter frosting. Dip in shredded coconut or finely chopped nuts, or top with red cinnamon candies or additional semi-sweet morsels.

NUT-MALLOW FUDGE

(Yield: 1¼ pounds)

Three-quarters pound marshmallows (48), ¼ cup butter, 1 tablespoon water, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1 6-ounce package (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate morsels, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup chopped nuts, optional.

Combine marshmallows, butter, water and salt in saucepan. Bring to a boil over moderate heat, stirring constantly. Boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and stir in semi-sweet chocolate morsels and vanilla until smooth. Add nuts, if desired. Turn into 2 greased 5¼x4-inch aluminum foil pans. Chill until firm. Decorate with butter frosting as desired.

Nougat Cookies

Three cups sugar; ½ cup honey; ⅔ cup boiling water; 2 egg whites, stiffly beaten; ¼ teaspoon salt; ⅔ cup chopped nuts; ⅔ cup chopped citron, orange peel and candied cherries.

Mix sugar, honey and water. Cook slowly, stirring only until sugar is dissolved. Then cook (300° F.), until brittle when tested in cold water. Pour syrup over the stiffly beaten egg whites, beating constantly. Fold in salt, fruit and nuts. Pour into a buttered pan. Let stand a day before cutting. Cut and wrap in waxed paper.

Dec. 12 Group Centre Of Saanich Squabble

A sophomore council candidate crossed swords Tuesday night with a 17-year veteran in a duel over election campaign tactics that almost obscured Saanich's amalgamation issue.

"The Dec. 12th Group is the Tammany Hall of Saanich and I'm running against it because it deters new candidates from running against a slate," cried Coun. Leslie Passmore, drawing first blood.

"Last year I was a new candidate along with others, but we were dead ducks when three 'old guard' candidates went into action with the best organized campaign of phone calls and back-fence gossip I ever expect to see," shot back Stanley Murphy.

60 ATTEND

About 60 persons turned out for the second to last election meeting of the campaign in the CCF Hall on Richmond Road. A. E. Horner, former councillor, rented the hall for the meeting and acted as chairman.

"There was a solid bloc trying to swing the vote—I know, because I was a victim of it," the young teacher said. "At St. Luke's Hall last year we ran into a rigged meeting with booby-trap questions planted everywhere.

"I know what I'm talking about because I had to parry those questions.

SPANKED

"I was a spanking new candidate against the old guard and when the votes came in I knew I had been spanked. Well, I'm no fool now and if any group wants to support me with no strings attached I'll accept it until I have reason to believe they're not sincerely interested in Saanich."

Mr. Murphy lashed out at Coun. Passmore's "inference that I'm bereft of honor" because of sponsorship by the Dec. 12th Group.

"At a council meeting Coun. Passmore emphatically declared that amalgamation at no time had been brought up while he was on council until Reeve (Arthur) Ash was elected.

"Yet yesterday on a public platform Coun. Passmore told an audience that he personally had made motions for a study of amalgamation three times during those years and the council turned it down.

"Is that lack of personal honor or lack of memory?"

CONFUSING

Continuing his attack on Coun. Passmore's opposition to amalgamation, Mr. Murphy said "confusing and unreliable" figures were repeatedly used to "appeal to the fears of older Saanich residents that their taxes will go up.

"It is undignified and insulting to the people of Victoria to suggest they are out 'to do' Saanich. We all know Victorians. They haven't the beady-eyed look of the money changers in the temple."

Supporting the campaign's first counter-attack against criticism of the Dec. 12 Group was Charles Nelles, former president of the organization and a candidate for council.

"We don't ask anyone's pardon for trying to elect men who we believe will make good members of council," he said.

"Our slate actually was published only the day before nominations closed," he said in answer to Coun. Passmore's charge that the advertisement appeared three weeks before nomination day.

NO STRINGS

Mr. Nelles pointed out that Coun. George Chatterton "was very indignant" when he was selected for support by the group without his knowledge.

"This shows, I think, that there are no strings attached to the support. Nor do I think it is libellous to support a man you believe to be a good candidate."

In a side issue, Coun. Passmore and Reeve Ash tangled over the cost of the proposed royal commission investigation of amalgamation.

Reeve Ash said there was no foundation for the "fancy figure" of $50,000. He suggested that B. C. Bracewell, former deputy minister of municipal affairs, would be an ideal commissioner that the cabinet would be willing to appoint at the request of Victoria and Saanich.

Back came Coun. Passmore: "Reeve Ash says we need an investigation to get answers but for the last year and a quarter he has been campaigning openly for amalgamation.

GUFF

"Why does he want us to spend $50,000 on a royal commission to investigate the guff he's been shoving at us?"

Intermixed with the recriminations highlighting the meeting were humorous moments.

Biggest laugh-getter occurred when Reeve Ash said he had met no one who was opposed to councillors getting a raise in indemnities to a "fair" level.

Up popped an unidentified man with:

"Why not put your salaries on a referendum and find out whether we think you are worth it or not?"

MONTREAL LANDMARK

Fire Rips Hotel, Home for Royalty

MONTREAL (CP)—A vicious, five-hour fire Tuesday night gutted the three upper floors on the south and west sides of the historic Windsor Hotel, traditional stopping place for visiting monarchs and statesmen.

Quick work by firemen, who rescued about 30 persons within minutes of the blaze's outbreak, prevented loss of life. But more than a dozen persons were injured — none seriously — by smoke and flying glass.

At least 15 persons were evacuated by aerial ladders and the rest were led downstairs through smoke-choked corridors to the main lobby where with most of the other guests they sat around calmly and sipped drinks while the south side crumbled.

SNOW HAMPERS WORK

More than 100 firemen struggled with the stubborn blaze, pouring 49,500 gallons of water a minute into the old south section, six storeys tall.

Clouds of smoke and steam and a heavy, wet snowstorm—which increased in severity as the fire increased — hampered the firemen's efforts.

It was the 650-room hotel's second fire within a week. The first was a small blaze last Thursday in a basement luggage room.

51,800 Eligible to Vote in Greater Victoria Thursday

About 51,800 persons in Greater Victoria are eligible to vote Thursday when electors in all four municipalities cast ballots on the same day for the first time in recent years.

However, polling hours will differ: from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. in the city; and from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. in the municipalities of Saanich, Esquimalt and Oak Bay.

Thirty-five candidates are running for a total of 20 seats, including reeveships, council posts and school board trusteeships.

Uniformly quiet campaigns have been broken only by the battles in the Saanich contest where investigation of amalgamation has flared up into a hot issue that will be decided by voters' choices of candidates at the polls.

Victoria

Victoria's election contests feature a six-way fight for four council seats, a three-way fight for two school board seats, a referendum and a plebiscite.

There is no mayoralty contest, Mayor Percy Scurrah having been returned by acclamation.

The referendum, on which every voter may cast a ballot, asks whether a royal commission should be asked to study the question of amalgamation of all, or part, of Greater Victoria.

60% NEEDED

The plebiscite, which requires a 60 per cent yes-vote to pass, asks approval of a new cost-sharing plan for the public library with extension of voting privileges to member municipalities, Oak Bay, Saanich, Esquimalt and Central Saanich.

Ownership of the library is not at issue, it will remain in the city's possesssion. Only property-owners may vote on this question, however.

Here are the six council candidates:

Ald. G. I. Edgelow is seeking a third two-year term on council. He is chairman of council parks committee and of the Greater Victoria Centennial Committee. He favors development of Gorge waterway as an aquatic playground, development of off-street parking, an early solution to the problem of garbage disposal, city beautification, and a new school-costs-sharing formula which would relieve municipalities.

WIDE PROGRAM

Ald. M. H. Mooney, a five-year veteran on council was chairman of public works committee in 1957 and is promoting a wide works program and feels the city should interest itself more in promotion of youth work, notably the Boy Scouts.

Ald. J. Donald Smith has also served five years on council and is chairman of garbage and buildings and grounds committees and a Victoria MLA. He stands for a reduced rate of business tax for small businesses, a new school formula, freedom of operation for corner stores, and he opposes borrowing for new civic buildings.

SECOND TERM

Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson, seeking a second council term, has chaired health and welfare committee in 1956-57. She favors study of amalgamation, a full-course university for the city, a civic centre, a fast ferry to the mainland, low-rental housing for aged and people with small incomes, institution of a family court.

FORMER MLA

Capt. D. J. Proudfoot is secretary of Greater Victoria centennial committee, member of the provincial centennial committee and member Victoria Public Library Board. A former city MLA, he supports a private charter for Victoria and wishes to see full development of Beaver-Elk Lake Park area.

Mrs. Sally Rogers is sponsored by Victoria Ratepayers' Association. A housewife, she is concerned with juvenile problems, housing and pensions for senior citizens, government acceptance of a greater share of school costs, "sensible" store hours.

TRUSTEES

School board candidates are trustee Kenneth Leeming, trustee A. H. Wilson and William H. Williams. There are two vacancies on the board.

Victoria voting place is the Market Building on Cormorant Street and polling hours are 9 a.m. to 7 p.m., differing slightly from the surrounding municipalities.

Saanich

In Saanich municipality this year the election battle prizes are the reeve's chair, three two-year council terms, a single one-year council term and a two-year term on the District 61 school board.

Two candidates are bidding for the reeve's chair with a deep division between them over the issue of an investigation of amalgamation.

They are: incumbent Reeve Arthur Ash, shoe merchant, running for re-election to his second term on his record and all-out support for an investigation; Coun. Eugene Diespecker, an auto service manager who resigned his council seat to contest the reeveship, bitterly opposes an investigation on the grounds that amalgamation already has been proved to be a threat to Saanich's low taxes.

Five candidates seek the two-year council terms. They are:

WANTS STUDY

Coun. George Chatterton, a Veterans' Land Act administrator who is seeking his first full term, opposes amalgamation but believes an investigation should be made including a study of alternatives such as metropolitan government or integration of certain services;

Coun. Leslie Passmore, a shipyard stores keeper and 17-year veteran on council, gives faint support to an investigation and adds that he is certain its findings will back up his belief that amalgamation will harm Saanich.

Charles Nelles, a businessman striving for his first civic office, backs an investigation and believes in the long run amalgamation will benefit the municipality.

TEACHER

Stanley Murphy, a teacher, also seeking his first civic post, supports a royal commission study of a merger with Victoria;

Gregory Cook, also a teacher, does not oppose an investigation but is more interested in seeing a municipal manager appointed to run the municipal staff.

Two-way battle for the one-year term is being fought by Harold Todd, a postal worker unsuccessful in previous bids for council, who thinks an investigation is "the only way" to clear the air, and Ronald Grant, a naturopath defeated two years ago after serving a council term, who has not given his stand on investigation but promises "steadfast opposition" to nany "dismemberment" of Saanich.

The school board seat is being sought by Mrs. A. B. Thompson, James McPherson and George McWilliam — all newcomers and former executive members of the Greater Victoria Parent-Teacher Council.

Oak Bay

There are three council vacancies in Oak Bay for which five candidates are running.

As well, there is one two-year school board seat sought by three candidates.

Council candidates are incumbents Fred Hawes and George Murdoch, former councillor Patrick Birley, Kenneth Murphy, who was defeated in a bid at the last election, and newcomer Kenneth Boorman.

Candidates for the school board vacancy are W. R. Freethy, John H. Ford, and Gordon T. Schenck.

Mr. Hawes, long a worker in Chamber of Commerce affairs, is a lumber company executive, and he's been four years on council.

VETERAN ON COUNCIL

Mr. Murdoch, 12-year veteran of council, a radio-TV technician.

Mr. Birley, who pulled out of council last year after three years, but agreed to run again this term, is an architect.

Kenneth Murphy, defeated last year, is a lawyer and has been a member of the juvenile council here studying juvenile delinquency.

Kenneth Boorman, sole newcomer, manages a real estate, insurance and investment office in Victoria. He is a lieutenant-commander in the naval reserve.

Mr. Freethy is a B.C. Electric employee; Mr. Ford is a real estate salesman; Mr. Schenck is an insurance salesman.

There are no referendums before Oak Bay ratepayers.

There are 7,473 persons on the Oak Bay voters' list. Vote traditionally varies between 25 and 35 per cent.

Esquimalt

A former reeve of Esquimalt will be seeking to regain his title at Thursday's elections.

Reeveship candidates are Magistrate A. I. Thomas and incumbent A. C. Wurtele, a real estate salesman and retired RCN commander.

Magistrate Thomas says he has no convictions on amalgamation but thinks a Jaycee referendum calling for a royal commission should be presented to Esquimalt ratepayers.

Reeve Wurtele, firmly opposed to the referendum, favors revival of an inter-municipal committee to study the question.

THEY'RE WARY

Candidates for three council seats are Coun. Walter Holder, painting contractor; Coun. Art Fields, grocer; ex-councillor G. K. Sammon, lab technician, and newcomer Donold L. Douglas, business agent for the Shipwrights, Joiners and Wood Caulkers Industrial Union.

All are wary of amalgamation, although Mr. Sammon approves a merging of "certain services" in Greater Victoria.

GYROS HEAR NAVAL LAB CHIEF

Canada Must Boost Scientist Force

The role of Canada's Defence Research Board and the objectives of the Pacific Naval Laboratory were described to Gyro members at their noon meeting in the Empress Hotel on Monday by Dr. William L. Ford, superintendent of the Pacific Naval Laboratory.

"Certain principles have been set up," he said, "for the selection of projects by the board. They must be within Canadian financial and scientific ability, avoid duplication of work being carried out by our allies, make use of environment and resources which are unique to Canada, maintain flexibility, and place emphasis on medium and long-range military require-

Dr. Ford described the other research projects across Canada and discussed PNL investigations into underwater sound physics, hydrodynamics, and other matters relating to care of ships and development of sonar gear.

"The justification for defence research is its contribution to the maintenance of peace," he said, "but there are also many important civil by-products."

He compared the relatively poor position of Canada in science and technology with the U.K., U.S. and the U.S.S.R., and said that "clearly we need a greatly accelerated output of well-qualified scientists, engineers and technologists in all fields."

For these men, Dr. Ford said, "we will need jobs in Canada if, in this phase of our national culture, we are to realize our potential."

Non-Resident Scale of Fees For Injections

A scale of fees for immunization services to non-residents was adopted Tuesday by Victoria-Esquimalt Union Board of Health.

Medical Health Officer Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffy pointed out in recent years 30 per cent of the injections provided by the Health Centre had been to Oak Bay and Saanich residents.

Board chairman G. K. Sammon said: "It is not fair to Victoria and Esquimalt and to the school board (third partner in the health union), that we should be indirectly subsidizing health services for the whole Greater Victoria area."

50 CENTS

Fees will be 50 cents for each injection for any purpose, except in the case of smallpox vaccination, where the charge will be $1.50.

Board members expressed the opinion the new scale of charges would not likely earn funds for the union board but would instead lead Oak Bay and Saanich residents to go to their own municipal health clinics, where the service is free, as it is to Victoria and Esquimalt residents in their own health centre.

Beck Sells Interest In Apartment Block

SEATTLE (CP)—Dave Beck and four other stockholders began the sale Tuesday of controlling interest in the 370-apartment Grosvenor House for about $940,000.

The stock is being purchased by the Doric Company, which operates business buildings and hotels here and in California.

Doric president, Floyd R. Clodfelter, disclosed the purchase price and said the company has taken delivery on part of the stock and the rest will be picked up by Jan. 20. Involved are 66.2 per cent of the common and 75 per cent of the preferred stock.

Beck held about 19 per cent of the stock in the plus skyscraper apartment house just across the street from teamsters union headquarters.

The Grosvenor House was built about seven years ago for a reported cost of $3,500,000.

CNR WON'T REVEAL SURVEY RESULTS

Mayor Hints Conspiracy Blocks Fast Ferry Plan

By PETE LOUDON

Mayor Percy Scurrah hinted broadly Tuesday that shipping concerns are conspiring to avoid the establishment of a fast ferry service between Sidney and the lower mainland.

He told Victoria Kiwanis Club luncheon meeting the decision of the Canadian National Railways to refuse providing this service was not reached for "economic reasons."

The mayor said the CNR made a three or four month survey of the economic feasibility of such a service.

Then the mayor was told the Island was already served by a good ferry service. But the results of the survey were not revealed by the company.

"The decision was not made on economic grounds. There were other reasons for that decision," said Mayor Scurrah.

"Knowing how profitable is the (CPR) Vancouver-Nanaimo shipping service, I think you will all realize why the new service is not coming here. I don't want to get in too deep, but I am morally certain that I am correct."

Later in his address the mayor said:

"I quite realize there are very powerful and vested interests opposed to what I am trying to do. I have no illusions as to that whatsoever."

SUPPORT ASKED

Mayor Scurrah called for individual support of all present for his scheme for a fast ferry. He said the project was a "challenge to the community."

"A 70-mile drive to Nanaimo doesn't make sense when we could go from Sidney to the mainland in two or two-and-a-half hours." This route would cut 100 miles from travelling distance to Vancouver.

A fast ferry would be vital to the tourist industry. It would permit a circle route to be set up with tourists entering the Island at Sidney and departing from Nanaimo, or vice versa.

The mayor said last year 3,750,000 cars came to B.C. from the United States and only 10 per cent of them came to the Island.

ADDS TO COST

The mayor said the present methods of bringing freight to Victoria by truck from the mainland adds to the cost of the goods due to the extra mileage of the Nanaimo route.

Trucking from Vancouver to Victoria takes six hours to which must be added time for loading and unloading, making it two working days.

"To make it more difficult, the Public Utilities Commission insists trucks have a full load of one kind of merchandise, not mixed loads. Only the Island Freight Ltd. has a full transport licence."

The mayor said, after the meeting, the Island Freight was CPR-owned.

The proposed fast ferry should be capable of 16 knots and four trips a day. As well as a savings in freight costs it would obviate the necessity of driving over the Malahat, which the mayor said often was dangerous.

He was certain a fast ferry from Sidney could be a profitable venture and it would create more business by its existence.

He pointed out the Sidney-Anacortes ferry service has increased its trade 123 per cent in the past five years.

The service should be inaugurated by the time the Deas Tunnel is completed, the mayor thought.

He told his audience Victoria should act now to obtain a second ferry slip at the Sidney wharf. It is about to be rebuilt by the government.

Please! Don't Snarl At Police Officers

BERLIN (UP) — The Communists today published a book on etiquette in a police state. Do not snarl at policemen, it says, and be careful how you use a toothpick—if they ever reappear on the market.

The book is called "Don't Fear Good Manners" (Keine Angst Vor Guten Sitten) and covers everything from the unavailable toothpicks to neckties (should be worn).

Author Karl Kleinschmidt said it is impolite to "snarl" or act in an "uncultivated" way toward policemen enforcing government controls. Controls, he said, are necessary.

SNARLING BANNED

Policemen must be "greeted in a friendly way" and given direct answers to their questions.

The book did not cover the proper way to act when being searched or arrested, but presumably the ban on snarling applies.

How do you act in the "capitalistic West?"

You do not laugh in an agreeable way when someone "slanders" Communism.

Kleinschmidt hastened to add that such a circumstance would seldom arise because the average westerner is friendly toward the socialist camp.

You also change your money legally when travelling to the West if you are well brought up, and you do not try to cheat the East German government.

The Communists long have had a tendency to discard ties and walk around with their shirts buttoned up tight, but the book advises, "Ties belong under all circumstances to party or going-out clothes."

USING TOOTHPICKS

Kleinschmidt devoted 16 lines to proper use of the toothpick. He granted that these lines were not applicable because East German shops have not had any toothpicks since the war. He expressed the hope they might be available by the time the book appeared, but they are not.

How do you address a Communist "hero of labor" who has been decorated for inventing a speedup method in factories? Do you call him "Herr hero" just as you would say "Herr professor" or "Herr doctor" or "Herr oberregierungsrat?"

No, said the book. But if you write the hero you should put the title "Hero of labor" right under his name.

The binding on the etiquette book is red.

BRIDGE LESSON

Hard Luck Joe ruffed the second heart lead, pulled trumps and remarked, "Well, partner, we missed a slam," and showed his hand.

"Down one at five," growled West.

West was right. The possibility of a five-zero break in clubs had never entered Joe's mind.

Joe complained about his hard luck and as usual he had manufactured it all by himself.

There was a simple way to guard against the bad club break. All Joe had to do was to lead one trump to dummy's ace and play a club from dummy. If no one showed out Joe could then draw trumps and claim his slam.

If East ruffed, Joe would simply win East's return, draw trumps and claim the balance. West could growl but he could not get a trick.

If East discarded on the club the play would be slightly more complicated but Joe would still breeze home.

He would win that club trick and play a second high club. East's best play would be to ruff and return a heart. Now Joe would trump in and ruff a low club with dummy's queen of trumps. This would clear the club suit and he would again be able to pull trumps and make his contract.

STEWART & HUDSON
WHERE HOME BUILDERS MEET

WELL IT HAPPENED
And the best news for prospective home owners for many a day. The new relaxed regulations for N.H.A. mortgages will certainly be of help for so many who have really wanted a home of their own.
So start now, saving up that $1,000 down payment which qualifies eligible borrowers to own a $10,000 N.H.A. home. Undoubtedly good building lots will be in demand so don't leave that item for too long. Then there's home plans to think about. Use the long winter evenings to sketch out layouts. See the large selection of home plan books and ideas at Stewart & Hudson.

LUMBER PRICES
Are at their low winter levels and there's bargains around in other building materials which all make a happy combination when you consider that building materials only amount to 40% of your home costs. Around Our House
At Christmas time our house is always in a dither. It's our turn to feed all the family and the dining table isn't large enough. Little Billy's train, a year old now, still not set up the way we promised ... a ping-pong table?—that's already a two-year-old dream. We were going to decorate the front lawn for sure this year! Maybe your house is a little like ours—well, there is still time for both of us to get these little problems fixed up.

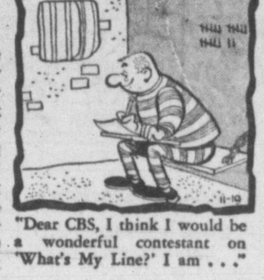
T.V. with Lee

Canada's Yvon Durelle Fights Jerry Luedee on C-5 at 7

By PHIL LEE, Times TV Editor

DON'T MISS THIS—What appears to be one of the truly excellent shows of the season got underway Monday night, Studio One's "No Deadly Medicine," with Lee J. Cobb, Canada's William Shatner, Gloria Vanderbilt and Alan Hewit occupying the principal roles. Written by Toronto's prolific Arthur Hailey, it is a two-hour affair to be seen in hour-long segments a week apart. It is suffice to say that the plot concerns a behind-times pathologist (Cobb) in a run-down-hospital. It is wonderfully, if grimly, acted. And it has heart and substance. It may well win Cobb, at least, an Emmy nomination. The purpose of this is to tell those who are interested to pick it up when it starts on Channel 2, Dec. 16, at 10 p.m. The second half will be seen on Dec. 23 at the same time. . . .

TV TEE-HEES



"Dear CBS, I think I would be a wonderful contestant on 'What's My Line?' I am . . ."

* * *

AS WAS expected, the second Desi-Lucy show came up with another whopping rating. It opened at 31.1 to clobber "McGraw" with 13.4 and 16.8 for "Broken Arrow." It then moved along with a mighty 33.3 in the second half to murder Bob Cummings at 13.9 and "Telephone Time" at 10.7. Still on the subject of ratings: George Gobel again bit the dust, shot down by "Cheyenne" 23.5 to 14.9. When he struggled to his feet "Wyatt Earp" opened fire and Lonesome George was down again to the score of 25.1 to 15.6. . . .

Meanwhile the Wednesday night competition continues tighter than a sweater on Jayne Mansfield. "I've Got a Secret" leads the list at 26.4 to "Walter Winchell" and "Kraft Theatre's" 18.2. Earlier "Disneyland" beat "Wagon Train" 19.6 to 17.2 and a "Lucy" re-run at 18.4. In the second half "Disneyland" placed second to "Wagon Train's" 21.3 but out-pointed "Big Record" with 18.3. Then "Record" upped to 20.4 on the second segment, beating "Tombstone Territory" at 16.4 but was edged out by "Father Knows Best" with 21. At 9 p.m. "Millionaire," "Ozzie and Harriet" and "Kraft" were almost even, "Millionaire" having a wee edge.

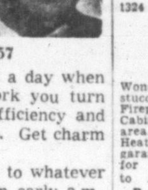
ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST



THURSDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1957

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—At last a day when you can work like a Trojan, since any work you turn your hand to will be done with alacrity, efficiency and speed, be it at home, office, or in the theatre. Get charm and appearance at peak, too.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Attend to whatever it is that brings out your greatest charm in early a.m., then get creative work and endeavors out of the way quickly. Tonight you will then be able to have a glorious time with friends.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—There are many little improvements necessary within the home right now, and don't hesitate to invest in new devices and units on the market that make life so much easier. Most of all—smile and watch faces of loved ones light up.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21)—See that you contact everyone who is associated with you in any endeavors by phone, telegraph, or go in person to call on them. Don't fail to understand just what is on their minds. Then cement relations, work harmoniously.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Focus your fine eyes on whatever it is that is not working properly in any of your spheres of endeavor. Since you are able right now to make necessary changes, improvements to property, etc., get right at them!

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—You have free time today to scrutinize your appearance in the looking glass, take a leisurely bath, massage, and feel fit as a fiddle. Then go to see those you want to do business with, draw them diagrams, if necessary.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—At last you have this day to do the things you prefer, which means ferreting out those things that puzzle or do not please, and make concrete, long-term plans that require detail and perfection you so excel in. Also, co-operate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—It is possible today to have meetings with persons whose habits and mental equipment are similar to yours, thereby co-operating toward a more remunerative plan of activity. P.M. enjoy yourself with ideal comrades.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—A day in which you can be as public-minded as you prefer. State your aims to those in influential positions. Be generous, and you will easily acquire their backing, support in many things, whether civic or personal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—There is much data to be gleaned everywhere today, but do not neglect your studies, paper, TV, radio programs or whatever is at immediate fingertips. Also discuss with new friends anything of merit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—It is a day in which to get down to brass tacks, be very practical, forget so much of the King's English for a while. See that your credit is put in a higher category, make collections. Tonight, be gallant, amorous.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—A good opportunity is present in which to contact many customers, coworkers and reach a better understanding with associates, also become more chummy with those you like. Good for civic interests, too.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN THURSDAY . . .
The delightful child born Thursday is the kind who as he or she gets older will use the direct approach with others, which is quite rare and a fine, honest trait. But be sure to teach early to study complete picture first, also give courses of study that will develop the minutiae that are so all-important, especially in work where the hands are used mainly. Teach good co-ordination of mind and body.

Roster Provides Guide To News on Missiles

Many readers are confused by daily news reports which refer to a bewildering variety of U.S. and Russian missiles. The following dispatch gives an up-to-date roster of the most important missiles, their military functions and state of development.

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States has five long-range ballistic missiles in various stages of development. They are called Thor, Jupiter, Polaris, Atlas and Titan.

Russia has at least two. They are called T-2 and T-3.

All seven of these missiles are designed to carry hydrogen bomb warheads. Powered by huge rockets, they are fired into space hundreds of miles above the earth and travel at supersonic speeds, usually 10,000 miles an hour or faster.

Built-in controls guide the missile during its first few seconds of powered flight. Once the rocket burns out, the missile followes a fixed trajectory, like a rifle bullet, toward its target. Hence the name "ballistic missile."

Military men divide these missiles into two types, according to the distance they travel. Intermediate range ballistic missiles, commonly called IRBMs, are designed to hit targets at least 1,500 miles away. Some will go farther. Intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs) are those which travel about 5,000 miles.

Thor and Jupiter are IRBMs developed by the air force and army, respectively. Both have successfully passed flight tests at Cape Canaveral, Fla. They have proved to have excellent guidance systems. Their maximum range is reported to exceed 2,000 miles.

Defence Secretary Neil H. McElroy announced Nov. 27 that he had ordered both Thor and Jupiter into production.

The U.S. Navy is working on a third IRBM, the Polaris. It is still about a year away from the flight-testing stage. Polaris will be smaller and lighter than Thor and Jupiter, and will use solid instead of liquid fuels. It is designed to be fired from an atomic submarine or warship rather than from a land base.

Russian Tests Held Weekly

Russia's IRBM is the T-2. It has been undergoing flight tests, virtually on a weekly basis, since 1955. Not much is known here about the T-2.

Atlas and Titan are ICBM's being developed by the U.S. Air Force.

Atlas, powered by three enormous rocket motors, is about 90 feet long, weighs over 100 tons and is designed to travel about 5,000 miles. It has been tested twice in Florida—in June and September of this year—and on both occasions failed to get off. Another test is reported to be imminent.

Titan is being developed as a "back-up" missile in case Atlas proves unsatisfactory. Its specifications are secret, but some reports say it will be a two-stage rocket. (Although Atlas has three motors, they are all fired simultaneously so it actually is a one-stage rocket.) Titan may be ready for testing next summer.

Moscow announced last August that Russia had successfully tested an ICBM — the T-3. U.S. officials know less than they would like to know about the T-3's capabilities.

In view of Russia's success in placing two satellites in orbit, they concede that Soviet technicians have produced very powerful rocket engines which could be used to drive an ICBM. But they are not so sure that Russia has solved the more difficult problems of accurate guidance in an ultra high-speed, long range missile. It takes approximately 10 times greater accuracy to aim an ICBM at a city than to lob a Sputnik carrier into an orbit in space.

The long-range ballistic missiles are the so-called "ultimate weapons" of the international armaments race. But both the United States and Russia have in their arsenals a large variety of other missiles which are pretty awesome by comparison with conventional weapons.

Hits Target Right on Nose

The U.S. Air Force, for example, has in production a missile called the Snark which recently travelled 5,000 miles and landed accurately on its target. The Snark is powered by turbojet engines rather than rockets. It has short wings, and is guided throughout its flight by built-in controls. Its speed is slightly less than the speed of sound. For all these reasons it rates as a pilotless bomber rather than a true ballistic missile, despite its very long range.

Another recent addition to the U.S. Strategic Air Command's weaponry is the Rascal. This is a rocket-powered missile which can be launched from a B-47 Stratojet bomber about 300 miles or more from the target. It carries a nuclear warhead, travels at supersonic speed, and proved deadly accurate in recent tests. When it is in full operational use, in about a year, it will render obsolete the dangerous practice of flying over a heavily-defended target to drop bombs.

The United States also has 15 missiles designed primarily for defence against enemy air attack. Six of these—the army's Nike-Ajax, the navy's Terrier and Sparrow I, and the air force's Falcon and Genie—already are in operational use. The others, in various stages of development and testing, are designed to do the same job better.

The Bomarc is a very long-range, high-speed air defence missile with advanced electronic guidance systems. In one recent test a Bomarc soared to 60,000 feet and dropped down like a keen-eyed hawk to strike a drone bomber flying 100 miles out over the Atlantic Ocean.

Russia has at least five anti-aircraft missiles called M-1, T-6, T-7, T-8 and GVA-1.

Another large family of missiles is designed to replace conventional field and naval artillery. The largest of this class are the U.S. Army's Redstone and Russia's T-1. Both are modifications of Germany's V-2 rockets of the Second World War, with ranges of 200 to 400 miles.

PUPILS PRAY FOR PILOTS

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (AP)—When jet bombers of the U.S. Strategic Air Command roar off Plattsburgh air force base, the pilots carry with them the prayers of pupils at a Roman Catholic school here. Each child has his own pilot and prays for him as the plane takes off.

Boost Number Of Committees UN Request

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—The United Nations' political committee today decided—over the objections of Britain, Canada and Australia—to ask the General Assembly to increase the membership of its steering committee.

The move took the form of a resolution asking the assembly to elect 13 vice-presidents instead of seven. The president and vice-presidents of the assembly automatically are members of the steering committee, which guides the assembly's business.

The three Commonwealth countries opposed the measure on the grounds there is not enough general agreement on what the committee's composition should be.

New Protests At Big Buses On Haultain

Victoria council public works committee Monday heard a further complaint about vibrations from buses shaking homes on Haultain. A petition was received some months ago asking buses be rerouted or the road bed strengthened. B.C. Electric officials said drivers would be slowed down in the area concerned. Another petition asked the bus be left on Haultain.

Monday night, H. J. Price, who lives at the corner of Vickers and Haultain, told the committee, "If the meeting was at my house now, I wouldn't have to say anything."

B.C. 'Sightings' Help Back Russ Claim

VANCOUVER (CP) — Six sightings, accepted by the Ground Observers Corps in British Columbia as "good," may support the claim by Russia that remnants of Sputnik I's carrier rocket fell on the west coast of North America.

A corps spokesman said Tuesday the reports tracked "a fireball from Mile 1127 on the Alaska Highway to Lethbridge, Alta."

The sightings, made Nov. 30, have been forwarded to the air defence command in Montreal.

The spokesman said resulting official inquiries indicated "B.C. might have had more Sputnik observation reports than any other area."

He said the first sighting from Mile 1127 of the Alaska Highway in the Yukon came shortly after a similar one from Skagway, Alaska.

The spokesman said the observer reported "a fireball at about 30,000 feet . . . lighting up the St. Elias mountain range."

In B.C., an observer at Mile 1192 reported the fiery object a short time later, around 8 a.m. His sighting lined up with one the corps had received earlier from the Yukon.

The last report from Lethbridge said the fireball was descending at an angle of 35 degrees in a north-south direction.

The spokesman said the reports were "not contradictory, althoug hthere was a divergence up to 300 miles in the width of the track."

Vancouver Alderman Scores 5-Year Plan

VANCOUVER (CP)—On the eve of a vigorously-contested civic election, Vancouver city council was accused Tuesday of "almost misleading" the public on a vital issue.

The accusation was made by Alderman Bill Orr. The issue is a proposed five-year development plan, costing $72,500,000 which goes before ratepayers for approval today.

Ald. Orr charged that throughout the promotion of the plan by the council, the public had been told the cost to the average taxpayer would be $3.85 a year.

But, he said, the "pretty slick advertising" didn't go on to explain how the total actually increases by this amount each year reaching $19.25 at the end of five years.

SPENT PUBLIC FUNDS

"Everywhere you see people who have the idea this is going to cost comparatively little. It's going to cost a lot more than they realize."

Ald. Orr also criticized the council for spending public funds—about $3,000—to publicize the plan, one of four matters on which ratepayers are being asked for a decision at today's poll.

Plebiscites are also being held to ask voters' opinions on commercial Sunday sports, fluoridation of public water, and an $18,500,000 school building program over the next three years.

In addition six aldermen, four school trustees and three parks board commissioners will be elected.

It will be the fourth time ratepayers have voted on Sunday sport, which has been a political issue here for seven years. They voted twice against and once in favor of it in previous polls.

28-Item Things-to-do List Prepared by Works Board

Victoria public works committee has compiled a 28-item things-to-do list which will be used as a basis in drawing up 1958 estimates.

City engineer J. C. Garnett explained today the list does not represent next year's public works program although the more vital needs will be met if possible.

Council has already named the long-awaited new firehall as its number one 1958 project. Trailing it will be some of the items in the list. It was read to the committee Monday by works chairman, Ald. M. H. Mooney.

Here are the projects:

Widen and improve Douglas at Beacon Hill Park, additional parking bays near the model yacht pool, boat launching ramps at Ross Bay, Clover Point and Dock Street waterfront, reconstruction Princess St. between Douglas and Government, improve Point Ellice Bridge approaches, paving improvements Bay, Blanshard, Quadra, Oak Bay-Fort St. intersection.

A general street rehabilitation program, reconstruction tower span Johnson St. bridge, new garbage wharf, incinerator and machinery for compacting wastes and new garbage scow, Ross Bay seawall repairs, additional bus stop concrete aprons, continue water main depreciation maintenance, acquire more lands for Fort St. widening, more traffic controls, begin a downtown parking project, extend Clover Point sewer outfall, revamp loading zones, improve northwest sewer pumping station.

Other long-range plans which are included in the tentative list are a new Rock Bay Bridge, a new Causeway boulevard, dredging of inner harbor and further improvement to the channeling of Bowker Creek.

Canada's Basic Trend to Growth

"There is every reason to be optimistic about the long-term outlook for Canada and, in short term, elements of stability should be sources of reassurance," said Neil J. McKinnon, President, addressing the 91st Annual Meeting of The Canadian Bank of Commerce.

WHEN we met a year ago the economic atmosphere both at home and abroad was one of boom. There were on all sides demands pressing too heavily on available supplies of materials and labour with the inevitable consequence of marked upward pressure on prices.

The economic environment of to-day is in noticeable contrast to the strained atmosphere of a year ago. The Gross National Product began to level off about mid-year and for the full year probably will not greatly exceed the 1956 level. Wholesale prices early in the year developed a declining tendency and this trend seems now to be gradually reflected in consumer prices which recently have lost most of their upward impetus. Evidence of the changed pace of the economy is also to be seen in reduced freight car loadings, a cutback in petroleum production to under one half of capacity, a lessened rate of growth in consumption of electric energy and a lowered volume of industrial production. The value of shipments to external markets so far somewhat exceeds that in the corresponding period of last year. Consumer expenditures continue at a high level although there is some indication that the pace of increase is lessening. While the number of unemployed has increased in a year when the labour force has shown a marked increase, employment continues at a higher level than last year.

THERE has emerged during the year clear evidence of a condition that has been building up for some time but which had been concealed by demands for abnormally rapid industrial expansion and government stock-piling: a situation in which capacity is equal to and in many cases in excess of current effective demand for all forms of consumer and capital goods and services. Prices of many commodities which are freely traded in world markets declined noticeably in midsummer, partly due to increasing production in relation to demand and partly due to a reversal of the stock-piling policies of other governments reflected in sales contrasted to purchases. Some other commodities, the prices of which have been maintained by government support, have also shown weakness, as not all governments have been able to hold the stock-piles which their domestic pricing policies have generated. This is most noticeably true of the United States in its international disposal policies for agricultural products.

The accumulating evidence suggests that 1958 will mark the fourth time since the end of the Second World War that the Canadian economy will have passed through a period of significant adjustment. Each of these occasions differs from the others in pattern and in degree. The first in 1946 represented the transition both domestically and internationally from war to peace-time conditions; the second in 1949 reflected some slackening in the initial post-war expansion followed by new stresses on the economy generated by the Korean conflict; the third in 1954 witnessed temporary adjustments in production and consumption. We have come through another upswing with many gains. The buoyant months of 1955 and 1956 have culminated in a high plateau for the economy in 1957. Although statistical indications identify the recent experience as a levelling-off process the plateau is rather uneven: in some cases declines are taking place while in others there continues to be a steady if unspectacular advance. We now appear to be entering a period of consolidation following this period of rapid expansion during the past two years.

DURING periods of this kind there are always doubts and misgivings about the future. This has been the case in the several previous readjustments since the end of the Second World War. Although from the author's point of view there is probably no venture quite as profitless as an attempt to forecast the future there is no reason why we should not address ourselves to the year 1958 and consider some of the major factors influencing the economy. The three principal ones which must be kept under scrutiny are export trade, new capital investment and consumer expenditure.

In the case of external trade, although the price of a number of raw materials has declined and to a degree the terms of trade have turned against Canada, the aggregate dollar value of exports still holds up well. The future trend depends on the level of economic activity in other nations and especially in the United States. Although there are indications of reduction in export demand for some products, enlarged shipments of others may well cushion a decline. As exports last year exceeded $4,800,000,000 and imports exceeded $5,700,000,000 in relation to a Gross National Product of nearly $30,000,000,000, it is evident how important external trade is to domestic activity.

The total capital investment for 1957 is estimated to approach $8.7 billion, an increase of $800 million over 1956 and $2.3 billion over 1955. There are some indications that the total capital investment for 1958 will not be as great but this year's total at more than 28% of Gross National Product is a very high one indeed and is at a level which could not reasonably be expected to be maintained. Although the composition of capital investment will change, the total for 1958 will undoubtedly be a very large one by comparison with any year prior to 1956.

Consumer expenditures, which represent nearly two-thirds of the Gross National Product, continue at a high level although the pace of increase has slackened. This total is governed not only by available income but by spending attitudes. Aggregate earned income currently appears to be running at a higher level than a year ago while the ratio of consumer debt to income is slightly reduced.

Canadians have in recent years shown a marked disposition to spend. In 1954 for example, consumer expenditures rose continuously at a time when there was a noticeable easing in other categories of expenditures. Between 1955 and 1956 consumer expenditures increased by more than 8% and in the early quarters of 1957 this rise was continued but at a slower rate. It is likely that the final figures for the year will show a levelling-off but that we shall enter 1958 with a level of consumer expenditures considerably above any year prior to 1957.

Looking further to the future, probably one of the significant influences on the amount of gross private investment is the level of corporation profits. Gross private investment has an importance much greater than its actual dollar size. It not only represents the plans and aspirations of all business but also contributes to personal income without in the first instance adding a corresponding amount of consumer goods or services to the production side of national transactions. This year has witnessed a shrinkage in the profit margins of a number of industries. Investment plans are, of course, made in anticipation of adequate earnings on the investment and when the prospects are not promising such plans are likely to be deferred. Many industries are facing conditions of rising costs while selling prices under competitive pressures cannot be raised. Business in such a position finds it necessary to concentrate on stabilizing costs rather than on giving thought to further expansion. If prospects are inimical to enlarged investment there is a diminution in one of the important sources of employment of labour.

IN dollar terms, private expenditures for new industrial and commercial buildings, and for equipment, have more than doubled since 1950. During 1957, non-residential construction continued to increase while expenditures on machinery and equipment showed some signs of easing a little. In housing a revival has been in progress since about mid-year. It is doubtful if outlays on new houses and apartments this year will exceed 85% of the unusually high level attained in 1956 but this will still represent a very high rate of housing expenditure.

Government expenditures on goods and services which cover about a billion dollars of public investment—mostly in construction – have continued to increase over their 1956 level. As governments are spending in the aggregate about one dollar in six on behalf of the taxpayers, it can be seen that public programmes hold an important place in the economic as well as the political field. The portion of public investment which goes into roads, schools, public utilities and into urban transportation facilities is one of the important influences in the economy. Because of this there is fully as important an economic as political significance in the deliberations of the councils charged with settling the primary fiscal relations between our three levels of government.

Although many natural resource and industrial developments required massive amounts of capital, which could only come from foreign sources, the incidence of taxation and the high rate of consumption which are prominent aspects of the welfare state tend to lessen capital accumulation – particularly the kind of capital that is apt to be venturesome. In a nation such as Canada, which did not previously possess a large and mobile reservoir of capital, this condition meant that a very large part of our development, if it was to take place at all, had to be financed by foreign investment which carried with it increasing ownership of sources of production. The past few years have shown a continuance of this pattern in our foreign balance of payments. Although Canada's foreign trade shows a large deficit on merchandise account, the Canadian dollar remains at a premium due to a still larger net inflow of capital. A less assuring part of current trade lies in the fact that although a large part of our imports is in capital goods which will add to future production, an increasing amount is in consumer goods. In other words, we are using imported capital which carries a continuing obligation to service in order to finance part of our current consumption. This is like a man borrowing to finance day-to-day living costs and, as we all know, there is a limit beyond which that cannot be continued.

A source of unemployment during 1957 was in those Canadian industries which depend on forest products. Here, too, exports have tapered off sharply, although the long-term outlook remains favourable.

Unemployment appeared in manufacturing, where durable goods production over a wide range of products began falling off early in 1957. This decline in what had been a buoyant industry can be attributed in an important degree to the premium on the Canadian dollar which has subsidized imports and served to displace both domestic production and employment. Perhaps under the changed economic outlook which we are facing, it would be reasonable to expect the monetary authorities to exercise through the market an influence on the international value of the monetary unit to minimize this handicap both to domestic producers and to export industries.

•

THERE has been much public discussion about monetary policy as reflected in money supply and interest rates and its influence on the economy and it is important to understand its limitations. While it is true that a restriction in supply of money available can limit expenditures it must be recognized that it is the expenditures themselves and not the money supply that are directly linked to the volume of output and employment. Under conditions of declining demand and lowered expenditures money supply tends to be a neutral element, adequate and willing to support an upswing but powerless in itself to create it. It may not be inappropriate to add that there has been a great deal of unjustified and uninformed criticism of what has been described as tight money over the past two years. There may well be differences of view as to the timing, nature and degree of monetary influences exerted by the authorities but one thing is clear: if all the money had been made available for which there was a demand there would have been nothing said about tight money but there would have been much more vocal and much more justified criticisms of sharply rising prices.

•

THE year now closing has established a Gross National Product of more than $30 billion and we have had three years of unprecedented advances in real output. We cannot expect to maintain this rapid pace every year but a period of consolidation should not blind us to our basic inclination to growth. Not only does our developing and under-populated country equipped with rich national resources have a basic inclination to grow but this bias is being continually reinforced with new sources of energy—hydro-electric power, petroleum, natural gas and in the years to come nuclear energy for which Canada is a storehouse of vast quantities of uranium. People too provide individual energy and creative resourcefulness and this is fully as true of immigrants as of the natural increase in population. By no means the least among the influences toward growth is the generation of new products in increasing variety developed through scientific research – most of it conducted in larger and more mature economies, it is true, but from which we gain benefit. Such things in recent years as synthetic fibres, plastics and electronics are examples not only of new products but of new industries.

There is every reason to be optimistic about the long-term outlook for Canada and in the short term there are elements of stability which should be sources of reassurance. If, however, we are to achieve increase in production and in per capita output and wealth we shall have to pay close attention to providing the economic climate and incentives for hard constructive and creative work, whether it be done through individual or corporate activity and enterprise.

J. P. R. Wadsworth, General Manager, reviewed the balance sheet, highlights of which are summarized, and said in part:

The ninety-first annual statement shows total assets to have reached an all-time high at $2,581,695,000, an increase of $146,781,000 over the record figure for last year. Deposits grew to a new high of $2,406,843,000, an increase of $127,746,000. Personal savings increased by $53,476,000 and now total $1,166,237,000. These figures become more meaningful when it is realized that the Bank serves more than two million personal and business customers in 765 offices from Newfoundland to British Columbia and in addition 12 branches are operated abroad.

Commercial and other loans, at $1,060,272,000 decreased by $8,608,000. Loans in Canada rose while loans outside Canada declined. In the administration of the Bank's lending business, it has been and continues to be our policy to serve the worthy and constructive needs of borrowing customers both small and large, provided they meet our standards of sound quality.

The number of shareholders increased from 17,231 to 18,373 and the number of shares outstanding from 3,750,000 to 4,500,000.

Twenty-four new branches were opened in Canada and we have established a new branch at Nassau and a second branch in London, England, in Berkeley Square.

A report to the shareholders would not be complete without a sincere expression of appreciation to all members of the Bank's personnel. The results have been accomplished through a team effort in which each member has had a part to play. Changing conditions have required an increasing amount of individual resourcefulness on the part of branch managers and officers.

I would also like to mention the important role played by the women in the Bank, and the increasing responsibilities that are being assumed by many of them. The part that they play is an important one and over the years to come they will undoubtedly assume greater responsibilities in the operation of the Bank's affairs.

The steady growth and development of the Bank provide ever increasing opportunities for the able young man who wishes to make banking his career. Be he a high school or college graduate there are increasing opportunities and such a young man will find that a banking career is rewarding not only in a tangible way, but in a sense of personal accomplishment. The profession presents a challenge to the young man who wants to work and take advantage of opportunities that are afforded to study and to learn on the way up.

'JUMPED UP AND DOWN'

Oak Bay Youth Ask Andy Winner

ALLAN JOHNSTON
. . . jumped for joy

Allan Johnston, 10, of 1714 Hampshire, was speechless with delight when he learned he'd won a Hammond International Globe for submitting a question to The Times' "Ask Andy" column.

He received a letter notifying him of the win a few days ago.

"I didn't say anything," Allan said. "I just jumped up and down."

A grade five student at Willows School, Allan had asked Andy where Robinson Crusoe's island was located.

His question is answered in today's column.

Allan's interests lie mainly in science, soccer and painting.

Three of his paintings were hung in the Art Gallery recently as a feature of "Education Week."

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a Hammond's International World Globe to Allan Johnston, aged 10, Victoria, B.C., for his question:

Where Is Robinson Crusoe's Island?

The full title of the book by Defoe is "The Life and Strange Surprising Adventures of Robinson Crusoe. Its story is taken from a true life adventure. The true life hero was a British sailor named Alexander Selkirk. In 1704, Selkirk was set ashore, at his request, on Masa-Tierra Island some 400 miles off the coast of Chili. There he lived alone for some five years.

Defoe changed his hero's name to Robinson Crusoe. He also chose another island for his exile. This story book island was said to be in sight of Trinidad at the mouth of the Orinoco River of South America.

Selkirk's real island, off the coast of Chili, is in a cluster called the Juan Fernandez Islands. The country of Chili, to which it belongs, has made it a national park.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Joseph Mackay, aged 14, of Astoria, N.Y., for his question:

What Is An Anthropod?

Anthropoda is the largest phylum of the animal kingdom. Its name is coined from older words meaning joint and foot. An anthropod has jointed feet, legs, body and antennae. Also he may have a jointed stinger. We also have jointed bodies. But we are not anthropods. Our bony joints are part of the skeleton inside our bodies. The joints of the anthropod are part of his coat.

An anthropod has no bones at all, not even a backbone. His body is held together by a tough coat of a material called chitin. Some of his chitin is as hard as a fingernail and some is soft as a pair of kid gloves. On his legs he wears chitin stockings firm enough to support his body. But at his knees and ankles there are garters of softer chitin. These garters are bendable and form joints.

The anthropod's joints are worked by muscles fixed to the inside of the chitin coat. They straddle over the soft garters with their ends attached to the hard chitin on either side. To bend a joint the muscles are contracted on one side and relaxed on the other side. This makes the soft garter work like a concertina.

By now you are wondering what kind of animal has these fancy joints. Well, he must be a small fellow because he has no internal skeleton. A large animal needs a strong bony structure to support his body. Most anthropods measure less than an inch. Yet they are so successful that there are over a million different species. They outnumber all the other creatures in the world by six to one.

That's right—you have guessed that the insects are anthropods. But not all anthropods are insects. The vast phylum is divided into about a dozen classes. The anthropod giants belong to the class Crustacea. This class includes the lobsters, crabs and shrimps. Another class is Arachnida. It is made up of spiders, scorpions, mites and ticks. Chilipoda is the class of centipedes.

By far the greater number of anthropods belong to the class Insecta—the insects. So far we have named and classified well over half a million of them. And this is only a small percentage of the insects waiting to be described and get their names on the list.

The huge class of Insecta is subdivided into about 25 orders. The order orthoptera includes the roaches and the grasshoppers. Most of them have leathery front wings and hind wings folded like gauzy fans. Hymenoptera is the order of bees, wasps and ants. It includes the only insects with stingers.

From our point of view the lobsters, crabs and shrimps are the most valuable of the anthropods. But without a doubt the most beautiful anthropods belong to the Lepidoptera order of the Insecta class. This is the order of moths and butterflies.

There is a vast difference between crabs and flies, lobsters and lightning bugs. But all of them are anthropods with jointed feet and jointed bodies. A parade of all the living anthropods would reach around the world.

'Lost' Royal Nugget Found; Melted in 1919

LONDON (Reuters) — Officers of the royal household Tuesday turned two palaces upside down in a painstaking hunt for a fist-sized gold nugget—a gift of 46 years ago—and finally recalled that the thing was melted into spoons and forks in 1919.

New Zealand presented the 100-ounce nugget to King George V at Buckingham Palace June 21, 1911, the day before his coronation.

It was the largest nugget ever found in New Zealand and was named Roddy after Minister of Mines Rhoderick McKenzie.

Speedy U.K. Newsman Pays Visit to Island

By TONY DICKASON

Mr. William Courtenay—"same name as your town up-Island"—who owns an OBE and an MM—whisked through town Tuesday.

Mr. Courtenay, a journalist for 35 years, was here in the course of another sweep around the world which he accomplishes, apparently without undue fatigue, twice yearly.

SPEAKS TO CADETS

He lectured the local chapter of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs Tuesday night, following an education talk to Royal Roads cadets on the fester-spots of the Middle East.

Here, greatly abbreviated, is his itinerary since last January when he relaxed briefly in trench coat and cap in the Empress bar.

Middle East including Israel, Jordan, Cyprus, Iraq; then on HMS Albion to Denmark; then the carrier Ark Royal to Norfolk, Virginia; the Far East next, including Gan, 840 miles south of Ceylon.

Next, NATO exercises aboard HMS Eagle; lecturing to troops in Scotland; then to the U.S. fleet for Atlantic anti-sub exercises; lectures in Washington and New York; then Halifax.

"I've been speaking across the country since."

OLD HAND

He's an old hand at this. Last year Mr. Courtenay addressed 80 Canadian Clubs in Canada within four months.

His voice, understandably, is hoarse.

The Sussex man has two daughters and a son. The son is in the army at Gibraltar. "I see him fairly frequently."

He's off to Seattle from here to visit the Boeing aircraft establishment, then is flying back to Halifax and taking a boat for England.

"Ah, Christmas in England," he sighed.

What's going on in the Middle East?

"Nasser is trying to reconstruct a line through Jordan to Syria to semi-encircle Israel and destroy Israel, thus wiping out the stain of last year's defeat."

After two long-distance telephone calls in four minutes, Mr. Courtenay sped away.

Assessment Courts Named by Cabinet

Appointments to 1958 courts of revision to hear appeals of assessments on land and improvements for school tax purposes were made Tuesday by the cabinet.

Members of the court for School District 61, Greater Victoria, are J. D. McIntosh, chairman, Waldo Skillings and J. W. Casey.

Saanich: H. E. Alder, chairman; Robert L. Christison, and Harry E. Baade.

Sinatra 'Organized' After Hectic Career

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What brought about the change in Frank Sinatra?

His switch from washed-up crooner to one-man industry is one of Hollywood's favorite stories. But how he managed it is somewhat of a mystery.

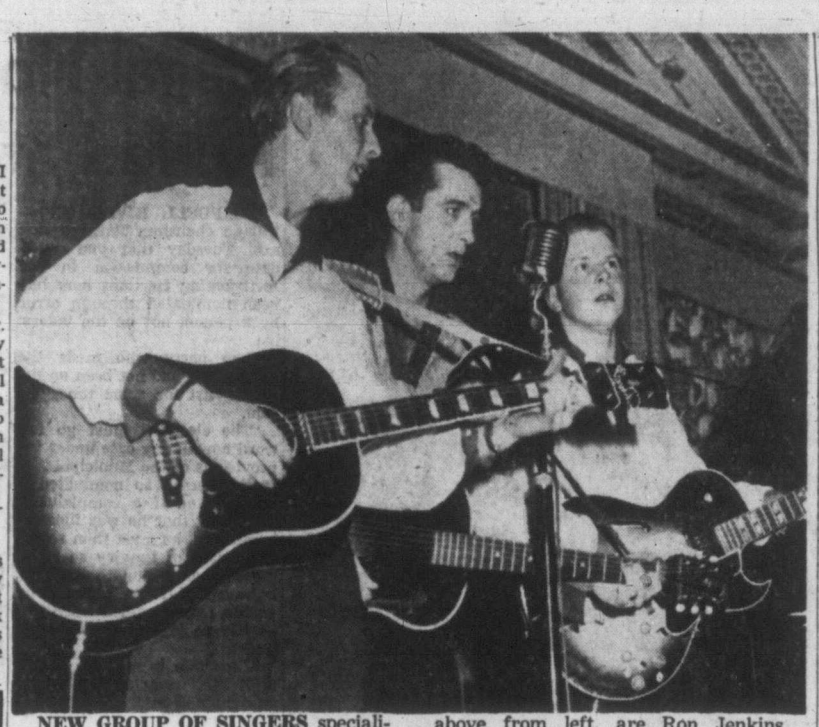
During a talk on the set of Kings Go Forth, he gave some insight on the answer. His rejuvenation appears to be due in large part to psychiatry, success and common sense.

"For the first time in my life, I'm organized," he said. "I had to learn the hard way, but now I know that I can only do one thing at a time. Oh, when I think of the energy I wasted 10 years ago trying to do everything at once and getting nothing done really well!

"Now I know what I'm doing. All of today, I'll devote my time to this picture, giving it all my concentration. Then I'll go have dinner and go to a recording session from 9 to midnight at Capitol records. In the time I'm going there, I'll adjust my thinking to the making of records."

Cigarets Stolen

A thief who entered Richards Food Market, 5450 Patricia Bay Highway by forcing the front door overnight Monday took about $200 worth of cigarets and groceries, Saanich police were told Tuesday.



NEW GROUP OF SINGERS specializing in popular tunes, the "Nite-Hawks," will add zing to a "T-Bricks for Korea" benefit show at the Odeon Theatre Sunday at 9 p.m. Members above, from left, are Ron Jenkins, Thom Craycroft and Norm Winquist. They and other artists will perform free of charge.

SINGER WINS CUSTODY OF 4

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Singer Dean Martin Tuesday won custody of his four children by a former wife. Martin's former wife, Elizabeth Anne, did not contest Martin's petition for the children's return. She obtained custody after the couple's 1949 divorce.

By-Law Puts End to Tattoo Fad Disfiguring Youths in Calgary

CALGARY (CP)—The tattoo fad among Calgary teenagers apparently has been ended by preparation of a new city by-law.

However, an estimated 20 high school boys, most of them between 13 and 15, are left with an assortment of tattooed eagles, roses, dragons, hearts and daggers—or the ugly brown skin stains that remain after costly attempts to remove them.

The fad was discovered last week after one alarmed parent reported his son had arrived home with both arms tattooed—four tattoos, in all.

The city children's aid department began its own investigation and turned up what superintendent Hiram Coulter described as a "fairly widespread practice, with at least a dozen and possibly more young lads disfigured by tattoos."

Monday night, city council, after hearing Mr. Coulter's protest that there was no legislation to prevent such a fad, gave first reading to a bylaw it hopes will stop the practice.

The by-law provides that all tattoo artists must be licenced by the city, and that no person under 18 can be tattooed without the written consent of his parents.

In the investigation by the children's aid department, there appeared to be no cases of girls being tattooed.

Some of the boys told Mr. Coulter they wanted to have the tattoos removed, but were told by the artists that it would cost $10 a square inch for the removal. Even then, they said, they would be left with a permanent brown scar.

One youth said his several tattoos cost $12.50. Others indicated the cost ranged from 25 cents to $8 a tattoo, depending on the design.

There was no indication that the boys involved were members of a teenage gang. Officials said it was simply a case of the youngsters not wanting to be outdone by their school companions.

Meanwhile, Dr. W. H. Hill, city medical health officer, said he frowns on tattooing of anyone—age regardless—because a great deal depends on the sterility of the artist's needle in impregnating of the skin with analine dye.

"It's not like having sideburns" Dr. Hill warned the teenagers. "Those you can shave off. You can't remove a tattoo."

THEFT VICTIM

NEW YORK (AP)—Eugenia Bankhead, sister of Tallulah, reported to police Tuesday night she and a woman friend had $40,500-worth of jewelry stolen from their room at St. Regis Hotel. Police said none of the jewelry was insured.

IWA Urges Fight Against Increase In Medical Rates

DUNCAN—Members of Local 1-80, IWA, were advised at their quarterly meeting here to attend the next meeting of the Medical Services Association and to fight any proposed increase in rates.

George Mitchell, Vancouver, district IWA secretary, said a move by doctors at Trail to increase rates was fought successfully.

"The MSA committee simply told them that the same fees as previously would be paid direct to the patients," Mr. Mitchell said, "and that any charges beyond that the doctors would have to get the best way they could. The doctors soon dropped their demands."

Three Accused Remanded on Thefts Charge

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP)—Three Campbell River men were remanded Tuesday without plea until Dec. 19 when they appeared before Magistrate R. L. Haig-Brown charged with breaking, entry and theft of a safe.

They were Lew Tortorelli, 26; Edward George Newfield, 21, and Donald Ross, 35. RCMP said they were arrested Monday in connection with the removal of a 700-pound safe from Nuttall's garage in Campbellton.

Police said the safe had not been opened in five years. The combination was lost when the present owners bought the garage.

DEER SEASON TOTAL 100

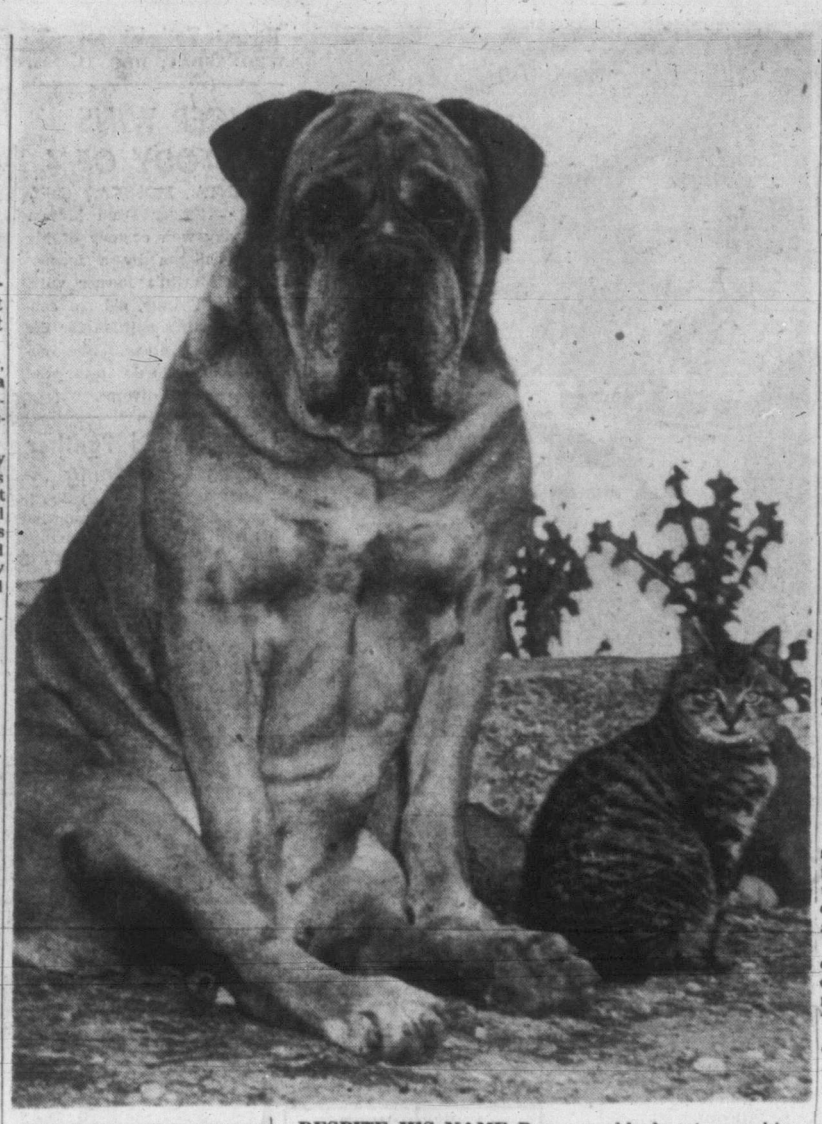
CHEMAINUS — One hundred deer were shot in the Copper Canyon area this year, or 30 more than last year, according to figures compiled by the Rod and Gun Club here.

Although hunting was poor at the start of the season, 68 deer and 255 birds were shot in the last three weeks.

During the deer season 385 cars and 706 hunters were checked into the area.

Supports By-Law

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — Mayor Loran Jordon says Port Alberni needs a new municipal building to replace the present one, with its crowded working conditions and rotting foundations. He was commenting on a request to ratepayers to vote on a $150,000 referendum for a new municipal building project.



DESPITE HIS NAME Roary could almost mew his way into membership in good standing with the Cats' Protection League. The bull mastiff "on duty" is night watchdog at the Ladysmith Oyster Bar owned by W. Pleasant. But off duty he is the best friend of every stray cat in the neighborhood, providing them massive shade from the sun. His daily ration is four pounds of meat and he's stayed at the cafe 10 years, through several changes of ownership, because nobody but a cafe owner could afford to satisfy his huge appetite. ONE VOTE FOR SALLY ROGERS

Illegal Nomination Charge Hurled at Campbell River

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP)—Village chairman Barnard Box said Tuesday that one candidate for commission in the forthcoming elections here had been nominated through error by a person not on the voters' list.

"The party who made the nomination had not been on the voters' list for some time," he said.

"The elections must go forward now in any case under the provisions of the Municipal Act. If the person so nominated is elected, and if a complaint is registered that he was illegally nominated, he must then resign if a board of inquiry so rules.

"It is only fair to mention, however, that the complaining person may be fined heavily if he has no legal basis for complaint.

"I hesitate to mention names until the whole matter is straightened out."

Hotel Looted Near Nanaimo

NANAIMO — Police here are searching for thieves who broke into the Wheatsheaf Hotel on the weekend and stole 86 cases of beer and 20 cartons of cigarets.

They forced a rear door to enter the building. It is on the old Island highway about seven miles south of here.

FISHBOATS PRESS HUNT FOR MISSING TEENAGER

VANCOUVER (CP)—Fishing craft continued the hunt today for a 14-year-old boy whose parents drowned during the weekend when their codboat sank in Johnstone Strait.

The search by Air-Sea Rescue planes for Danny Allen of Stuart Island, who is missing and presumed dead, was discontinued Tuesday.

The bodies of Buster and Verna Allen were found Monday by searchers. Their 32-foot craft was last seen Friday on a trip to Vancouver Island.

Growers, Buyers Hail Probe of Food Prices

Vancouver Island growers and consumers today wholeheartedly endorsed the appointment of a Royal Commission to inquire into the spread of prices received by farmers and the prices paid by consumers.

The probe was announced Tuesday by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

"It will clear the air" with regard to profits made from farm products, said Charles E. S. Walls, secretary-manager of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture, which represents 1,800 farmers on Vancouver Island and the mainland.

Mr. Walls said he has already been instructed by farm groups to prepare briefs for submission when it sits in Vancouver or Victoria.

CATTLEMEN WORRIED

B.C. cattlemen, he said, were most concerned with the increasing price spread on beef.

"Cattlemen don't know why consumers are paying such a high price for beef," he said.

He said in 1953 cattlemen received 32 cents a pound for prime steers. In the past year they have been receiving about 18 cents a pound.

"The consumer price has not dropped in relation to the decrease in price received by the producer," he stated.

EGGS TOO

He said there is a need for an investigation into the price spread on B.C. eggs and poultry.

Statistics showed, Mr. Walls said, that in 1956 prices of farm produce of Canadian origin increased by slightly less than 2 per cent, while prices received at the farm level remained fairly stable.

"The inquiry will reveal that the producer is not responsible for the food price increases," said Mr. Walls.

Mr. Walls said growers and farmers across Canada asked the federal government last July to launch an inquiry.

Elizabeth Mills, provincial president, Canadian Association of Consumers, said the commission's findings should make the housewife aware of why she is paying such a high price for food products.

"The question is, of course, whether the government will take action to implement the recommendations of the commission," she said.

Mexico Shivers

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A cold wave sweeping Mexico sent temperatures down to 14 degrees above zero today. Police said four deaths resulted from the cold. Reports from farm areas indicated heavy losses of some crops.

About Eaton's...

Whether you're the last of the big time spenders, or (like most of us) trying to squeeze just one more gift out of a too-small budget, we like to make shopping at EATON'S convenient for you. That's why we have our Customer Services, designed to help you get the very most out of your time, and the most value and results for your money. Just another reason why all year round, but especially at Christmas time, "It Pays to Shop at EATON'S."

First Impressions

—last longest, so they say, and a good job of gift wrapping lends added glamour to even the most inexpensive of gifts. "True, true," you say, nodding the head wisely, "but I have ten thumbs and my gift wrapped parcels make the Christmas tree shudder when I put them under it." No need to despair—take your gift to our Second Floor Gift Wrap, explain the type of wrapping you want and for a modest fee your parcels will be made almost too pretty to open.

Post Haste

Why lug your out-of-town gifts back home! Smartest shoppers make up a gift list which includes addresses, choose their gifts from EATON'S vast selections, have them gift-wrapped (warn the wrapper that you'll be mailing them, and she'll avoid using crushable bows and such) and then mail them in the store. Right next to the Post Office on the Lower Main Floor, we provide wrapping paper, twine, and space to work in. Buy, gift wrap, wrap for mailing, mail—all under the same roof!

Party Problem?

Maybe you've been looking at the advertisement on this page, and thinking "But I have to buy gifts for our children's party, and I can't possibly do it all myself." Weep no more—just write down the names and ages of the expected guests (one list for boys, and one for girls) and the approximate amount you want to spend. Our Personal Shopper will select gifts, have them wrapped, tagged with names, and delivered in time for the party. No charge other than the cost of the gifts.

Adult Entertainment

Though Christmas is for the children, our Personal Shopper is happy to help with parties for the grown-ups too. Better leave the ages off the list (you're only guessing at most of them, and the only one you know for sure you won't tell!) This service is especially useful for office parties and for harried employers who give presents to secretaries and staff.

Eat Hearty

Yet another party problem we can help solve. Our Hostess Shop service will provide the festive food, whether you aim to have a buffet with turkey, ham, salads and all the trimmings . . . or just a few sandwiches with pickles, nuts and candies for nibbling on the side." Pearson Urges New Peace Diplomacy

OSLO (CP)—Lester B. Pearson today pleaded for complete exchange of views between East and West, especially between Moscow and Washington.

The former Canadian external affairs minister, who Tuesday received the Nobel Peace Prize here, said:

"Our policy and diplomacy—as the two sides in the cold war face each other—are becoming as rigid and defensive as the trench warfare of 40 years ago, when two sides dug in, dug deeper, and lived in their ditches. . . .

"It is essential that we avoid this kind of dangerous stalemate in international policy today. The main responsibility for this purpose rests with the two great world powers, the United States and the U.S.S.R.

"No progress will be made if one side merely shouts 'co-existence'—a sterile and negative concept—and 'parleys at the summit,' while the other replies 'no appeasement,' and 'no negotiations without proof of good faith' . . .

"We must keep on trying to solve problems, one by one, stage by stage, if not on the basis of confidence and co-operation, at least on that of mutual toleration and self-interest.

"What I plead for is no spectacular meeting of a Big Two or a Big Three or a Big Four summit, where the footing is precarious and the winds blow hard, but for frank, serious and complete exchanges of views—especially between Moscow and Washington—through diplomatic and political channels."

Essential to the success of any such exchanges was recognition by the West that there were certain issues, such as reunification of Germany and stabilization of the Middle East, which were not likely to be settled satisfactorily without Russian particpation.

It was also essential that Russia recognize the right of people to choose their own form of government without interference from outside forces or subversive domestic forces encouraged and assisted from outside.

Mr. Pearson said he well knows such a diplomatic approach would involve "baffling complexities, difficulties and even risks."

But "the first failure would be to refuse to make the attempt." It would be folly to expect quick, easy or total solutions but it would be even greater folly to do nothing, "to sit back, answer missile with missile, insult with insult, ban with ban."

Mr. Pearson entitled his Nobel Peace Prize lecture "The Four Faces of Peace." The four aspects were "peace and trade"; "peace and power"; "peace and policy, or diplomacy"; and "peace and people."

The 60-year-old diplomat said a great gulf has been opened between man's material advance and his social and moral progress—"a gulf in which he may one day be lost if it is not closed or narrowed."

Peace, he said, "must surely be more than this trembling rejection of universal suicide."

He suggested freer communication between the

SHE PUSHED WRONG PEDAL

A woman driver's foot missed the brake pedal and hit the accelerator at Douglas and Fisgard Tuesday afternoon. The above scene resulted. Driver Mrs. Marjorie Fortye, 1045 Belmont, can be seen behind the wheel. Car jumped the curb, bowled over two pedestrians, tore out a pole and brought traffic signals and cluster lights crashing down. Nobody was seriously hurt. A three-month-old child in a buggy escaped with bruises. See story, Page 9. (Times Photo by Halkett.)

Heavy Seas Smash U.K. Ships, Homes

PRINCESS PROTECTION ROUSES IRE OF SCOTS

DUNDEE, Scotland (UP)—Angry Scots fired off protests today to Princess Margaret and the government because a station platform was cleared when the princess boarded a train for London.

The barrage of criticism was started by Dundee resident Mark Paterson who was not permitted to say goodbye to his sister and her baby when they left for Nairobi, Kenya.

It was the latest in a series of cases in which police action to keep crowds away from members of the Royal Family has been met by public criticism and newspaper condemnation.

Traffic Snarled By Heavy Snow

LONDON (Reuters)—Heavy seas driven by hurricane-force winds lashed England's south coast today.

Winds ranged up to 81 miles an hour. Seas tore ships from their moorings, smashed boats on beaches, piled sand and gravel on coast roads and damaged a main railroad line.

The seawall at Weymouth on the southwest coast collapsed under the battering and tons of sand blocked the adjoining highway.

At Plymouth, a 550-ton car ferry was blown ashore but refloated later while a passenger ferry in the same river was carried nearly half a mile upstream.

POWER LINES CUT

Seas damaged the main London-Plymouth railroad line, delaying trains up to three hours.

Though the storm was moderating today gale warnings were in force all around the coast and gales were still raging over the Irish Sea, parts of northern England and Scotland.

Many houses in England were damaged, trees blown down on roads and overhead telephone and power cables broken.

Heavy snow blanketed northern Scotland, delaying trains and blocking roads.

More than 200 vehicles, mostly long-distance trucks, were snowbound on Beattock Hill between Carlisle, Northern England, and Glasgow. The road over the steep hill was jammed for several miles.

STRANDED MAN SAVED

Dr. William Ruddock, marooned on Lundy Island in the storm-swept Bristol Channel since Friday, was brought to the mainland today by helicopter.

A lifeboat had taken him out to attend to an islander's sick child.

The British freighter Clan Ross (7,698 tons) broke from her moorings in Canada Dock, Liverpool, today and was in collision with another British ship, the Roonagh Head (6,153 tons), which was damaged.

John D. Rapped By Speaker

OTTAWA (CP) — Tempers bristled in the Commons again today, resulting in a sharp exchange between Prime Minister Diefenbaker and opposition spokesmen.

The incident ended with a minor rebuke for the prime minister from Speaker Roland Michener.

James Sinclair (L-Coast-Capilano) started things off when he asked whether the national film board had recorded an historic event—the start of construction of the South Saskatchewan River dam.

Mr. Sinclair said Mr. Diefenbaker had promised during the election campaign that construction would start in six months. Tuesday was exactly six months from the June 10 election.

Mr. Diefenbaker said such frivolous Commons questions had used up 32 hours and 37 minutes of the present session.

Mr. Sinclair said such questions were not frivolous though it turned out that Mr. Diefenbaker's election promises had been.

Mr. Michener said the prime minister was entitled to comment on the amount of time spent on questions but not to raise the question of the propriety of questions raised previously in the session.

Reuther Scores '58 'Wage Freeze'

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—The AFL-CIO convention came out unanimously today against any 1958 wage freeze. Instead, the convention called for sizeable wage increases and a shorter work week.

Walter Reuther, head of the Auto Workers' Union, charted the federation's bargaining policies in a speech saying the way to counter economic decline and mounting unemployment is to boost wages and increase purchasing power.

The AFL-CIO called the wage increases and reduced straight-time hours before overtime as major 1958 objectives.

SOVEREIGNTY PLEDGE ASKED FROM MAC

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan refused today to promise he will not surrender any degree of Britain's national sovereignty at the NATO summit conference next week.

Labor party members in the House of Commons had demanded a government pledge that any such surrender of sovereignty must first gain the approval of Parliament.

The prime minister replied: "I would certainly not think it right to publish in advance any proposals."

Rioters Driven Off

Bulganin Letter Aimed At NATO, Charges U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States accused Russia today of trying to influence nations of the Atlantic pact summit meeting next week by means of Soviet Premier Bulganin's letters to President Eisenhower and other western leaders.

Bulganin in a 3,000-word message delivered Tuesday to Eisenhower called for an end to all atomic hydrogen tests and for an East-West conference to outlaw war.

The Russians called the missive "very important" but American officials put a propaganda label on it, coming only 6 days before the NATO parley.

The state department said today after State Secretary Dulles conferred at the White House with Eisenhower that the Bulganin letter was "under active study."

But press officer Lincoln White, in a statement read at a press conference, said in reference to the letter received by Eisenhower:

"I think it can be assumed that the timing of the delivery of this letter and the intention of the Soviet Union to publish it would indicate an intention to influence the proceedings at the NATO conference.

"We may wish to consult with other governments concerning it."

It was learned these were the letter's main proposals:

1. A halt after Jan. 1 to all nuclear bomb testing. The Western allies already have rejected this, saying it fails to secure a ban on bomb production with safeguards to prevent cheating.

2. An East-West conference of leaders to outlaw war. This too, has been turned down. The West argues that the best way to prevent war is to ease tensions by settling differences one by one at lower-level talks.

3. A prohibition of nuclear weapons based in Communist Poland and East and West Germany.

4. The usual Soviet demand about making normal world relations and increasing East-West trade. Here again the Allies take the position that such generalizations are worthless unless the Russians are willing to deal with specifics.

LEADERS GET LETTER

Prime Minister Macmillan and the leaders of France, West Germany and India also received letters from Bulganin, either Tuesday or today. Macmillan's office declined comment on the note pending translation and study, but all the letters were believed similar to the one received by Eisenhower.

Bulganin's message to Nehru said Russia was ready to ban nuclear tests Jan. 1 if Britain and the United States would do likewise.

Bulganin denounced the British-U.S. proposal for strengthening NATO. He said plans to be unveiled at the Paris meeting "perturb all peace-loving peoples" and are being drafted amid "warlike hysteria."

Take a Back Seat Reds Gibe at NATO

LONDON (Reuters) — Moscow radio said today "NATO's leaders must obviously take a back seat now" in the face of Soviet achievements in military engineering."

In a broadcast beamed to North America and heard here, the radio said NATO had "proved its inefficiency in every respect." Instead of protecting European peace and security, it had only aggravated the tension there.

Russia Note Needs Careful Study--Smith

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Sidney Smith said today in the Commons that the latest Russian proposals on world problems deserve "careful study."

Every Soviet proposal should not be dismissed out of hand, he said in commenting on letters sent by Soviet Premier Bulganin.

Mr. Smith, replying to Paul Martin (L—Essex East) said the Canadian government has not received any communication from Russia. All that was known was what was gleaned from press reports.

He said the Canadian government would examine with "earnest care" any proposal in the official Russian text with the hope that essential measures for disarmament could be advanced.

Mr. Smith said he hopes Russia has offered the West something of value. Something "more solid" than an end to atomic tests was required, such as proposals for an inspection system to ensure that cessation of testing was carried out.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower, pronounced in excellent condition after a new medical examination, rounded out plans today to fly to Paris Friday in an effort to shore up the Western Alliance he helped forge. But the president still has a faint speech impairment and he still is not discharged from medical care following the mild stroke he suffered 16 days ago.

'T-BRICKS FOR KOREA'

Let's Play Santa To Sick War Babies

By DINAH KERR

Some people say there is no Santa Claus.

They say it's unfair to comfort little children, who have nothing, with the myth of a fat jolly man and a sackful of gifts.

But they're wrong.

Wherever there is joy in giving, there is a Santa Claus.

We can be Santa Claus and we have never had a better opportunity than this Christmas.

We can give life and hope to the children of Korea, who are hopeless now and near death.

They have tuberculosis. We have money. With that money we can build a children's TB pavilion in the sick heart of Seoul.

But we need $12,000 by Christmas. So far you have given $5,333.

How much is it worth to you to prove that Santa Claus will not forget the hopeless children of Korea?

Your donations to the Victoria Daily Times, Douglas Street, or The Times downtown office, Broad Street, will be gratefully received.

Will you help?

PRAYER FOR TODAY

O God, our heavenly Father, deliver Thy children from the curse of complacency. Inspire us with a holy resolve for a deeper spiritual life. Teach us to pray. Increase our faith. Deepen our dedication so that we may be used of Thee and find ourselves at home with Thee both in private prayer and in public duty; through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.

Victorians will vote at the Market Building, Oak Bay residents at the Municipal Hall, Esquimalt electors at the Municipal Hall and 855 Craigflower. Saanich voters will cast ballots at 13 polls, including 10 halls and Cedar Hill, Lansdowne Junior High and Mount View High Schools.

Airline Stewardesses Deliver Baby as Plane Circles Field

SHANNON, Ireland (UP)—An American airliner circled the Shannon airport early today while its two hostesses delivered a baby on radioed instructions from the ground.

The baby, a seven-pound boy, was born to Mrs. Elizabeth Raics, a Hungarian refugee who had not informed airline officials the birth was expected almost immediately.

The 22-year-old mother was one of 75 refugees on their way to New York from Yugoslavia.

Mrs. Raics began labor three hours out from Shannon. Pilot Tec Clarke brought the plane back to the airport but it was fogbound and closed to traffic.

Clarke circled the big skymaster over the airport for more than an hour while airport medical officer Dr. William Flynn radioed instructions.

Shortly after 1.15 a.m. Clarke spotted a break in the fog and landed.

"We just got down in time," Clark said. "As the last passenger left I heard the cry of a baby."

Dr. Flynn reported, "it's a fine boy. The mother is in excellent condition." It was Mrs. Raics' first child.

The plane took off again for North America at 4.20 a.m., with Mrs. Raics, the baby and her husband all aboard. Part of the crews quarters of the chartered U.S. overseas airlines plane was converted into a flying maternity ward.

Flynn said there was no danger to either mother or child.

poles of East and West and that the nations trade as freely as possible together.

"I believe myself that the Russian people wish for peace. I believe also that many of them think that Americans are threatening them with war; that they are in danger of attack. So might I, if I had as little chance to get objective and balanced information about what is going on in the United States.

"Similarly, our Western fears of the Soviet Union have been partly based on a lack of understanding or of information about the people of that country.

"Misunderstanding of this kind arising from ignorance breeds fear and fear remains the greatest enemy of peace."

On peace and trade, Mr. Pearson said: "Men may not now go to war for trade, but lack of trade may help to breed the conditions in which men do go to war . . ."

"The higher the common man sets his economic goals, in this age of mass democracy, the more essential it is to political stability and peace that we trade as freely as possible together. . . . We cannot have one world at peace without a general social and economic progress in the same direction.

"We must have rising living standards in which all nations are participating to such a degree that existing inequalities in the international division of wealth are, at least, not increased.

"For substantial progress on those lines we need the degree of efficiency that comes only with the freest possible movement of commerce through the world, binding people together, providing the basis of international investment and expansion, and thereby, I hope, making for peace."

Mr. Pearson renewed his plea for a permanent United Nations police force. The UN Emergency Force in Egypt was "at least a beginning."

"If, on that foundation, we do not build something more permanent and stronger, we will once again have ignored realities, rejected opportunities and betrayed our trust. We will never learn?

". . . The stark and inescapable fact is that today we cannot defend our society by war since total war is total destruction, and if war is used as an instrument of policy, eventually we will have total war.

"Therefore, the best defence of peace is not power, but the removal of the causes of war and international agreements which will put peace on a stronger foundation than the terror of destruction."

The statements were included in a text of the lecture issued to the press before delivery.

Frantic Commuters Battle Subway Tieup

NEW YORK (AP)—Bedraggled Manhattan workers who live outside the borough wearily climbed out of bed earlier than ever today in a grim effort to beat growing difficulties in the city's worst transit strike.

But during the morning rush hour the travel jams seemed as bad as Tuesday and the day before—if not worse.

Transit officials managed to keep perhaps one-third of the subway trains running, using non-strikers and supervisory personnel in place of members of the Motormen's Benevolent Association, who walked out at 5 a.m. Monday.

Both city and private bus lines, as well as commuter railroads, sought to help ease the maddening travel plight by marshalling all extra equipment possible.

But it was a terrific strain all around, because all such facilities ordinarily operate at just about capacity even with subways running normally.

It promised to be another hectic day of jammed highways, station platforms and frantic struggles of harried commuters seeking to force their way aboard anything moving in the direction of Manhattan.

Subway officials said that of 809 motormen scheduled to work the midnight to 7 a.m. shift on the city's three subway divisions only 299 appeared.

LEAD PIPE THROWN

The first violence was recorded early today when a lead pipe was tossed through a window of a subway train, apparently aimed at the non-striking motorman in the front of the first car.

The striking MBA men, who called their walkout in a jurisdictional dispute over union representation in the subway system, doggedly stuck to their refusal to work despite pleas from the governor and mayor, and threats of firing from the city's transit authority.

Backing the Transit Authority, Mayor Robert F. Wagner warned the strikers Tuesday that they are causing great economic hardships to the city as well as jeopardizing their own incomes and security. The subways handle more than 4,500,000 fares daily.

He said he feels few strikers realize they are breaking state law which imposes dismissal or severe penalties on civil service workers who strike against government agencies.

STORES HARD-HIT

Manhattan department store operators were moaning over Christmas shopping losses. Trade associations estimated sales were 20 to 40 per cent below the same period last year, and put the over-all drop in millions of dollars.

Canada-W. Germany Sign Atomic Pact

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada and West Germany today signed a 10-year agreement for co-operation in peaceful uses of atomic energy which will be used as a pattern for similar bilateral pacts with other countries.

Under the agreement, West Germany will sign a contract with Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited, crown agency which buys and sells Canadian uranium, for the purchase of 500 tons of the radioactive material.

External Affairs Minister Sidney Smith said the agreement, the first signed with a country other than the United States and Britain, will come into force later this month. Canada has other agreements with the U.S. and Britain covering co-operation in the atomic field.

Jordan Bars Procession

JERUSALEM (AP) — Jordan has informed Israel that it will again bar the consular Christmas procession from the traditional road from southern Jerusalem to Bethlehem, officials said here Tuesday night.

The five-mile road, passing the site of Rachel's Tomb, runs exactly as the old Roman road did when Mary and Joseph travelled it.

Under present conditions it cannot be used for any regular traffic between Jerusalem and Bethlehem, as it is cut by barbed wire marking the armistice border.

FISGARD RESTORATION MAKES PROGRESS

Old Light Gets New Life

Partial restoration of the living quarters adjoining Fisgard Lighthouse, at the entrance to Esquimalt Harbor, is nearing completion by Department of Transport workmen.

Interior of the red-brick building was burned out by a fire last August, and the roof almost completely destroyed.

The Department of Transport is putting on a new roof, with the possibility that the quarters will be completely restored if the federal government decides to preserve Fort Rodd as an historic site.

The Fisgard light is joined to Fort Rodd by a narrow causeway. The Fort Rodd restoration was one of the centennial projects considered, and dismissed, by the Greater Victoria Centennial Committee.

The DOT work is on a limited scale, being used as a "fill-in" job when regular workmen are not busy elsewhere.

In addition to a new wooden roof on the living quarters, plaster on the light tower, scorched by the fire, is being repaired.

The interior of the tower, and the light itself, escaped damage in the blaze, origin of which has not been determined.

When the light was established, in 1860, it was tended manually—hence the need for living quarters for the lightkeeper and his wife. But in modern times it became an untended light, and at one time it was planned to demolish the adjoining building.

Now it is hoped it will be restored completely.

LIGHT UP ISLAND ON NEW YEAR'S EVE

Chain of Bonfires Suggested As Fitting Centennial Welcome

A chain of bonfires on Vancouver Island on New Year's Eve has been suggested as a fitting welcome for British Columbia's 1958 centennial year.

R. Barclay Shaw, 411 Queen Anne Heights, proposes that big bonfires extending from Beacon Hill Park to Campbell River should be lit just before midnight on Dec. 31.

"Around each fire I would have bands and choirs, and I would invite the public to participate in rousing celebration to mark the beginning of our centennial year.

"If the weather is suitable, we could flash a Morse Code invitation to the people of the United States from Beacon Hill Park to Port Angeles."

Mr. Shaw, a veteran of the Royal Flying Corps in the First World War, has submitted his suggestion to the B.C. Centennial Committee.

He suggests the bonfires ceremonies should be held at Beacon Hill Park, Mount Douglas, Mount Tolmie, Sidney, Duncan, Ladysmith, Alberni, Comox and Campbell River.

"It would be a fairly inexpensive method of commemorating the start of an historic year, and I believe it would be very effective if properly organized," Mr. Shaw said.

MONTE ROBERTS

A very interesting question was posed at the Victoria City Council meeting Monday, and I can only hope there will be a very interesting answer to same.

The question was, "what qualifications are necessary as to what constitutes an adult cat?"

Now there, I submit, is a very interesting question fit to put all other very interesting questions to shame.

What, indeed, qualifies a cat to be an adult cat?

(In case you are wondering what in the world the august body known as the city council of the city of Victoria was doing, trying to define an adult cat, I also wondered along the same lines.

(But it turns out this is because of a new by-law, limiting each household within the hallowed precincts of the city of Victoria to not more than five ADULT cats. I trust you follow me?)

Which gives us a legitimate reason to figure out, when is an adult cat not an adult cat? And when is a non-adult cat an adult cat?

It is doubtful if the dictionary will help to any great degree, but there is no harm in trying:

"ADULT, adjective: having arrived at full size and strength; matured."

I haven't yet met a cat who has arrived at full size and strength. The longer you know a cat, the greater its size and the greater its strength. Cats continue to grow throughout nine lives, and after the nine lives are used up, they STILL continue to grow.

So let us go back to the dictionary, and see how MATURE might help us:

"MATURE: Brought by natural process to complement of growth and development; full-grown; ripe; completely worked out; fully prepared; perfected."

Ah hah! Now, perhaps, we have found out what constitutes an adult cat.

An adult cat, by the process of analyzing word meanings, turns out to be a PERFECTED cat.

Perfected, of course, is just another way of saying perfect.

So the proposed by-law, which limits each and every household to five ADULT cats, means it limits each household to five PERFECT cats.

All you need do, if you wish to have 489 cats living at your house, is to make sure only FIVE of them are PERFECT.

Remind me to discuss with you, sometime, the question of what constitutes an adult adult.

The licence fee of $15 was included in the fine.

Bernard Bowcott, Victoria, and Robert Carlow, Langford, were charged in city police court today with assault causing bodily harm to Cons. Everett William Heagle at a Yates Street cafe Monday night.

They were remanded without plea to Friday.

Cons. Heagle, who was off duty, was having coffee in the Olympia Cafe, 752 Yates, when two men beckoned to him.

He said he went over to them and one grabbed his arms while the other struck him in the eye. A scuffle followed, in which two windows and glass counter top were smashed.

Labor Delegation Meets Cabinet Again on Brief

British Columbia Federation of Labor representatives met with the provincial cabinet again today to complete the presentation of their annual brief to the government.

The delegation was with the cabinet for two hours last Friday, then adjourned after getting only three-quarters through the brief.

It was expected that Premier Bennett would answer a number of points in the brief, which stresses the need for government action on the unemployment problem.

Jail Term Next Time, Driver Told

Albert Edward Carlow, 2607 Selwyn, Langford, driver of a car in fatal collision with pedestrian John Knowles, 73, 920 Dunsmuir, Dec. 3, was fined $50 or 10 days when he appeared in city court charged with driving while under suspension.

A coroner's jury found that Knowles died accidentally after being in collision with the car at Government and Yates. He was crossing Government, running and not in a pedestrian walk, witnesses said.

Magistrate H. C. Hall warned Carlow: "If you come in again on this charge it will be jail without the option."

He asked Carlow if he had driven on any prior occasion since his licence was suspended. Carlow said he had not.

The magistrate then asked why he had driven that day.

"I was just bringing my mom into town—shopping," Carlow mumbled.

His licence was suspended in October for an unsatisfactory driving record until proof of financial responsibility was filed with the Motor Vehicles Branch.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today:

Holger Julius son, RCN, $25 for driving with an expired learner's permit.

Henry William Flett, 839A Pandora, $50 for driving while under suspension and $10 for failing to make a signal before pulling away from the curb.

Mrs. Isabel F. Laird, 3337 Kingsley, $35 and licence suspension for careless driving.

Pedestrians Hit By Careening Car

An out-of-control convertible careened into a group of pedestrians, then caused an estimated $500 damage when it tore out street lights, fire alarm and traffic light standard at Fisgard and Douglas Tuesday at 4.35 p.m.

Pedestrians, including a three-months-old child in a buggy, escaped with bruises and shaking up.

The accident occurred when the driver hit the accelerator instead of the brake pedal.

BEING PARKED

The car, driven by Marjorie Fortye, 1045 Belmont, was being parked in the first meter space east of Douglas on the north side of Fisgard when it plunged over the sidewalk and headed for the corner where rush hour crowds usually are thick.

Examined and released at St. Joseph's Hospital were:

Mrs. Ruth Harkness, 21, of 558 Sumas, shock and bruises; Kerry Dale Harkness, three months, no injury; Harris Allman, 76, of 1264 Denman, right arm cut.

Mr. Allman was tending his Times street vending stand under the ornamental lamp standard when the car mounted the sidewalk.

SCATTERED

His stand was demolished and parts of it, newspapers and broken glass were scattered.

The car proceeded 95 feet out of control north of Fisgard on Douglas before coming to rest at a bus stop on the east side of Douglas.

The smashed lamp standard was draped over the hood and roof of the car, part of it projecting through the convertible roof into the back seat.

A bus stop sign near the standard was knocked off its base and a new mail box pushed over the curb.

Mrs. Fortye was alone in her car and escaped injury. She was in a state of shock after the accident.

Other children of Mrs. Harkness, Billy, one year, and Diane, two and a half, were uninjured and were taken home by a police matron.

Volunteers Asked For Big Survey By Civil Defence

Civil Defence Director Roger Peachey appealed for more voluteers today for a giant survey of Greater Victoria.

Some 35,000 houses are being surveyed to find out where and how many people lack transportation in case of evacuation.

The survey, launched this fall, has been 40 per cent completed with Gordon Head and Oak Bay areas completely covered as well as a strip of Victoria between Moss and Linden streets extended as far as Hillside.

The survey is needed for formulation of a plan that would use buses and trucks for emergency transport of people without cars.

BCHIS Official Back from Course

By PETER MURRAY

Back at his job this week after a two-and-a-half-year leave of absence is Lloyd F. Detwiller, assistant commissioner of the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

Mr. Detwiller left Victoria with his family in September, 1955, to attend the graduate course in hospital administration at the University of Minnesota.

After spending nine months in Minneapolis, he moved to Los Angeles to serve his residency as assistant administrator of the new medical centre of the University of California.

Now he's glad to be back in smog-free Victoria. Mr. and Mrs. Detwiller and their two children are living again in the home he built at 3280 Beach Drive.

Mr. Detwiller is a graduate of economics from the University of B.C., joining the government in the department of finance in 1946 and helping to set up the collection system for the new sales tax.

He took over direction of hospital insurance in 1950. Four years later when premiums gave way to sales tax financing, Donald M. Cox, an expert in hospital administration, took over as commissioner.

Mr. Detwiller has returned from his studies in the U.S. convinced that B.C. has an excellent hospital care program.

"It makes you realize what wonderful protection it is not to worry about hospital bills," he says.

California has just taken its first cautious step toward government hospital insurance, but most states are far behind us.

'Pay-Back' Asked For City Garages Closed by Mistake

Operator Accuses Police Of 'Rank Discrimination'

Victoria's service station closing controversy flared again today with charges of police discrimination and demands for compensation for stations closed in error last Friday.

Operator of Oak Bay Junction BA station, Victor Williams, said he had laid charges 10 days ago against two garages which violated the new closure by-law.

The new by-law, effective Dec. 1, states stations may open 24 hours a day or else close at 6 p.m. (9 p.m. on Fridays), with no in-between service.

Mr. Williams said he had laid information with police against two dealers who had supported the 6 p.m. closing law, but stayed open until later in the evening.

NO ACTION

"As far as I know there has been no action by the police. But they were quick to act when operators of 24-hour service had complaints last Friday night."

Several stations were closed by police in error. It was not realized all stations could remain open until 9 p.m. on that one night of the week.

Mr. Williams said the police action on one hand, and inaction on his complaint is "rank discrimination."

He said he had offered to appear as a witness against the law-breaking stations.

Mr. Williams has called on the mayor, as chairman of the police commission, to arrange for compensation for the garages which lost Friday night business as a result of the police mistake.

REVISE BYLAW

He also called on city council today to revise the business tax by-law. He felt if stations are divided into two groups, one allowed to stay open more than twice as long as the other, the 24-hour stations should pay double the business tax charged normally.

He promised: "Next year I will definitely run for council." Mr. Williams was a CCF candidate in the last federal elections.

He began his battle with the new closing regulations recently when he announced he will stay open tonight and give gas away.

But he will charge for service such as wiping windshields and checking oil, water and air. There is nothing in the by-law to restrict anything other than gas and oil sales after 6 p.m.

He has planned his free-gas program to start at 6 p.m. tonight, "on the eve of election."

MAYOR COMMENTS

Mayor Percy Scurrah, who earlier called the police closure of several stations Friday, "an honest mistake," commented today on Mr. Williams statements:

"The business tax angle is something that will have to be considered. It requires careful thinking as there are a lot of angles. Restaurants, drug stores and newsstands also are open long hours. If Mr. Williams wants to stay open 24 hours, he can take advantage of the situation as it is right now."

The mayor added, on the question of compensation for stations closed in error last Friday, "I will have to have legal advice on that." Mr. Williams also suggested the dealers who laid the complaints, 24-hour station operators, should be required to pay if the city doesn't.

GOOD REASON

The mayor said he felt there must be good reason for the police having taken no action on the complaints laid by Mr. Williams.

"It's the policy of the police to act on complaints. If there is some delay in acting, there certainly is some good reason for it."

There was no indication the city would challenge Mr. William's right to give gas freely tonight and compensate by charging for service.

UNHAPPY with city business taxation, service station operator Victor Williams, defeated CCF candidate in last federal election, said today he will fight for a seat on city council next year.

VICTORIA OPINION POLL

Traffic, Parking Top City Problem

By BEN W. CROW
Western Surveys-Research Ltd.

Successful candidates in this year's civic elections will have numerous problems to hold their attention during their terms of office.

Crow

But, to the people—the electorate — there are only about a dozen major problems facing the Greater Victoria area.

These dozen, however, are expressed in general terms, and are very big indeed.

In a poll of 100 representative Greater Victoria men and women "traffic and parking" was mentioned most frequently as a major problem. The Roundabout, traffic control and signalling systems were singled out by some respondents.

JOBLESS WORRY

Runner-up in the survey was "unemployment." According to one man: "If the city has plenty of employment to offer citizens, there are no troubles."

Here is the question, with replies classified:

"IN YOUR OPINION, WHAT ARE THE MOST IMPORTANT PROBLEMS FACING GREATER VICTORIA AT THIS TIME?"

	Respondents
1. Traffic and parking	30
2. Unemployment	21
3. Juvenile delinquency, youth training, youth recreational facilities	10
4. Public works projects	9
5. Education, schools and costs	5
6. Civic auditorium	4
7. Taxation	4
8. Civic administration	4
9. Developing industries	4
10. Miscellaneous	4
11. None, or "Don't Know"	19
	114*

*More than 100, because some people mentioned more than one major problem.

The problem of juvenile delinquency and hoodlumism was mentioned as a top problem by every 10th citizen. This is a much lower frequency than most larger cities. In Vancouver, for example, more than half the residents emphatically named delinquency as their city's most pressing problem.

Public works, which are in most need of attention, according to replies, are streets and roads; others are sewage and garbage disposal, demolition of old residential areas, improved public buildings, and the Gorge Waterway.

POOR CALIBRE

Respondents who classed civic administration as top problem expressed themselves like this:

"To get good, honest administration."

"Our very poor calibre of council."

"Amalgamation—the city should expand."

"The division of opinion between aldermen. They cannot get together on anything."

The lack of industry in Victoria, and the need for attracting industrialists, is paramount in some persons' opinions."

Miscellaneous suggestions were:

"A mental home for elderly people."

"Spending the centennial money."

"Town planning."

"Inflation."

TO SHOOT OR NOT TO SHOOT . . .

Controversial Issue Unites Island's Family of Hunters

By DOUG PEDEN

It usually takes trouble to unite a big family into a strong group.

The Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association, which often holds meetings before a skeleton turnout of members, had a standing-room-crowd at a general meeting at Liberal Headquarters, Tuesday night, because a large portion of the hunting fraternity believes the Vancouver Island deer population is in danger.

Main topic of discussion was antlerless deer seasons, which are bitterly opposed by a large portion of Island hunters. Many of the sportsmen who attended the session were there to voice their protests against the policy of shooting does and fawns during the last two weeks of the regular deer season.

Others came to hear the pros and cons of the controversial policy. All were interested in the future of Island deer herds.

Central figure in the discussion was regional game biologist Don Robinson, of Nanaimo, who faced a barrage of questions for almost two hours.

NEVER WAVERED

Robinson never wavered in defence of the Game Branch policy of any-sex deer seasons and by the time the meeting was over, appeared to have convinced a few sportsmen that the system would give more consistent hunting over the years rather than the natural cycles of high and low deer populations.

But most of those opposing the policy are still unshaken in their belief that shooting does and fawns is a threat to continued good hunting.

Main speaker for the opposition was Fred Morris, president of the Salt Spring Island Rod and Gun Club, which has launched a formal protest with the Department of Recreation and Conservation.

"There was a terrific number of deer shot on Salt Spring Island this season," said Morris, "and 75% were does and fawns."

He said residents of the Island had found fawns wandering around helplessly after their mothers had been shot.

"There has always been good hunting on the Island," Morris said. "Very shortly there won't be any hunting because there won't be any deer."

"Unless the shooting of does is stopped, half the Island will be posted," he warned. "The shooting of does and leaving fawns is practically murder."

"What we want to know," he said, "is why is there a doe season? And we want it stopped."

In his reply, Robinson said, "The only difference between Fred and me is in interpretation.

"At this time of year, does and fawns should be in their best condition. But all except one of the fawns we checked at Salt Spring on the last weekend of the season showed signs of malnutrition. All were very small and bone growth had stopped at approximately 90 days.

"All were heavily loaded with lice, flies and internal parasites, a sign of unhealthy deer. Where nutrition is low, deer are susceptible to disease and parasites."

"I assure you the small size of fawns had nothing to do with losing their mothers a week or 10 days before."

Later, Robinson said that a greater percentage of does was counted in the Salt Spring kill this season than is normal for Vancouver Island, but added that harvesting of antlerless deer has never been shown to be a major factor in killing off herds and that over-population has often been a cause of depletion.

"Logging is the key factor in deer hunting," Robinson said.

New systems of logging has changed conditions in many areas, he pointed out. When huge valleys were cleared of timber, the new growth which followed helped build up large herds, which eventually declined as growing timber choked out much of the food plants and gave remaining deer excellent cover in which to hide.

Benefits of logging are not so apparent with the present system of patch logging, he said, but the results would be steadier hunting over the years.

Despite the protests Robinson said "I believe we are only taking about 10% of the does and 5% of the fawns."

The biologist also said that "despite what we do, I am afraid the deer population on Vancouver Island will go down."

Asked what he would do if all game clubs opposed antlerless seasons, Robinson replied, "I have a responsibility to the deer as well as hunters and I will make recommendations to my bosses, and they will decide on the seasons."

FLORIDA-BOUND SUSIE DOESN'T BLAME WEATHER

It's not that Susan Butt finds fault with Victoria's weather, but the 19-year-old tennis whiz is packing her bags, and racquets, for a jaunt to Florida.

Susan will leave in about two weeks to compete in the winter tennis circuit.

The B.C. Association, the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association and the Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club are co-operating in providing finances for the trip.

Miss Butt will open the tour at the Dixie championships in Tampa, Fla., Dec. 30 and will go from there to St. Petersburg, Hollywood Beach and Fort Lauderdale. She might also play in later tournaments in Puerto Rico, Jamaica, Bermuda and the Eastern United States.

SHRINERS CONTEMPLATE CHANGES — COULTER OFFERED CO-ORDINATOR'S JOB

Early-Season Outing for All-Stars?

MONTREAL (BUP) — Jinxed by bad weather and lack of sound organization for the past three years, Shrine officials hope to reschedule the east-west game for July or August and have offered Tex Coulter the job of permanent co-ordinator, it was learned today.

However, neither question will be settled for several weeks.

Shrine officials are convinced there is a definite place for the benefit game in the structure of football and that it needs a thorough appraisal. In addition to rescheduling the game to benefit from warmer weather and greater fan interest and the appointment of a permanent supervisor, the Shriners are also considering changing the format of the show.

Instead of selecting all-star teams from the east and west, the thought now is to pit an all-star Canadian team against an all-star U.S. import squad, thereby getting away from the east-west rivalry which is the big attraction of the Grey Cup national championship game.

After three straight years of miserable weather and disappointing crowds, the Shriners are finally agreed the timing must be changed.

Coulter, the former all-American tackle at West Point and a pro great with the New York Giants and Montreal Alouettes, confirmed that Shrine officials had approached him about the job of permanent co-ordinator.

"They talked to me about it after the game last Saturday," Coulter said. "But the discussions were strictly exploratory and nothing definite was decided."

The hulking Coulter, now retired from football in favor of a sportswriting and cartooning career, joined the Shrine committee this year to help promote the game and primarily "to resell the players" on the idea of the game. Last year there was a feeling of dissatisfaction among some players but this year Coulter is convinced "we have resold the players on the game."

Raised in a Masonic home in Fort Worth, Tex., Coulter said he hadn't made up his mind about becoming permanently attached to the Shrine game, although he agreed there is need of one.

"I'm sure the game could be built into something big," he said, "but it will definitely have to be played earlier. I'm in favor of playing the game at night just before training season starts. My idea would be to call the players in early, say about 10 days before they are due to start training.

"I don't think there is any need to worry about injuries. There might be one or two but if there were, the players have their entire training season to recover," he added.

Tex also thinks that in time, "when the game is really established," that the money paid to the players might also be increased, thereby providing further incentive to the players. Currently the players on the winning team get $350 and the losers $250. An additional $200 goes to the winner of the Gordon Sturtridge Memorial Trophy as the outstanding player in the game.

Regardless of how sincere the Shriners may be about re-timing the game, they will almost certainly run into obstacles from the individual clubs. Coaches, ever fearful of losing a top-notch star for the entire season, will be wary about agreeing to a post-season game and would definitely reject any idea of holding the game during the season.

At the same time, the club owners, with an eye toward pre-season ticket sales, wince at the thought of potential revenue being siphoned off by such expensive attractions ($10 top) as the all-star game.

Busy Grind Ahead For Cougar Squad

Regals Shove Stamps Deeper Into Basement

Victoria Cougars and Calgary Stampeders have one thing in common. They both occupy the basement suite in their respective divisions of the Western Hockey League.

But while the Stamps skidded a bit deeper into the prairie division cellar when they dropped a 3-2 verdict to Saskatoon-St. Paul Regals Tuesday night, the Cougars hope to take another step up the coast division ladder at New Westminster tonight.

Cougars will be putting a four-game win streak on the line when they tackle the Royals but are trailing third-place Seattle Americans by 11 points as they start a rough schedule of four games in five nights.

Royals, who have taken over first place since losing to Cougars last Wednesday, will be shooting for the two points that will boost their lead to three points.

CAN BE BETTER

Victoria coach Pat Egan thinks the Cats should "do all right" in the next four games. "The boys are going well," he said this morning. "Not as well as I would like, of course, but they have a four-game winning streak and I can't argue with that."

Egan indicated he would make no changes in the combinations that have produced the win skein.

Stampeders condemned themselves to last place for at least another week by losing at Saskatoon Tuesday night as they dropped five points behind the Regals, who moved within four points of pace-setting Edmonton with their fourth straight triumph.

Even though Saskatoon-St. Paul now goes on a 10-day rest—their next game is a week from Friday—Calgary would need at least three games to catch up, and even if the Cowboys win, they won't have played that many games until a week Thursday.

Les Colwill, Ray Ross and Bill Bucyk each scored a goal for the Regals. Enio Sclisizzi and Chuck Blair accounted for the Calgary goals.

All the winners' goals came in the first period. Calgary battled back with two in the second but could not extend the shooting game into the scoreless third.

Lucien Deshene played a strong game in the Regals' goal but at the other end of the ice Al Rollins also was spectacular on several stops.

Calgary pulled Rollins for the last six seconds of the scoreless third period for a face-off in the Regals' zone, but time ran out on the Stampeders.

Moaner Ridicules Pre-Game Pacts

TORONTO (CP) — Ted (The Moaner) Reeve, who has played, coached and written about football for more than 25 years, ridicules the idea of all-star team coaches making pre-game agreements on basic defences to be employed.

"If you prefer to confab beforehand and endeavor to put in some clever capers by agreement, let us know ahead of time so we can all stay home," the Toronto Telegram sports columnist wrote Tuesday.

Reeve's views were prompted by reports from Montreal last weekend that coaches of Saturday's east-west Shrine game had agreed not to "shoot" linebackers. During the game Wayne Robinson, assistant coach of the west, accused coach Jim Trimble of the eastern club of violating their pre-game agreement.

Reeve referred to news reports from Montreal that said cause of the bitterness was a prearranged agreement covering basic defence each team would use.

Saturday's controversy centred around "blitzing," one of numerous football terms for a defence that sends linebackers crashing through the attacking line to smother a play before it can get underway.

For three years of all-star competitions, coaches have agreed not to use this defence, in deference to the game's spectator appeal.

Reeve's column continued: "Next year at the Shrine game . . . or any Canadian football game for that matter . . . let's all get together and dream up some more dandy new rules. Like when one team punts the ball, no one on the kicker's side shall leave the line of scrimmage until the ball is caught, thereby giving the receiver a great big hippety-hop-to-the-barber-shop start for the runback so the spectators (especially the spectators who are rooting for the kicker's team) will enjoy the match to the full.

WAVE A DOILY

"When a forward passer, especially a peachy passer like Frankie Tripucka, inends to throw he will signify his intention to the opposition by waving a doily in the air so that all the kiddies on the defensive line or secondary shall play 'freeze' (no hitching now, Mabel, or we will ask you to turn in your middy), and thus the six eligible receivers can romp downfield . . ."

He suggested the fans have their ways of enjoying the strategy, the good defensive plays, the situations being built up and other little issues without needing any help from the hired coaches on what new rules to use "in deference to the game's spectator appeal."

Pasadena Bowl Interests Walt

LOS ANGELES (UP) — The Dodgers are "interested" in the Rose Bowl as a temporary site for 1958 baseball games, but president Walter O'Malley made it clear today that no definite decision has been reached on where the club will play next season.

O'Malley conferred Tuesday with Los Angeles Mayor Norris Poulson and other city officials on the steps necessary to convert the Memorial Coliseum to a baseball park for next year. Dodger officials have indicated they don't believe Wrigley Field here is big enough to accommodate anticipated large crowds.

The Dodger executive toured the Rose Bowl, in nearby Pasadena, with New York co-owner Del Webb on Saturday. The Bowl Field, like the Coliseum, is used primarily for football, but could be modified for baseball. Each stadium holds about 100,000 for the grid sport and conceivably could be adapted to seat at least half that number for baseball.

O'Malley confirmed that the National League club has not formally indicated its interest in the Rose Bowl to Pasadena officials.

He said "everyone ought to know we are interested, but when developments justify a formal contract with the city, we will announce that we have talked to them."

Totems Didn't Stand Around for This One

Victoria High School Totems Tuesday night flashed some of the ability that coach Porky Andrews hopes will carry them into the annual Vancouver Island basketball championship tournament later this season.

Totems hit their best form of the season at HMCS Naden as they racked up their fifth successive victory by whipping a Navy squad, 58-38.

Although giving away height to the Sailors, Totems grabbed the majority of rebounds and dropped baskets from all angles to hold a decided edge all the way.

They were in front by seven points at the half and then outscored Navy, 35-20, in the second session.

Daryl Lorimer dropped in 16 points for the Totems and Robin Barnes added nine. For the Sailors, it was Fred Matthews setting the pace with eight points and Bob Peden next in line with five.

LEADING FIGHTERS — HONORED BY WRITERS

Prize Plums Passed Out

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Dempsey and Carmen Basilio, two bright names in boxing, will receive the sport's top awards for 1957.

Dempsey was voted the James J. Walker Memorial Award for "long and meritorious service" by the Boxing Writers Association at its meeting Tuesday. Basilio was named winner of the Edward J. Neil Memorial Plaque as "Fighter of the Year."

The two will accept the honors Jan. 14 at the association's annual New York dinner.

Dempsey, now 62, held the heavyweight title from 1919 to 1926. Winner of the first Neil award in 1938, Dempsey has been active in the sport as a referee, promoter and sponsor of many heavyweights.

Basilio, who moved from welter crown to the middleweight title by winning a split decision over Sugar Ray Robinson last September, is one of the most popular fighters in the ring.

The 30-year-old New York state onion farmer is the first boxer to win the Neil trophy twice. He was first honored in 1955 after he won the welter crown from Tony DeMarco.

The Neil trophy, boxing's most prized award, is presented to the fighter of the year or the man who did the most to advance the sport during the year. It is named in memory of the former Associated Press boxing writer killed in 1938 while serving as a war correspondent in Spain.

The Walker award was won in 1956 by Frank Graham, veteran sports writer of the New York Journal American, and the Neil Plaque went to heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson.

RCAF Control Units' Role Remains Same

Role of RCAF auxiliary aircraft control and warning squadrons remains unchanged in spite of federal re-appraisal of Canada's armed forces, Victoria 2455 AC and W Squadron was told Monday.

Commanding officer S/L R. D. Higgins spoke to 150 officers and men of the unit and said, "changes in government policy affecting other service reserves are not applicable to the RCAF auxiliary squadrons of our type.

"The squadron's role will remain unchanged. We will continue to train fighter controllers and fighter control operators and the trades that support them.

"However, training demands and requirements are going to be tightened even more.

"The squadron will keep only top grade personnel trained to their maximum efficiency," he said.

Those who fail to pass the required series of examinations will be released at once, as will those whose parade attendance is below requirements, members were told.

VANCOUVER — Catherine Lockett, 6, who darted from between two cars Tuesday into the path of another vehicle, became Vancouver's 31st traffic fatality. The child was playing with a friend when the accident happened. She died later in hospital.

Overhead Exhausts Ruled Out by Inspector

Exhaust gases from trucks, buses and private cars in Victoria need never be a source of worry, city smoke inspector Thomas Walker told Victoria-Esquimalt Union Board of Health, Tuesday.

The board had asked Mr. Walker to speak on the proposal that all heavy buses and trucks should be required to install overhead exhausts.

Mr. Walker said while there is little health hazard locally, there is no practical solution to offensive odors contained in exhausts.

Buses use a heavier fuel, which is not as well refined as car fuels, but the latter are more detrimental, he said. Bus carburetors are more closely adjusted and they are driven by more experienced people.

"If exhausts were carried overhead on buses and trucks it would be discriminating against them unless we did the same to automobiles. I take it the only solution is to do away with the internal combustion engine," said Ald. Austin Curtis.

"Bus exhausts may not be injurious but they are nauseating," said school trustee Richard Reeve.

The board proposed no action be taken on the matter at the present time.

No Basis for Fear Says Bank President

TORONTO (CP)—There is no basis for the fear of a major depression at this time, A. C. Ashforth, president of the Toronto-Dominion Bank, said today at the banks annual meeting.

"The evidence suggests that at the worst we are faced with a brief period of consolidation when some of the distortions, resulting from inflationary attitudes to costs and prices, will be eliminated," he said.

"Once we have achieved that, the economy should again expand on a sound and healthy basis, though perhaps not at the spectacular rate of the last few years."

Mr. Ashforth's comments were contained in a text made available to the press in advance of delivery.

The capital investment program in 1958 will be about the same as this year, Mr. Ashforth said. Many large projects such as the St. Lawrence Seaway and the Trans-Canada natural gas pipeline were still unfinished and subsidiary projects were likely to develop.

Some export industries have been adversely affected by declining prices and decrease in demand but the flow of capital into development of industrial raw materials now was paying dividends. In the current year there had been a sharp drop in wheat and flour exports and a significant reduction in some other items but these declines had been offset by increases in other exports.

Mr. Ashforth suggested serious study towards finding a solution for exporters' long-term credit problems. One solution might be to make rediscount facilities available to the chartered banks in respect to long-term export credits, or have the government or Bank of Canada do the necessary financing.

Canada could be adversely affected by any drop in business activity in the United States, but this did not appear to be in prospect.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Stocks Up and Down For Net Loss on Day

Market graphs showed a wavery line in Canada and on Wall Street today. At Toronto the day started in the doldrums but rallied briefly around noon.

Prices dropped again when trading was resumed in the afternoon, industrials being markedly lower.

Metals and western oils averaged three losses for every gain but in most cases the differences were fractional.

AT TORONTO after a brief rally at noon, prices again turned downward today in light mid-afternoon trading.

The market opened lower and gradually weakened for the rest of the morning but during the noon hour many stocks rallied from their lows. The upward swing, however, was short-lived and prices again sagged, especially among industrials.

Industrial losses outnumbered gains about three-to-two but utilities had a three-to-one edge on the downside. Most losses were fractional. Gains were scattered.

Base metals, uraniums, coppers and western oils had three declines for each advance but in most cases the losses were narrow. High-priced mines, however, had losses ranging to 2½ points.

AT MONTREAL prices were lower in light early afternoon trading today on the Montreal and Canadian exchanges.

Base metals showed the most movement.

In utilities, Union Gas was down 2 points at 69 and B.C. Power ¾ at 38.

In the producing metal mines on the Canadian exchange, Campbell Chib was off 10 cents at 5.10, Opemiska copper off 15 cents at 6.60 and Hollinger off ¼ at 22.

Industrial volume was 24,100 shares; mines and oils 213,000.

AT NEW YORK steels, some motors and rail shares continued to drift to 1957 lows today as the market declined again. Trading was fairly quiet.

Losses of key stocks were from fractions to a point with a few exceeding this range.

News of auto industry cutbacks, lower world copper prices and pessimistic published statements backgrounded the decline.

Losers of fractions to around a point included Gulf Oil.

Canadian gainers on the American Exchange included Jupiter Oils, up 1/16. Preston East Dome lost ⅛ and Shawinigan was down ⅜.

AT LONDON the market continued quiet today with the bank rate tribunal hearings and the British Petroleum issue still the major restrictive influences.

Gilt-edged securities were firmer. Among foreigners, Greek issues were firmer but other foreign bonds were dull. There was a general marking-down of dollar securities after the overnight decline in Wall Street but one or two Canadian issues were slightly above the lowest. Canadian Pacifics were slightly better.

Stores were firm on Christmas spending, steels were steadier but engineering shares were unsettled. Oils were higher on balance.

AT VANCOUVER prices dropped slightly on a quiet market during the forenoon. Peace River Pete sold 2,400 at 40. Vantor moved 1,700 at $1.25. Mid West Copper traded 6,500 at 10. Trojan moved 9,000 at 19.

Syndicate Bids $9,000,000 On School Bonds

A syndicate headed by A. E. Ames and Co. was the successful bidder Tuesday for $9,000,000 in government-guaranteed school bonds.

Premier and Finance Minister W. A. C. Bennett, acting as fiscal agent at the request of the various boards of school trustees throughout the province, said 31 investment and banking houses competed for the bonds.

The successful bidder comprises, besides A. E. Ames and Co., Dominion Securities Corporation Ltd., Wood Gundy and Company Ltd., the Canadian Bank of Commerce and the Royal Bank of Canada.

The bonds are 4½ per cent serial debentures maturing annually over a period of 20 years.

The Ames and Co. bid was 97.461 for each $100 par value.

Included in the bonds are $800,000 for school district 61, Greater Victoria, and $136,000 for district 63, Saanich. The money is for capital expenditures.

Burchell Lake Sales Halted At Toronto

TORONTO (BUP)—The Toronto Stock Exchange has suspended trading in the shares of Burchell Lake Mines Ltd.

The exchange gave the same reason it had given for three other suspensions during the last few months: The action was taken "in the interests of the public and for the protection of investors pending completion . . . of an investigation into the affairs of the company."

Burchell Lake stock sold at a high of 85 cents in heavy trading early this year and its low was 15 cents. It was quoted at 20 cents a share on Monday but after the suspension, the stock was said to be trading on the over-the-counter market at five cents.

A few weeks ago, a financial statement from the firm listed its current assets on May 31, 1957, as $528,019 and its current liabilities as $11,711.

The company was sold several weeks ago to a group of unidentified New York financiers.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Moderately active trade appeared today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Flax held most of the interest.

Offerings in flax were liberal and in the form of hedges and commission house selling. Buying on recessions was credited to international accounts and other interests. Prices were irregular.

Oats and barley had domestic trade with some American buying in both. Prices moved narrowly. Rye prices were easier. American interest appeared but was light.

Trade reports indicated a cargo of barley and other small quantities were sold to Japan. The action was not reflected in trade. Three cargoes of wheat also were reported sold to Japan along with a moderate amount of wheat to Norway.

Overnight export loadings of Canadian wheat included: the United Kingdom 720,000 bushels, West Germany 610,000, The Netherlands 525,000, India 355,000, Japan 315,000, and Austria 380,000.

Lakehead prices for Class two, IWA and domestic wheat were all up one-half cent from Tuesday.

CHICAGO (AP) — Bread grains and soybeans dipped sharply in active trading on the Board of Trade today.

July and September wheat futures declined to lows for the season in a selloff that reflected general discouragement among the trade. Late in the session old crop wheat was off nearly three cents a bushel and the new crop months were down nearly two cents.

Rye followed the trend in wheat. Soybeans, the leader in Tuesday's liquidation, continued to decline, with prices at one time off more than a cent a bushel on all deliveries.

Wheat closed 1⅜ to 3⅛ lower, Dec. $2.18⅛, corn unchanged to ¾ higher, Dec. $1.16¾-⅞, oats ¼ to ⅜ lower, Dec. 65⅛, rye 1¾ to 3 lower, Dec. $1.33¼-½ and soybeans ⅛ to 2 lower, Jan. $2.27-26⅞.

Canada's Basic Trend to Growth

"There is every reason to be optimistic about the long-term outlook for Canada and, in short term, elements of stability should be sources of reassurance," said Neil J. McKinnon, President, addressing the 91st Annual Meeting of The Canadian Bank of Commerce.

WHEN we met a year ago the economic atmosphere both at home and abroad was one of boom. There were on all sides demands pressing too heavily on available supplies of materials and labour with the inevitable consequence of marked upward pressure on prices.

The economic environment of to-day is in noticeable contrast to the strained atmosphere of a year ago. The Gross National Product began to level off about mid-year and for the full year probably will not greatly exceed the 1956 level. Wholesale prices early in the year developed a declining tendency and this trend seems now to be gradually reflected in consumer prices which recently have lost most of their upward impetus. Evidence of the changed pace of the economy is also to be seen in reduced freight car loadings, a cutback in petroleum production to under one half of capacity, a lessened rate of growth in consumption of electric energy and a lowered volume of industrial production. The value of shipments to external markets so far somewhat exceeds that in the corresponding period of last year. Consumer expenditures continue at a high level although there is some indication that the pace of increase is lessening. While the number of unemployed has increased in a year when the labour force has shown a marked increase, employment continues at a higher level than last year.

THERE has emerged during the year clear evidence of a condition that has been building up for some time but which had been concealed by demands for abnormally rapid industrial expansion and government stock-piling: a situation in which capacity is equal to and in many cases in excess of current effective demand for all forms of consumer and capital goods and services. Prices of many commodities which are freely traded in world markets declined noticeably in midsummer, partly due to increasing production in relation to demand and partly due to a reversal of the stock-piling policies of other governments reflected in sales contrasted to purchases. Some other commodities, the prices of which have been maintained by government support, have also shown weakness, as not all governments have been able to hold the stock-piles which their domestic pricing policies have generated. This is most noticeably true of the United States in its international disposal policies for agricultural products.

The accumulating evidence suggests that 1958 will mark the fourth time since the end of the Second World War that the Canadian economy will have passed through a period of significant adjustment. Each of these occasions differs from the others in pattern and in degree. The first in 1946 represented the transition both domestically and internationally from war to peace-time conditions; the second in 1949 reflected some slackening in the initial post-war expansion followed by new stresses on the economy generated by the Korean conflict; the third in 1954 witnessed temporary adjustments in production and consumption. We have come through another upswing with many gains. The buoyant months of 1955 and 1956 have culminated in a high plateau for the economy in 1957. Although statistical indications identify the recent experience as a levelling-off process the plateau is rather uneven: in some cases declines are taking place while in others there continues to be a steady if unspectacular advance. We now appear to be entering a period of consolidation following this period of rapid expansion during the past two years.

DURING periods of this kind there are always doubts and misgivings about the future. This has been the case in the several previous readjustments since the end of the Second World War. Although from the author's point of view there is probably no venture quite as profitless as an attempt to forecast the future there is no reason why we should not address ourselves to the year 1958 and consider some of the major factors influencing the economy. The three principal ones which must be kept under scrutiny are export trade, new capital investment and consumer expenditure.

In the case of external trade, although the price of a number of raw materials has declined and to a degree the terms of trade have turned against Canada, the aggregate dollar value of exports still holds up well. The future trend depends on the level of economic activity in other nations and especially in the United States. Although there are indications of reduction in export demand for some products, enlarged shipments of others may well cushion a decline. As exports last year exceeded $4,800,000,000 and imports exceeded $5,700,000,000 in relation to a Gross National Product of nearly $30,000,000,000, it is evident how important external trade is to domestic activity.

The total capital investment for 1957 is estimated to approach $8.7 billion, an increase of $800 million over 1956 and $2.3 billion over 1955. There are some indications that the total capital investment for 1958 will not be as great but this year's total at more than 28% of Gross National Product is a very high one indeed and is at a level which could not reasonably be expected to be maintained. Although the composition of capital investment will change, the total for 1958 will undoubtedly be a very large one by comparison with any year prior to 1956.

Consumer expenditures, which represent nearly two-thirds of the Gross National Product, continue at a high level although the pace of increase has slackened. This total is governed not only by available income but by spending attitudes. Aggregate earned income currently appears to be running at a higher level than a year ago while the ratio of consumer debt to income is slightly reduced.

Canadians have in recent years shown a marked disposition to spend. In 1954 for example, consumer expenditures rose continuously at a time when there was a noticeable easing in other categories of expenditures. Between 1955 and 1956 consumer expenditures increased by more than 8% and in the early quarters of 1957 this rise was continued but at a slower rate. It is likely that the final figures for the year will show a levelling-off but that we shall enter 1958 with a level of consumer expenditures considerably above any year prior to 1957.

Looking further to the future, probably one of the significant influences on the amount of gross private investment is the level of corporation profits. Gross private investment has an importance much greater than its actual dollar size. It not only represents the plans and aspirations of all business but also contributes to personal income without in the first instance adding a corresponding amount of consumer goods or services to the production side of national transactions. This year has witnessed a shrinkage in the profit margins of a number of industries. Investment plans are, of course, made in anticipation of adequate earnings on the investment and when the prospects are not promising such plans are likely to be deferred. Many industries are facing conditions of rising costs while selling prices under competitive pressures cannot be raised. Business in such a position finds it necessary to concentrate on stabilizing costs rather than on giving thought to further expansion. If prospects are inimical to enlarged investment there is a diminution in one of the important sources of employment of labour.

IN dollar terms, private expenditures for new industrial and commercial buildings, and for equipment, have more than doubled since 1950. During 1957, non-residential construction continued to increase while expenditures on machinery and equipment showed some signs of easing a little. In housing a revival has been in progress since about mid-year. It is doubtful if outlays on new houses and apartments this year will exceed 85% of the unusually high level attained in 1956 but this will still represent a very high rate of housing expenditure.

Government expenditures on goods and services which cover about a billion dollars of public investment—mostly in construction — have continued to increase over their 1956 level. As governments are spending in the aggregate about one dollar in six on behalf of the taxpayers, it can be seen that public programmes hold an important place in the economic as well as the political field. The portion of public investment which goes into roads, schools, public utilities and into urban transportation facilities is one of the important influences in the economy. Because of this there is fully as important an economic as political significance in the deliberations of the councils charged with settling the primary fiscal relations between our three levels of government.

Although many natural resource and industrial developments required massive amounts of capital, which could only come from foreign sources, the incidence of taxation and the high rate of consumption which are prominent aspects of the welfare state tend to lessen capital accumulation — particularly the kind of capital that is apt to be venturesome. In a nation such as Canada, which did not previously possess a large and mobile reservoir of capital, this condition meant that a very large part of our development, if it was to take place at all, had to be financed by foreign investment which carried with it increasing ownership of sources of production. The past few years have shown a continuance of this pattern in our foreign balance of payments. Although Canada's foreign trade shows a large deficit on merchandise account, the Canadian dollar remains at a premium due to a still larger net inflow of capital. A less assuring part of current trade lies in the fact that although a large part of our imports is in capital goods which will add to future production, an increasing amount is in consumer goods. In other words, we are using imported capital which carries a continuing obligation to service in order to finance part of our current consumption. This is like a man borrowing to finance day-to-day living costs and, as we all know, there is a limit beyond which that cannot be continued.

A source of unemployment during 1957 was in those Canadian industries which depend on forest products. Here, too, exports have tapered off sharply, although the long-term outlook remains favourable.

Unemployment appeared in manufacturing, where durable goods production over a wide range of products began falling off early in 1957. This decline in what had been a buoyant industry can be attributed in an important degree to the premium on the Canadian dollar which has subsidized imports and served to displace both domestic production and employment. Perhaps under the changed economic outlook which we are facing, it would be reasonable to expect the monetary authorities to exercise through the market an influence on the international value of the monetary unit to minimize this handicap both to domestic producers and to export industries.

•

THERE has been much public discussion about monetary policy as reflected in money supply and interest rates and its influence on the economy and it is important to understand its limitations. While it is true that a restriction in supply of money available can limit expenditures it must be recognized that it is the expenditures themselves and not the money supply that are directly linked to the volume of output and employment. Under conditions of declining demand and lowered expenditures money supply tends to be a neutral element, adequate and willing to support an upswing but powerless in itself to create it. It may not be inappropriate to add that there has been a great deal of unjustified and uninformed criticism of what has been described as tight money over the past two years. There may well be differences of view as to the timing, nature and degree of monetary influences exerted by the authorities but one thing is clear: if all the money had been made available for which there was a demand there would have been nothing said about tight money but there would have been much more vocal and much more justified criticisms of sharply rising prices.

•

THE year now closing has established a Gross National Product of more than $30 billion and we have had three years of unprecedented advances in real output. We cannot expect to maintain this rapid pace every year but a period of consolidation should not blind us to our basic inclination to growth. Not only does our developing and under-populated country equipped with rich national resources have a basic inclination to grow but this bias is being continually reinforced with new sources of energy—hydro-electric power, petroleum, natural gas and in the years to come nuclear energy for which Canada is a storehouse of vast quantities of uranium. People too provide individual energy and creative resourcefulness and this is fully as true of immigrants as of the natural increase in population. By no means the least among the influences toward growth is the generation of new products in increasing variety developed through scientific research — most of it conducted in larger and more mature economies, it is true, but from which we gain benefit. Such things in recent years as synthetic fibres, plastics and electronics are examples not only of new products but of new industries.

There is every reason to be optimistic about the long-term outlook for Canada and in the short term there are elements of stability which should be sources of reassurance. If, however, we are to achieve increase in production and in per capita output and wealth we shall have to pay close attention to providing the economic climate and incentives for hard constructive and creative work, whether it be done through individual or corporate activity and enterprise.

J. P. R. Wadsworth, General Manager, reviewed the balance sheet, highlights of which are summarized, and said in part:

The ninety-first annual statement shows total assets to have reached an all-time high at $2,581,695,000, an increase of $146,781,000 over the record figure for last year. Deposits grew to a new high of $2,406,843,000, an increase of $127,746,000. Personal savings increased by $53,476,000 and now total $1,166,237,000. These figures become more meaningful when it is realized that the Bank serves more than two million personal and business customers in 765 offices from Newfoundland to British Columbia and in addition 12 branches are operated abroad.

Commercial and other loans, at $1,060,272,000 decreased by $8,608,000. Loans in Canada rose while loans outside Canada declined. In the administration of the Bank's lending business, it has been and continues to be our policy to serve the worthy and constructive needs of borrowing customers both small and large, provided they meet our standards of sound quality.

The number of shareholders increased from 17,231 to 18,373 and the number of shares outstanding from 3,750,000 to 4,500,000.

Twenty-four new branches were opened in Canada and we have established a new branch at Nassau and a second branch in London, England, in Berkeley Square.

A report to the shareholders would not be complete without a sincere expression of appreciation to all members of the Bank's personnel. The results have been accomplished through a team effort in which each member has had a part to play. Changing conditions have required an increasing amount of individual resourcefulness on the part of branch managers and officers.

I would also like to mention the important role played by the women in the Bank, and the increasing responsibilities that are being assumed by many of them. The part that they play is an important one and over the years to come they will undoubtedly assume greater responsibilities in the operation of the Bank's affairs.

The steady growth and development of the Bank provide ever increasing opportunities for the able young man who wishes to make banking his career. Be he a high school or college graduate there are increasing opportunities and such a young man will find that a banking career is rewarding not only in a tangible way, but in a sense of personal accomplishment. The profession presents a challenge to the young man who wants to work and take advantage of opportunities that are afforded to study and to learn on the way up.

'JUMPED UP AND DOWN'

ALLAN JOHNSTON
. . . jumped for joy

Allan Johnston, 10, of 1714 Hampshire, was speechless with delight when he learned he'd won a Hammond International Globe for submitting a question to The Times' "Ask Andy" column.

He received a letter notifying him of the win a few days ago.

"I didn't say anything," Allan said. "I just jumped up and down."

A grade five student at Willows School, Allan had asked Andy where Robinson Crusoe's island was located.

His question is answered in today's column.

Allan's interests lie mainly in science, soccer and painting.

Three of his paintings were hung in the Art Gallery recently as a feature of "Education Week."

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a Hammond's International World Globe to Allan Johnston, aged 10, Victoria, B.C., for his question:

Where Is Robinson Crusoe's Island?

The full title of the book by Defoe is "The Life and Strange Surprising Adventures of Robinson Crusoe. Its story is taken from a true life adventure. The true life hero was a British sailor named Alexander Selkirk. In 1704, Selkirk was set ashore, at his request, on Masa-Tierra Island some 400 miles off the coast of Chili. There he lived alone for some five years.

Defoe changed his hero's name to Robinson Crusoe. He also chose another island for his exile. This story book island was said to be in sight of Trinidad at the mouth of the Orinoco River of South America.

Selkirk's real island, off the coast of Chili, is in a cluster called the Juan Fernandez Islands. The country of Chili, to which it belongs, has made it a national park.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Joseph Mackay, aged 14, of Astoria, N.Y., for his question:

What Is An Anthropod?

Anthropoda is the largest phylum of the animal kingdom. Its name is coined from older words meaning joint and foot. An anthropod has jointed feet, legs, body and antennae. Also he may have a jointed stinger. We also have jointed bodies. But we are not anthropods. Our bony joints are part of the skeleton inside our bodies. The joints of the anthropod are part of his coat.

An anthropod has no bones at all, not even a backbone. His body is held together by a tough coat of a material called chitin. Some of his chitin is as hard as a fingernail and some is soft as a pair of kid gloves. On his legs he wears chitin stockings firm enough to support his body. But at his knees and ankles there are garters of softer chitin. These garters are bendable and form joints.

The anthropod's joints are worked by muscles fixed to the inside of the chitin coat. They straddle over the soft garters with their ends attached to the hard chitin on either side. To bend a joint the muscles are contracted on one side and relaxed on the other side. This makes the soft garter work like a concertina.

By now you are wondering what kind of animal has these fancy joints. Well, he must be a small fellow because he has no internal skeleton. A large animal needs a strong bony structure to support his body. Most anthropods measure less than an inch. Yet they are so successful that there are over a million different species. They outnumber all the other creatures in the world by six to one.

That's right—you have guessed that the insects are anthropods. But not all anthropods are insects. The vast phylum is divided into about a dozen classes. The anthropod giants belong to the class Crustacea. This class includes the lobsters, crabs and shrimps. Another class is Arachnida. It is made up of spiders, scorpions, mites and ticks. Chilipoda is the class of centipedes.

By far the greater number of anthropods belong to the class Insecta—the insects. So far we have named and classified well over half a million of them. And this is only a small percentage of the insects waiting to be described and get their names on the list.

The huge class of Insecta is subdivided into about 25 orders. The order orthoptera includes the roaches and the grasshoppers. Most of them have leathery front wings and hind wings folded like gauzy fans. Hymenoptera is the order of bees, wasps and ants. It includes the only insects with stingers.

From our point of view the lobsters, crabs and shrimps are the most valuable of the anthropods. But without a doubt the most beautiful anthropods belong to the Lepidoptera order of the Insecta class. This is the order of moths and butterflies.

There is a vast difference between crabs and flies, lobsters and lightning bugs. But all of them are anthropods with jointed feet and jointed bodies. A parade of all the living anthropods would reach around the world.

'Lost' Royal Nugget Found; Melted in 1919

LONDON (Reuters) — Officers of the royal household Tuesday turned two palaces upside down in a painstaking hunt for a fist-sized gold nugget—a gift of 46 years ago—and finally recalled that the thing was melted into spoons and forks in 1919.

New Zealand presented the 100-ounce nugget to King George V at Buckingham Palace June 21, 1911, the day before his coronation.

It was the largest nugget ever found in New Zealand and was named Roddy after Minister of Mines Rhoderick McKenzie.

Greek General, Brother Die

ATHENS (AP) — Napoleon Zervas, 67, retired general and former government minister, died in hospital Tuesday.

Zervas organized and led national resistance forces during the Nazi occupation of Greece and was a leader in the fighting against Communist guerrillas following the war. Zervas' elder brother Alex collapsed and died when he saw the general's body Tuesday.

Speedy U.K. Newsman Pays Visit to Island

By TONY DICKASON

Mr. William Courtenay—"same name as your town up-Island"—who owns an OBE and an MM—whisked through town Tuesday.

Mr. Courtenay, a journalist for 35 years, was here in the course of another sweep around the world which he accomplishes, apparently without undue fatigue, twice yearly.

SPEAKS TO CADETS

He lectured the local chapter of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs Tuesday night, following an education talk to Royal Roads cadets on the fester-spots of the Middle East.

Here, greatly abbreviated, is his itinerary since last January when he relaxed briefly in trench coat and cap in the Empress bar.

Middle East including Israel, Jordan, Cyprus, Iraq; then on HMS Albion to Denmark; then the carrier Ark Royal to Norfolk, Virginia; the Far East next, including Gan, 840 miles south of Ceylon.

Next, NATO exercises aboard HMS Eagle; lecturing to troops in Scotland; then to the U.S. fleet for Atlantic anti-sub exercises; lectures in Washington and New York; then Halifax.

"I've been speaking across the country since."

OLD HAND

He's an old hand at this. Last year Mr. Courtenay addressed 80 Canadian Clubs in Canada within four months.

His voice, understandably, is hoarse.

The Sussex man has two daughters and a son. The son is in the army at Gibraltar. "I see him fairly frequently."

He's off to Seattle from here to visit the Boeing aircraft establishment, then is flying back to Halifax and taking a boat for England.

"Ah, Christmas in England," he sighed.

What's going on in the Middle East?

"Nasser is trying to reconstruct a line through Jordan to Syria to semi-encircle Israel and destroy Israel, thus wiping out the stain of last year's defeat."

After two long-distance telephone calls in four minutes, Mr. Courtenay sped away.

Assessment Courts Named by Cabinet

Appointments to 1958 courts of revision to hear appeals of assessments on land and improvements for school tax purposes were made Tuesday by the cabinet.

Members of the court for School District 61, Greater Victoria, are J. D. McIntosh, chairman, Waldo Skillings and J. W. Casey.

About Eaton's...

Whether you're the last of the big time spenders, or (like most of us) trying to squeeze just one more gift out of a too-small budget, we like to make shopping at EATON'S convenient for you. That's why we have our Customer Services, designed to help you get the very most out of your time, and the most value and results for your money. Just another reason why all year round, but especially at Christmas time, "It Pays to Shop at EATON'S."

First Impressions

—last longest, so they say, and a good job of gift wrapping lends added glamour to even the most inexpensive of gifts. "True, true," you say, nodding the head wisely, "but I have ten thumbs and my gift wrapped parcels make the Christmas tree shudder when I put them under it." No need to despair—take your gift to our Second Floor Gift Wrap, explain the type of wrapping you want and for a modest fee your parcels will be made almost too pretty to open.

Post Haste

Why lug your out-of-town gifts back home! Smartest shoppers make up a gift list which includes addresses, choose their gifts from EATON'S vast selections, have them gift-wrapped (warn the wrapper that you'll be mailing them, and she'll avoid using crushable bows and such) and then mail them in the store. Right next to the Post Office on the Lower Main Floor, we provide wrapping paper, twine, and space to work in. Buy, gift wrap, wrap for mailing, mail—all under the same roof!

Party Problem?

Maybe you've been looking at the advertisement on this page, and thinking "But I have to buy gifts for our children's party, and I can't possibly do it all myself." Weep no more—just write down the names and ages of the expected guests (one list for boys, and one for girls) and the approximate amount you want to spend. Our Personal Shopper will select gifts, have them wrapped, tagged with names, and delivered in time for the party. No charge other than the cost of the gifts.

Adult Entertainment

Though Christmas is for the children, our Personal Shopper is happy to help with parties for the grown-ups too. Better leave the ages off the list (you're only guessing at most of them, and the only one you know for sure you won't tell!) This service is especially useful for office parties and for harried employers who give presents to secretaries and staff.

Eat Hearty

Yet another party problem we can help solve. Our Hostess Shop service will provide the festive food, whether you aim to have a buffet with turkey, ham, salads and all the trimmings . . . or just a few sandwiches with pickles, nuts and candies for nibbling "on the side." The Hostess Shop is just inside the View Street door on the Main Floor.

Growers, Buyers Hail Probe of Food Prices

Vancouver Island growers and consumers today wholeheartedly endorsed the appointment of a Royal Commission to inquire into the spread of prices received by farmers and the prices paid by consumers.

The probe was announced Tuesday by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

"It will clear the air" with regard to profits made from farm products, said Charles E. S. Walls, secretary-manager of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture, which represents 1,800 farmers on Vancouver Island and the mainland.

Mr. Walls said he has already been instructed by farm groups to prepare briefs for submission when it sits in Vancouver or Victoria.

CATTLEMEN WORRIED

B.C. cattlemen, he said, were most concerned with the increasing price spread on beef.

"Cattlemen don't know why consumers are paying such a high price for beef," he said.

He said in 1953 cattlemen received 32 cents a pound for prime steers. In the past year they have been receiving about 18 cents a pound.

"The consumer price has not dropped in relation to the decrease in price received by the producer," he stated.

EGGS TOO

He said there is a need for an investigation into the price spread on B.C. eggs and poultry.

Statistics showed, Mr. Walls said, that in 1956 prices of farm produce of Canadian origin increased by slightly less than 2 per cent, while prices received at the farm level remained fairly stable.

"The inquiry will reveal that the producer is not responsible for the food price increases," said Mr. Walls.

Mr. Walls said growers and farmers across Canada asked the federal government last July to launch an inquiry.

Elizabeth Mills, provincial president, Canadian Association of Consumers, said the commission's findings should make the housewife aware of why she is paying such a high price for food products.

"The question is, of course, whether the government will take action to implement the recommendations of the commission," she said.

Mexico Shivers

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A cold wave sweeping Mexico sent temperatures down to 14 degrees above zero today. Police said four deaths resulted from the cold. Reports from farm areas indicated heavy losses of some crops.

BULLETINS

Ottawa Studies B.C. Sightings

(See Page 37)

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal officials said today it likely will be next week before an assessment can be made of reports of the sighting of an unidentified aerial object described as a fireball.

Six such sightings were reported by the British Columbia Ground Observer Corps. They were made Nov. 30 between Mile 1127 of the Alaska Highway to Lethbridge, Alta.

Reports are sent here to the Defence Research Board for study.

Torpedo 'Hit' Only Exercise

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard said today a report that a ship had been torpedoed off the United States east coast apparently was based on a radio message sent by a ship engaged in a training exercise.

A Coast Guard spokesman here said he has been notified by Atlantic Fleet headquarters at Norfolk, Va., that officials there "have every reason to believe" the radio distress call was nothing more than practice.

Pair Found Safe

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 34-foot fishpacker, believed missing for 24 hours with two men aboard, turned up safely today. The boat ran aground in the Fraser River but couldn't report her position because of a radio failure.

The Rage Reef, operated by Kazumi Hamanishi of Steveston, left Nanaimo Tuesday morning to come to Steveston to unload a catch. The packer went aground at the mouth of the Fraser. She was refloated on a high tide.

Tot Dies in Fire

VANCOUVER (CP)—Beverley Egerton, four, was burned to death when fire seriously damaged a two-storey frame house in Vancouver's Mount Pleasant district today.

Police said the child's mother, Mrs. W. B. Egerton, apparently was asleep when the fire started in the kitchen, and was awakened by neighbors. She managed to reach safety with a small baby, but was unable to get back into the house to rescue Beverley.

Warship Sent

DEN HELDER, Holland (UP)—Holland sent another warship to Dutch New Guinea today to strengthen her naval forces in the troubled area.

4 Die in Blast

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) —An explosion in a coal mine about 18 miles south of here early today killed at least four men and possibly trapped others, Deputy Sheriff Bud Williamson reported. Cause of the explosion was not known.

John D. Rapped By Speaker

OTTAWA (CP) — Tempers bristled in the Commons again today, resulting in a sharp exchange between Prime Minister Diefenbaker and opposition spokesmen.

The incident ended with a minor rebuke for the prime minister from Speaker Roland Michener.

James Sinclair (L-Coast-Capilano) started things off when he asked whether the national film board had recorded an historic event—the start of construction of the South Saskatchewan River dam.

Mr. Sinclair said Mr. Diefenbaker had promised during the election campaign that construction would start in six months. Tuesday was exactly six months from the June 10 election.

Mr. Diefenbaker said such frivolous Commons questions had used up 32 hours and 37 minutes of the present session.

Mr. Sinclair said such questions were not frivolous though it turned out that Mr. Diefenbaker's election promises had been.

Mr. Michener said the prime minister was entitled to comment on the amount of time spent on questions but not to raise the question of the propriety of questions raised previously in the session.

Take a Back Seat Reds Gibe at NATO

LONDON (Reuters) — Moscow radio said today "NATO's leaders must obviously take a back seat now in the face of Soviet achievements in military engineering."

In a broadcast beamed to North America and heard here, the radio said NATO had "proved its inefficiency in every respect." Instead of protecting European peace and security, it had only aggravated the tension there.

Ike Ready for Paris

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower, pronounced in excellent condition after a new medical examination, rounded out plans today to fly to Paris Friday in an effort to shore up the Western Alliance he helped forge. But the president still has a faint speech impairment and he still is not discharged from medical care following the mild stroke he suffered 16 days ago.

SHE PUSHED WRONG PEDAL

A woman driver's foot missed the brake pedal and hit the accelerator at Douglas and Fisgard Tuesday afternoon. The above scene resulted. Driver Mrs. Marjorie Fortye, 1045 Belmont, can be seen behind the wheel. Car jumped the curb, bowled over two pedestrians, tore out a pole and brought traffic signals and cluster lights crashing down. Nobody was seriously hurt. A three-month-old child in a buggy escaped with bruises. See story, Page 9. (Times Photo by Halkett.)

SOVEREIGNTY PLEDGE ASKED FROM MAC

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan refused today to promise he will not surrender any degree of Britain's national sovereignty at the NATO summit conference next week.

Labor party members in the House of Commons had demanded a government pledge that any such surrender of sovereignty must first gain the approval of Parliament.

The prime minister replied: "I would certainly not think it right to publish in advance any proposals."

NATO Aim Outlined

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will press for greater implementation of the North Atlantic Treaty provision calling for economic co-operation, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today in the Commons.

Bulganin Letter Hit at NATO To Effect Conference U.S. Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States accused Russia today of trying to influence nations of the Atlantic pact summit meeting next week by means of Soviet Premier Bulganin's letters to President Eisenhower and other western leaders.

Bulganin in a 3,000-word message delivered Tuesday to Eisenhower called for an end to all atomic hydrogen tests and for an East-West conference to outlaw war.

The Russians called the missive "very important" but American officials put a propaganda label on it, coming only 6 days before the NATO parley.

The state department said today after State Secretary Dulles conferred at the White House with Eisenhower that the Bulganin letter was "under active study."

But press officer Lincoln White, in a statement read at a press conference, said in reference to the letter received by Eisenhower:

"I think it can be assumed that the timing of the delivery of this letter and the intention of the Soviet Union to publish it would indicate an intention to influence the proceedings at the NATO conference.

"We may wish to consult with other governments concerning it."

It was learned these were the letter's main proposals:

1. A halt after Jan. 1 to all nuclear bomb testing. The Western allies already have rejected this, saying it fails to secure a ban on bomb production with safeguards to prevent cheating.

2. An East-West conference of leaders to outlaw war. This too, has been turned down. The West argues that the best way

Communications, Traffic Jammed

LONDON (Reuters)—Heavy seas driven by hurricane-force winds lashed England's south coast today.

Winds ranged up to 81 miles an hour. Seas tore ships from their moorings, smashed boats on beaches, piled sand and gravel on coast roads and damaged a main railroad line.

The seawall at Weymouth on the southwest coast collapsed under the battering and tons of sand blocked the adjoining highway.

At Plymouth, a 550-ton car ferry was blown ashore but refloated later while a passenger ferry in the same river was carried nearly half a mile upstream.

POWER LINES CUT

Seas damaged the main London-Plymouth railroad line, delaying trains up to three hours.

Though the storm was moderating today gale warnings were in force all around the coast and gales were still raging over the Irish Sea, parts of northern England and Scotland.

Many houses in England were damaged, trees blown down on roads and overhead telephone and power cables broken.

Heavy snow blanketed northern Scotland, delaying trains and blocking roads.

More than 200 vehicles, mostly long-distance trucks, were snowbound on Beattock Hill between Carlisle, Northern England, and Glasgow. The road over the steep hill was jammed for several miles.

STRANDED MAN SAVED

Dr. William Ruddock, marooned on Lundy Island in the storm-swept Bristol Channel since Friday, was brought to the mainland today by helicopter.

A lifeboat had taken him out to attend to an islander's sick child.

The British freighter Clan Ross (7,698 tons) broke from her moorings in Canada Dock, Liverpool, today and was in collision with another British ship, the Roonagh Head (6,153 tons), which was damaged.

Reuther Scores 'Wage Freeze' Plan for '58

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—The AFL-CIO convention came out unanimously today against any 1958 wage freeze. Instead, the convention called for sizeable wage increases and a shorter work week.

Walter Reuther, head of the Auto Workers' Union, charted the federation's bargaining policies in a speech saying the way to counter economic decline and mounting unemployment is to boost wages and increase purchasing power.

The AFL-CIO called the wage increases and reduced straight-time hours before overtime as major 1958 objectives.

Toronto Newspapers To Increase Prices

TORONTO (BUP) — The Toronto Globe and Mail will boost its price by five cents to 10 cents a copy starting next Monday, it was learned today.

It also was learned that The Toronto Telegram will increase its price to 10 cents by the end of the year.

EDMONTON (CP) — Telephone communications between Alberta and British Columbia points disrupted by winds Sunday are rapidly returning to normal, an Alberta government telephones spokesman said today.

Pearson Urges New Peace Diplomacy

OSLO (CP)—Lester B. Pearson today pleaded for complete exchange of views between East and West, especially between Moscow and Washington.

The former Canadian external affairs minister, who Tuesday received the Nobel Peace Prize here, said:

"Our policy and diplomacy—as the two sides in the cold war face each other—are becoming as rigid and defensive as the trench warfare of 40 years ago, when two sides dug in, dug deeper, and lived in their ditches. . . .

"It is essential that we avoid this kind of dangerous stalemate in international policy today. The main responsibility for this purpose rests with the two great world powers, the United States and the U.S.S.R.

"No progress will be made if one side merely shouts 'co-existence'—a sterile and negative concept —and 'parleys at the summit,' while the other replies 'no appeasement,' and 'no negotiations without proof of good faith' . . .

"We must keep on trying to solve problems, one by one, stage by stage, if not on the basis of confidence and co-operation, at least on that of mutual toleration and self-interest.

"What I plead for is no spectacular meeting of a Big Two or a Big Three or a Big Four summit, where the footing is precarious and the winds blow hard, but for frank, serious and complete exchanges of views—especially between Moscow and Washington —through diplomatic and political channels."

Essential to the success of any such exchanges was recognition by the West that there were certain issues, such as reunification of Germany and stabilization of the Middle East, which were not likely to be settled satisfactorily without Russian participation.

It was also essential that Russia recognize the right of people to choose their own form of government without interference from outside forces or subversive domestic forces encouraged and assisted from outside.

Mr. Pearson said he well knows such a diplomatic approach would involve "baffling complexities, difficulties and even risks."

But "the first failure would be to refuse to make the attempt." It would be folly to expect quick, easy or total solutions but it would be even greater folly to do nothing, "to sit back, answer missile with missile, insult with insult, ban with ban."

Mr. Pearson entitled his Nobel Peace Prize lecture "The Four Faces of Peace." The four aspects were "peace and trade"; "peace and power"; "peace and policy, or diplomacy"; and "peace and people."

The 60-year-old diplomat said a great gulf has been opened between man's material advance and his social and moral progress—"a gulf in which he may one day be lost if it is not closed or narrowed."

Peace, he said, "must surely be more than this trembling rejection of universal suicide."

He suggested freer communication between the poles of East and West and that the nations trade as freely as possible together.

"I believe myself that the Russian people wish for peace. I believe also that many of them think that Americans are threatening them with war; that they are in danger of attack. So might I, if I had as little chance to get objective and balanced information about what is going on in the United States.

"Similarly, our Western fears of the Soviet Union have been partly based on a lack of understanding or of information about the people of that country.

"Misunderstanding of this kind arising from ignorance breeds fear and fear remains the greatest enemy of peace."

On peace and trade, Mr. Pearson said: "Men may not now go to war for trade, but lack of trade may help to breed the conditions in which men do go to war . . ."

"The higher the common man sets his economic goals, in this age of mass democracy, the more essential it is to political stability and peace that we trade as freely as possible together. . . . We cannot have one world at peace without a general social and economic progress in the same direction.

"We must have rising living standards in which all nations are participating to such a degree that existing inequalities in the international division of wealth are, at least, not increased.

"For substantial progress on those lines we need the degree of efficiency that comes only with the freest possible movement of commerce through the world, binding people together, providing the basis of international investment and expansion, and thereby, I hope, making for peace."

Mr. Pearson renewed his plea for a permanent United Nations police force. The UN Emergency Force in Egypt was "at least a beginning."

"If, on that foundation, we do not build something more permanent and stronger, we will once again have ignored realities, rejected opportunities and betrayed our trust. We will never learn?

". . . The stark and inescapable fact is that today we cannot defend our society by war since total war is total destruction, and if war is used as an instrument of policy, eventually we will have total war.

"Therefore, the best defence of peace is not power, but the removal of the causes of war and international agreements which will put peace on a stronger foundation than the terror of destruction."

The statements were included in a text of the lecture issued to the press before delivery.

Frantic Commuters Battle Subway Tieup

NEW YORK (AP)—Bedraggled Manhattan workers who live outside the borough wearily climbed out of bed earlier than ever today in a grim effort to beat growing difficulties in the city's worst transit strike.

But during the morning rush hour the travel jams seemed as bad as Tuesday and the day before—if not worse.

Transit officials managed to keep perhaps one-third of the subway trains running, using non-strikers and supervisory personnel in place of members of the Motormen's Benevolent Association who walked out at 5 a.m. Monday.

Both city and private bus lines, as well as commuter railroads, sought to help ease the maddening travel plight by marshalling all extra equipment possible.

But it was a terrific strain all around, because all such facilities ordinarily operate at just about capacity even with subways running normally.

It promised to be another hectic day of jammed highways, station platforms and frantic struggles of harried commuters seeking to force their way aboard anything moving in the direction of Manhattan.

Subway officials said that of 809 motormen scheduled to work the midnight to 7 a.m. shift on the city's three subway divisions only 299 appeared.

LEAD PIPE THROWN

The first violence was recorded early today when a lead pipe was tossed through a window of a subway train, apparently aimed at the non-striking motorman in the front of the first car.

The striking MBA men, who called their walkout in a jurisdictional dispute over union representation in the subway system, doggedly stuck to their refusal to work despite pleas from the governor and mayor, and threats of firing from the city's transit authority.

Backing the Transit Authority, Mayor Robert F. Wagner warned the strikers Tuesday that they are causing great economic hardships to the city as well as jeopardizing their own incomes and security. The subways handle more than 4,500,000 fares daily.

He said he feels few strikers realize they are breaking state law which imposes dismissal or severe penalties on civil service workers who strike against government agencies.

STORES HARD-HIT

Manhattan department store operators were moaning over Christmas shopping losses. Trade associations estimated sales were 20 to 40 per cent below the same period last year, and put the over-all drop in millions of dollars.

Canada-W. Germany Sign Atomic Pact

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada and West Germany today signed a 10-year agreement for co-operation in peaceful uses of atomic energy which will be used as a pattern for similar bilateral pacts with other countries.

Under the agreement, West Germany will sign a contract with Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited, crown agency which buys and sells Canadian uranium, for the purchase of 500 tons of the radioactive material.

External Affairs Minister Sidney Smith said the agreement, the first signed with a country other than the United States and Britain, will come into force later this month. Canada has other agreements with the U.S. and Britain covering co-operation in the atomic field.

Jordan Bars Procession

JERUSALEM (AP) — Jordan has informed Israel that it will again bar the consular Christmas procession from the traditional road from southern Jerusalem to Bethlehem, officials said here Tuesday night.

The five-mile road, passing the site of Rachel's Tomb, runs exactly as the old Roman road did when Mary and Joseph travelled it.

Under present conditions it cannot be used for any regular traffic between Jerusalem and Bethlehem, as it is cut by barbed wire marking the armistice border.

BRIDGE LESSON

Hard Luck Joe ruffed the second heart lead, pulled trumps and remarked, "Well, partner, we missed a slam," and showed his hand.

"Down one at five," growled West.

West was right. The possibility of a five-zero break in clubs had never entered Joe's mind.

Joe complained about his hard luck and as usual he had manufactured it all by himself.

There was a simple way to guard against the bad club break. All Joe had to do was to lead one trump to dummy's ace and play a club from dummy. If no one showed out Joe could then draw trumps and claim his slam.

If East ruffed, Joe would simply win East's return, draw trumps and claim the balance. West could growl but he could not get a trick.

If East discarded on the club the play would be slightly more complicated but Joe would still breeze home.

He would win that club trick and play a second high club. East's best play would be to ruff and return a heart. Now Joe would trump in and ruff a low club with dummy's queen of trumps. This would clear the club suit and he would again be able to pull trumps and make his contract.

STEWART & HUDSON

WHERE HOME BUILDERS MEET

WELL IT HAPPENED

And the best news for prospective home owners for many a day. The new relaxed regulations for N.H.A. mortgages will certainly be of help for so many who have really wanted a home of their own.
So start now, saving up that $1,000 down payment which qualifies eligible borrowers to own a $10,000 N.H.A home. Undoubtedly good building lots will be in demand so don't leave that item for too long. Then there's home plans to think about. Use the long winter evenings to sketch out layouts. See the large selection of home plan books and ideas at Stewart & Hudson.

LUMBER PRICES

Are at their low winter levels and there's bargains around in other building materials which all make a happy combination when you consider that building materials only amount to 40% of your home costs. So many people think that lumber and other materials are so expensive but when we tell you it's the lowest cost in your building program we mean to prove it, with our estimates.

Around Our House

At Christmas time our house is always in a dither. It's our turn to feed all the family and the dining table isn't large enough. Little Billy's train, a year old now, still not set up the way we promised . . . a ping-pong table ?—that's already a two-year-old dream. We were going to decorate the front lawn for sure this year! Maybe your house is a little like ours—well, there is still time for both of us to get these little problems fixed up.

T.V. with Lee

Canada's Yvon Durelle Fights Jerry Luedee on C-5 at 7

By PHIL LEE, Times TV Editor

DON'T MISS THIS—What appears to be one of the truly excellent shows of the season got underway Monday night, Studio One's "No Deadly Medicine," with Lee J. Cobb, Canada's William Shatner, Gloria Vanderbilt and Alan Hewit occupying the principal roles. Written by Toronto's prolific Arthur Hailey, it is a two-hour affair to be seen in hour-long segments a week apart. It is suffice to say that the plot concerns a behind-times pathologist (Cobb) in a run-down-hospital. It is wonderfully, if grimly, acted. And it has heart and substance. It may well win Cobb, at least, an Emmy nomination. The purpose of this is to tell those who are interested to pick it up when it starts on Channel 2, Dec. 16, at 10 p.m. The second half will be seen on Dec. 23 at the same time. . . .

* * *

AS WAS expected, the second Desi-Lucy show came up with another whopping rating. It opened at 31.1 to clobber "McGraw" with 13.4 and 16.8 for "Broken Arrow." It then moved along with a mighty 33.3 in the second half to murder Bob Cummings at 13.9 and "Telephone Time" at 10.7. Still on the subject of ratings: George Gobel again bit the dust, shot down by "Cheyenne" 23.5 to 14.9. When he struggled to his feet "Wyatt Earp" opened fire and Lonesome George was down again to the score of 25.1 to 15.6. . . .

Meanwhile the Wednesday night competition continues tighter than a sweater on Jayne Mansfield. "I've Got a Secret" leads the list at 26.4 to "Walter Winchell" and "Kraft Theatre's" 18.2. Earlier "Disneyland" beat "Wagon Train" 19.6 to 17.2 and a "Lucy" re-run at 18.4. In the second half "Disneyland" placed second to "Wagon Train's" 21.3 but out-pointed "Big Record" with 18.3. Then "Record" upped to 20.4 on the second segment, beating "Tombstone Territory" at 16.4 but was edged out by "Father Knows Best" with 21. At 9 p.m. "Millionaire," "Ozzie and Harriet" and "Kraft" were almost even, "Millionaire" having a wee edge.
